

The Thrice-a-Week Edition of The New York World

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.
No Other Newspaper in the World Gives
So Much News at So Low a Price

The year 1914 has been the most extraordinary in the history of modern times. It has witnessed the outbreak of the great European war, a struggle so titanic that it makes all others look small.

You live in momentous times and you should not miss any of the tremendous events that are occurring. No other newspaper will inform you with the promptness and cheapness of the Thrice-a-Week Edition of the New York World. Moreover, a year's subscription will take you far into our next presidential campaign.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1 per year and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Scio Tribune together for $1.90. The regular price is $2.25.

If you want the Oregonian, the Journal or the Telegram, we will furnish it to you at less than "bargain day" rates, providing you are a subscriber to The Tribune.

For Sale

A valuable farm—310 acres, six miles west of Lebanon, 190 acres in cultivation, balance oak grub pasture land. Fair house and barn, good small orchard, within one-half mile of railroad, on R. F. D. route. The farm has good natural drainage and is regarded as one of the best farms in that locality. All of the cultivated land has been seeded to clover. Mean Brute.

"It is strange that there are no women on the bench of the United States supreme court," remarked Mrs. Gabb as she looked up from her paper. "It is strange," agreed Mr. Gabb. "That court always has the last word."—Cincinnati Enquirer

Sweet Home Items

Quite a number of Sweet Home people spent the day at Cascadia last Sunday. They report a goodly number of people at the springs.

Our hustling real estate man, W. C. Taylor, reports that he has been instrumental in renting three of our nearby farms this season, the places named are: Mrs. M. E. Putnam's farm to J. L. Ward of Turner; P. E. Crabtree's farm to W. F. and Gus Smith of Salem and Wm. C. Taylor's farm to Messrs F. R. Dewell and Froman of Lebanon.

John Bailey, who has had a severe attack of appendicitis, is able to be about without having to go to the hospital, as was reported in last week's issue of the Tribune.

The sign "Garage" still hangs at the front of the Watkins hall. We are going to watch it. Perhaps it might grow.

H. R. Slavens and family left last Thursday morning for an extended visit in Eastern Oregon, going over the McKenzie route.

Wm. Kitchen, of Crawfordville, is working in the blacksmith shop while Mr. Slavens is on a visit.

We have been informed that Prof. Carney, who was hired as principal of the high school for the year, has resigned his position as such and will not be here this year. No applications have been sent in for the place as yet.

Mrs. Laver, a half sister of the Cowitz children, has been visiting them this week.

George and Levy Ellis' brother of Iowa, is visiting them this week as is also their sister, Mrs. Nordyke, of Oakville.

J. A. Thompson lost his house on the farm across the river by fire one night last week. No one was living in the house at the time, so it looks rather queer.

Ernest Scholl went to Portland Monday morning to attend the festivities of buyers week.

Stanley Keith, of the Keith Cash Store, made a visit to Eugene one day last week and returned Sunday, bringing with him his bride, they having been married while he was making the visit.

Mrs. E. M. Post left for her home in Ridgefield, Wash., Tuesday.

Miss Nellie Maynard left Tuesday morning for Portland.

Threshing season opened in and around Sweet Home today.

IOWA'S WALLED LAKE.

Mystery in the Water and the Stones That Surround It.

One of the curiosities of the west is the "Walled lake," a hundred miles west of Dubuque, Ia. Some two or three feet higher than the surrounding surface, the lake has a wall ten feet wide on the bottom and five feet on the top, and the wall varies in height from ten to fifteen feet. The most remarkable circumstance connected with this strange lake is that the stones used in the construction of this wall vary from three to 100 pounds in weight and there are no stones whatsoever in the entire country surrounding the lake for five or ten miles.

There is no record, history or Indian legend to tell who brought these stones to build this wall, and to make the scene more mystifying a belt of woodland half a mile in length composed of oak surrounds the lake. With this exception, the entire country is a rolling prairie. The trees must have been planted about the same time the wall was built. In 1856 there was a great storm, and the ice and the lake broke down a large part of the wall, and the farmers living in the country were obliged to repair the wall to prevent their farms from being flooded. This curious lake covers a ground surface of 2,800 acres, and the water is twenty-five feet deep and as cold and clear as ice. No one seems to be able to tell where the water goes to or comes from, but it is always fresh and clear.—C. Gilbert Percival in Health.

Razed by an Earthquake.

Since 1861 the city of Mendoza, in Argentina, has not erected a structure above one story in height. In that year the greatest disaster which ever befell the place, an earthquake, demolished the town, and the inhabitants have been haunted ever since by the fear of a return of such a holocaust. The ruins of the great cathedral, whose walls crashed down upon the crowd of supplicants who had gathered within for protection, still stand as a warning. The old abandoned town lies about a mile from the new town and is a mass of ruins, scarcely a single house remaining intact.

Two Great Stages.

The largest stage in the world is that of the Grand Opera House in Paris. It is 100 feet wide, nearly 200 feet in depth and 80 feet high. The height is measured from the level of the stage to the "flies."

The stage of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York city, is 101 feet wide, 80 feet deep and 77 feet high and is believed to be the largest in the United States.—London Answers.

Queer Prisoners.

In the seventies of the last century life in Montenegro was not complex. A traveler relates: "At that time the adult male population was away fighting, and at times there was no one to spare to guard the inmates of the prison when out for exercise. One of them would then be given the rifle and take over the duty. Prisoners also were sent with messages. One went down to Cattaro, in Austrian territory, with 1,000 florins for the banker there, and faithfully delivered the money and was back in prison at night. Another Montenegrin begged a Russian in Cattaro to intercede for his release from prison. 'But you are not in prison,' said the Russian. 'Oh, yes, I am. I have only come here for a load of skins and must go back.'"

Writing Music.

There is reason to regard the Hindus and the Chinese as in possession of some form of musical notation. The Greeks had a system of writing music, but its comprehension evades us. The Latin notation was, like that of the Greeks in this one particular, alphabetic. A generally accepted tradition credits St. Gregory with the reduction of the scale to the octave and the naming of the seven notes, a service which has commonly won for him the credit of the invention of the art of writing music.—New York Sun.

A Specialist.

Higgins—Our old classmate, White, how is he getting along in literature? He should be doing well. He had so lively an imagination. Higgins—Oh, he's doing splendidly now. He's specializing in excuses for married men.—Chicago News.

To Please Her.
