AND DON'T MAKE YOUR ONLY STOP IN PORTLAND

With the city election only a little over two weeks away, and a new charter to be voted on, everybody is laying mighty low. Where are all our Clays and Websters?

One day of rest in seven is all very well, especially if the person doing the resting is allowed to rest in his or her own way. But compulsory rest on Sunday or arbitrary closing of some businesses and the opening of others on Sunday is not all right. — Oregon City Courier.

The Assistant Postmaster at Winnetka, Illinois was removed from office because he criticized the President's forthcoming marriage, saying that Mr. Wilson ought to wait a year at least. The News has interviewed the man and found that he and all are all heartily in favor of the marriage.

Agitation has been started here to have shelter sheds built for the farmer's horses which have to stand out in the cold rains for hours at a stretch when they come to town on business. It has been learned that the Scio Milling Co. will kindly allow the use of their grounds adjoining the mill for the purpose of building these sheds, and the only logical way to get results is to circulate a subscription paper for the purpose of raising funds for the material and work. This is a movement that would benefit every business house in Scio and at the same time be a boon to the farmers and their faithful animals. The News would be pleased to hear some outside expression on the subject.

On Friday, November 26, at 1 p. m. there will be a mass meeting of the tax payers of Linn county at the Albany Court House. The meeting is called for the purpose of considering the terribly increased tax burden of the past few years and to see what can be done toward reducing it for next year. Robert E. Smith of Roseburg, the secretary of the State Tax Association, will address the meeting. Mr. Smith is an interesting and able talker and probably knows more about taxes than any other man in the state. He has discovered some startling discrepancies in public expenditures and talks straight from the shoulder. Tax payers from all parts of the county will be present and a large and interesting meeting is assured.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

WILLIAM SPROULE,
On the Employment of the Employer.

The employment of the employer is a phase of the labor problem not so well exploited as the employment of the employee, but is equally as important to the prosperity of the country. The employer was never known to go on a strike nor to ask for a reduction in hours. Yet the trend of our legislatures has been to discourage his activities. Mr. Wm. Sproule, President of the Southern Pacific Company, when asked to discuss employment from the standpoint of the employer, said in part: "It is the habit of the time to speak of unemployment as if it related only to those who work for a specific hourly or daily, weekly or monthly wage. It is thought of chiefly as relating to those engaged in the humbler duties of life. The facts run quite to the contrary. It is the employer who is first out of employment. As a natural sequence he is followed by the employee, who next finds himself out of work. Unemployment begins only when the employer himself begins to be unemployed. When the employer is prosperous and his energies are profitably employed, employees have abundant employment and they also prosper. But why is this period of unemployment? It is because all business is bewildered and uncertain. It does not know whither it may proceed in safety. It does not know with what shares its path may be laid. This condition began with transportation and now extends to all business. The greatest trouble with this country today is that every business which has been developed by the genius of the American people has become the object of unforeseen attack from some quarter or feels the threat or danger of attack. Our laws, which formerly were precise and definite, have blanketed business with loose generalities called crimes, which the men who drew the laws and the men who interpret those laws cannot themselves define with any precision. Even when they endeavor to expound those laws they make them more obscure and more mystifying than before.

"There is nothing more distressing to an employer of labor than to turn away good men who desire to do good work; but until all wake up to the fact that unless the employer is prosperous the employee is failing in prosperity, we will have little improvement. When we have learned the lesson that in this nation we are simply a big industrial family, in which we all prosper together or we do not prosper at all, we will then have promise of relief from the misunderstandings and capotements which increase unemployment and destroy the comfort and the prosperity of the average man.

"I urge relief from the fads, fancies and isms which have filled our streets with unemployment and put away the dinner pail of the working man empty upon the shelf in the impoverished home. I urge the restoration of confidence in the fact that American men of business are the peers of any in the world. I urge that the American workingman cannot be prosperous unless the American men of business prosper. I urge that prosperity can come to us only with the full dinner pail. Finally, I urge that the public interest in transportation is that it shall be prosperous in order that it may be a successful and energetic aid to all the business it is designed to serve."
