Several parties have paid The Tribune compliments for last week's paper. Why, we don't know. But we will say it is our purpose to give the very best paper we can, all the time. It may be that our paper seems slow some weeks. We cannot control the events which transpire. We want to give the news and pass our editorial opinion on all that transpires. We are here for the news.

Evergreen blackberries are highly thought of as a food in the east. Here in Oregon they are so persistently plentiful, never failing to grow a proficient crop of berries that most Oregonians care nothing for them. For canning purposes 1 1/2 cts. per pound is being offered for them in Scio.
