Sheep Worried by Dogs

Early Sunday morning about 3 o'clock, a neighbor informed J. L. Rodgers that dogs were worrying his sheep, which were pasturing in a neighbor's field. By quick work the dogs were driven off, but not until 13 sheep had been worried and torn, causing the death of two of them. One of the dogs was captured and the owner of the other two were known. The affair was settled by the dog owners paying $72 for the raid.
