Roll Morris was a spectator at the big G. A. R. parade in Portland on Tuesday of last week.

KEEP OUT!—I have been annoyed with people running in and out of my pasture, knocking down fences, etc. So I hereby warn all persons not authorized by me to keep out. 1 John F. Kukacka.

During the past week the editor of The Tribune hobnobbed with many old civil war veterans in Portland, while the printer, Mr. Brant, spent the week in breathing the exhilarating mountain air and catching trout at his farm near Summit on the C. & E.

Last week this writer witnessed a demonstration of the Fordson tractor. So far as ease of handling, speed and power the Fordson leaves nothing to be desired. The fuel is either coal oil or distillate and the machine is as easily handled as a Ford car. Of course the plows, Oliver chilled, are all right. The price is no greater than the cost of horses to do the same work, besides the upkeep in favor of the Fordson is much less than the feed and care of a team would be.

Gail Jones, of the 32d U. S. Infantry, stationed at San Diego, has been enjoying a furlough with home folks here in Scio. Gail has been at the Hawaiian Islands for a year or more until quite recently, when his regiment was ordered to San Diego, presumably on the way to France. Gail seems to be two or three inches taller than when he enlisted. He likes the service though he got tired of Honolulu as the climate was nearly the same at all times of the year.

Mrs. Jane Compton received a letter from her son Otis, now in the army, saying that he is in a fine company, gets all he wants to eat, has gained six pounds since joining and that Washington is a great state. Evidently he is at Camp Lewis, tho he doesn't say so.

Mrs. John Kelly of Gervais, is visiting her grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bilyeu.

A gray wolf was seen about three miles above Lyons last Friday week. Boys get your dogs out and hunt the varmint down.

The Misses Clark of Portland, are visiting their friend, Mrs. Leita Berry of near this city. All are picking blackberries as a pastime.

W. L. Marks, deputy prosecuting attorney, was over from Albany Monday looking into the matter of the cutting scrape Saturday night.

I. A. Munkers, president of the Linn county fair, reports the outlook for exhibits exceptionally good.

Mrs. Katherine Kester, matron at Scio General Hospital, returned on Tuesday from a short visit with relatives at Wendling. Her daughter and a niece came with her.

Virgil L. Shilling, Lester Shimaneck, John Shelton and Charles Salzl of Scio, Roy Henry of Crabtree, and Elmer Freitag of Thomas, have been called to join the colors at Camp Lewis September 3.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Carpenter of Scio, Mr. Brown of West Scio, and the editor of The Tribune, all the Civil war veterans in this vicinity, attended the G. A. R. national encampment in Portland last week.

Wanted—Evergreen blackberries; will pay 6c pound cash f. o. b. roadside; crates furnished. For further information, write R. S. Parker, Albany, Oregon.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Peery of Springfield, were visiting at the Morris home. Mrs. Peery is a daughter of Mrs. Sarah Morris.

If you want a trailer for your auto truck or bus, see Jesse Rodgers about it. He can supply you quickly and at moderate prices. 1 5t

COME ON

With your livestock. Am shipping every week. Next loads out Tuesday and Saturday of next week. Will be shipping fat hogs, stock hogs, lambs, goats, or anything in the cattle line. Can use a few good fresh or springer cows. J. D. DENSMORE.

Red Cross Nurse Writes

The interior of the chapel contains six large paintings representing scenes from her life; the first the vision in the orchard, the last the burning at the stake.

I can't tell you how much I enjoyed this trip. My mount, a spry, playful little mare whom we call Betty Brown, tried very hard to unseat me and while not as successful as she might be did manage to shake my hair down and spill my cap frequently. I've never been able to experience the sensation of fear, so the faster she galloped the more I laughed, which rather annoyed my escort as he fully expected to take me home in pieces.

There are many wild flowers in this part of France, not many that we have at home. The deep woods and some of the meadows are full of heliotrope; it makes me homesick for mother used to be so fond of her heliotrope flowers. There is also a white flower something like the golden rod. The fields are full of scarlet poppies and blue cornflowers. You really can't imagine how beautiful they are.

The roads are very well made being of white gravel, graded high, with trees planted at regular intervals all along.

No, I have not learned to speak French. I really think I could order a dinner but this is as far as my rustic abilities will go. As for buying at the shops, I take a leaf from the book of the Chinese who used to trade with us years ago, simply walk around the counters until I find what I want and then hold out my money. My plan invariably works although it seems to occasion undue merriment to the onlookers.

The Red Cross has so thoroughly equipped us that we do not need anything more. Should I decide to lengthen my vacation and spend the winter here I may ask you to knit me woolen hose. Have made two dresses without patterns, don't you think I am quite a talented person? We have a sewing machine so manage to keep in good repair. I miss my electric iron most of all.

There are several base hospitals near us, in fact we are quite a large settlement. There are many negroes and Chinese laborers camped here. The Chinese are from the east, not like our coast class. The unit from home are camped near us. Many of the doctors are friends of Earl and two of the nurses are graduates of Mrs. McNary at Salem, Oregon. We are quite near the station and it's quite the thing to stroll down to watch the trains come in. You can imagine how good it seems to see people from home.

The French trains are quite different from ours and much smaller. We have our own Red Cross trains; each train has accommodations for 250 patients with their own staff who live aboard, when the cars are sent all that is necessary is an engine. In fact, I think America has made very complete arrangements for the care of our boys. It is quite wonderful considering the time she has had. Of our actual work itself I am not at liberty to write but you can get a good idea by following the papers. This much I may say that the American spirit to do or die is very prevalent. The boys for the most part are cheerful and make light of their sufferings; in fact the whole atmosphere is one of cheerfulness. Those who came in today have a new slogan for use in going over the top: "Heaven, Hell, or Hoboken by Christmas," which I think very appropriate.

This is a great place for dancing; every one likes to dance and there are some very good musicians among the enlisted men. The Red Cross has a large building for amusement, and the Knights of Columbus and Y. M. C. A. have headquarters here. Everything is being done for the comfort of all, and while it may not be luxurious as at home it is much pleasanter than our folks think possible.

3 a. m.—I hear the ambulances coming in so will close this letter and get ready for business. Please write me about the little things at home. You see we can't get much to read; the mails refuse for the most part to handle magazines and newspapers so we're getting rather stale on current events.
