More Eggs—Meat Scraps.

Hens given meat, fish or milk products in their diet will lay from 38 to 66 per cent more eggs than those which have only grain food and what bugs and worms they can pick up on free range, recent experiments made by the U. S. department of agriculture show.

The birds used in the experiments were given conditions as nearly like those on a normal farm as possible.
The experiments were repeated under different conditions and in different years, to avoid as far as possible any error due to the varied characteristics of the birds.

The average farmer feeds very little meat, fish, or animal protein feed of any kind to his poultry, and consequently gets few eggs during the late fall and winter when eggs are selling at highest prices.

In the experiments conducted on the government poultry farm, pens of pullets on free range were fed a mash of corn meal, bran, and middlings and a scratch mixture of wheat, oats, and corn. This is a greater variety of grains than is used by many farmers. In addition the birds had absolutely free range on land where bugs, green feed and worms were plentiful. Other pens were given the same ration, with 1 pound of commercial meat scrap added to every 4 pounds of mash.

The pullets without the meat scrap laid only 90 eggs apiece (which is more eggs per hen than the average farm flock lays), while those receiving meat scrap averaged from 125 to 150 eggs apiece.

Meat scrap is not produced on most farms and has to be bought at a higher price than grain. It produces eggs, though, several cents a dozen cheaper than where no meat scrap is used. Milk products or fish give as good results as meat in increasing egg production.

The rain of last Sunday was a sort of double blessing. It was of great benefit to crops and gardens and it conserved gasoline, as all joy riders stayed at home.

Absenteeism Becomes Habit in the Senate.

Washington, D. C.—Absenteeism in the senate has become such a habit that it became necessary to transfer from one committee to another Senator Borah's resolution for an investigation of the contributions to presidential campaign funds. In asking such transfer Senator Borah explained it was necessary because absence of senators had made it impossible to get a quorum of the committee to which the resolution was originally referred.

"It is difficult to get a majority of any committee in session now owing to the absence of so many senators," said Senator Borah.

Senator Thomas pointed out that the senate was transacting business with only a handful of senators present, sometimes passing appropriations of millions of dollars with only a few members in the chamber. Frequently it has been necessary to direct the sergeant at arms to "request the presence of senators."

It is in this way that the majority party is attending to the nation's business under the commission given to it in the congressional election of 1918; it is merely marking time as part of its policy to do nothing until after the November election.

[Adopt the principle "no work no pay" and a quorum will always be on hand.—Ed.]

Start the Home Cannery.

Home canning at its best provides a supply of every fruit and vegetable that has been in season during the summer for use during winter. Rhubarb, asparagus and dandelion greens are in season now. Enough of each to serve once a week during the cold months will add variety to the menus next winter.

Because a dollar is worth only 50 cents is no reason why the delinquent subscriber should hold on to it until it gets back to par.
