Saturday night was the coldest of the winter. Several exposed water pipes were burst and many inside of buildings were slightly frozen and had to be thawed out with hot water.

Automobile owners who have not yet taken out their 1917 license, had better get busy. Some fellow may hold an owner up on the road and make the cost three or four times the cost of the license.

When the body of a woman who was buried at Eugene 16 years ago was being removed to another grave last week, it was found to have been petrified. It took four strong men to carry the body.

Monday about the last of the potatoes stored in this city for shipment were hauled to West Scio and loaded. Some ten or twelve cars of tubers have been shipped from Scio for which good prices have been received.

The fair stockholders meeting last Saturday was enthusiastic. No one present seemed willing to sell to Albany at the price offered. But, gentlemen, there is more to do than to vote a mere refusal. You will have to dig down into your pockets, if we make good.

The funeral of the late Henry Quigley, which was held at the Christian church, last Sunday morning, was attended by a very large concourse of our citizens. Mr. Quigley was regarded as one of our substantial citizens and was well liked and respected by everyone.

Scio young ladies have formed a basketball club and hope to develop a team which will be able to take on all comers.

At almost the same time as that of Mrs. Gooch, Mrs. West, mother-in-law of C. C. Wade, died in this city of inflammation of the bowels. We will give particulars later.

Mrs. O. V. White returned home Monday night after a three-weeks stay with her parents at Forest Grove. She reports her father to be slowly improving from his recent illness.

Another sudden death occurred at Shelburn Tuesday morning. Mrs. A. F. Gooch died in a very short time. We have not learned the particulars. We will have a full account next week.

Parent-Teachers Association

The Parent-Teachers association met in the High school auditorium Tuesday evening. An interesting program and evening was enjoyed by all present. Our orchestra, which we always appreciate, gave several selections and responded to encores.

The minutes of the previous meeting shows we are aiming to accomplish things worth while.

A very interesting and instructive paper was given by Dr. Prill, which should have been heard by every parent in Scio and it is hoped he may give it again in the near future for the benefit of all. The play shed or gymnasium of which there is great interest being taken, was discussed and further plans laid for its continuance.

Mrs. Carruth, traveling for the Ellisan-White Lyceum course, gave a short talk in the interest of such lyceum and it was left with the executive and program committees of the parent-teachers association.

The entertainment committee served cake, cocoa and coffee in the domestic science room. The next meeting will be held in two weeks. Everybody interested is invited.

SANTIAM FARM TOPICS

Elmer and Clifford Griffin drove to Lebanon Sunday morning as Elmer wished to meet some of his friends who were returning to their homes at Mt. Vernon on the John Day. Elmer intends returning to his old home in a few days as he has quite a bunch of horses on the range which he thinks are in need of attention.

Mrs. Myrtle McCoy and sister, Miss Ella Smith, went to Stayton Friday to visit their uncle, John Thomas.

Our road boss, Mr. Gilkey, came over Friday and put in a brakewater in Crabtree creek to prevent the water from undermining the road. The commissioners were to have come over Saturday and give instructions how to open a new channel to straighten the creek above the bridge. But as usual they failed to show up.

The fair meeting at Scio was a success as the stockholders were on the job and declined the idea of selling our fair and elected a new board of directors. Electing our president, Dr. Prill, who has proven to be the main ramrod of the whole shooting match. The members present decided rather than sacrifice our fair, they would try and dig up, so they soon had a fair start to have all the money necessary subscribed as a donation to put the fair on its feet and hold the next fair in October, which will insure a fine exhibit of most all varieties of fruit and vegetables, and cut out the jockey horse racing, and we will have a time equal to a hog killing. Our fair is not for sale.

As the old man and his better half drove into Scio Saturday to the fair meeting, he saw the farmers were making good use of the dry weather by plowing and sowing vetch and oats for hay.

The old man had four-in-hand around Saturday with his good wife. He has a fine colly dog pup that has formed a habit of visiting at night. So as to stop this, the old men tied a rope around the dogs neck. Not being used to anything of the kind, he made a desperate effort to rid himself of the rope, making several circles over the yard then made for the back porch where the good wife had a full can of milk ready for the factory. So he made a turn around the can with his long rope, making another dash for the yard. Away went can, milk and dog, covering the porch an inch deep in cream and milk. So the old man made for the barn and crawled in some hay, to wait until the storm blew over. I'll not tie the dog if he does go out sparking.

Eldon Griffin, of Stayton, came over Monday to visit his Grandmother, Mrs. S. W. Gaines for a few days, as he is laid up with cold and grip.
