OREGON NEWS NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST

Principal Events of the Week Briefly Sketched for Infor- mation of Our Readers.

Twenty-eight miles of trails were built in the Cascade national forest during the past season, according to a report of N. F. Macduff, supervisor of the forest.

Last summer lightning caused 24 fires in the Cascade national forest, according to the annual report on fires just finished by N. F. Macduff, supervisor of the forest.

Organization campaigns have been launched in all the existing farm bureau counties, which are expected to bring the total membership in the state up to 10,000.

The highest priced Rambouillet ram at the ram sale held recently in Salt Lake was bought by the Cunningham Sheep company of Pendleton. The purchase price was $1300.

Work on the power plant site on Tumalo creek has been suspended for the winter, the crew employed completing their task just as heavy snows made further labor impossible.

George W. Weeks of Salem is now employing a force of men digging strawberry plants, and he expects to ship a million of them to Watsonville, Cal., where they have been sold.

Plans are being made in Mount Vernon, a Grant county town, to pipe mineral water from the springs near that place into the town, where a new hotel and bath houses will be constructed.

The name of every trail and every creek in the Cascade national forest will be plainly marked on a new map of the forest now being compiled by N. F. Macduff, supervisor of the forest.

Mrs. R. A. Booth of Eugene has given a memorial window to Willamette university, to be installed in Waller hall. The gift is in honor of Mrs.
Lucia Anna Grubbe, daughter of Jason Lee.

The Bates & Rogers Construction company, which has been building the Willamina & Grande Ronde railway, has turned over its unfinished contract to the Spaulding Lumber company.

The largest class of candidates ever initiated into any lodge in Lane county joined Eugene camp of the Woodmen of the World. More than 300 men from different parts of Lane county were taken into the order.

All election dope was upset in Lincoln county. The county, by registration 4 to 1 republican, gave Harding a 2-to-1 vote and defeated Chamberlain by a small majority, then defeated every republican candidate, with one exception, who had democratic opposition.

Two Oregon towns, Yoncalla, in Douglas county, with a population of about 200, and Burns, county seat of Harney county, with a population of about 500, elected women to the office of mayor in the election. Yoncalla also elected an entire administration of women.

Oregon counties have been apportioned $121,522.51, representing 25 per cent of the receipts from forest reserve rentals, sales of timber, etc., from forest reserves for the year ending June 30, 1920. This money was received by the state from the federal government.

After a strenuous trip of personal inspection of the surveyed route from Neskowin, in southern Tillamook county, over the divide into the Salmon river country to Otis, thence to Newport, walking nearly the entire distance, Governor Olcott, accompanied by Herbert Nunn, state highway engineer, and Dr. R. E. Lee Steiner, arrived in Newport.

A coincidence in the vote of Linn county in the election is that the two Hawleys—W. C. Hawley for re-election as representative in congress from the first district and C. L. Hawley for dairy and food commissioner—ran almost on a par, there being just one vote difference between their respective totals. W. C. Hawley received 6208 votes in the county and C. L. Hawley received 6209.

The volume of business handled by the state treasurer's office during the last biennial period ended September 30, 1920, as shown by the receipts, exceeded that of the previous biennium by more than $19,000,000, according to a report prepared for consideration of the legislature at its next session in January. The receipts of the office for the biennial period ended September 30 of this year totaled $39,406,- 074.18.

Albany is afflicted with a measles epidemic, 86 children now being confined to their homes by illness from the disease.

The Rosseau Coal company, near Medford, has begun active operations for the winter, a force of 20 men being employed.

The Marshfield Mill & Timber company's new electric mill is now in full operation. It has a capacity of 20,000 feet per day.

Fire of apparently incendiary nature totally destroyed the Rhodes & Cot-teral sawmill near Gold Hill, causing a loss of $80,000.

The Silver Falls Timber company at Silverton is installing new machinery and the mill will resume operations in a few weeks.

The Polk County Observer, published at Dallas, has launched a recall movement directed against County Judge Robinson.

Two ranch homes were burned in Hood River valley last week, the fires beginning in both instances from sparks on the roofs.

With a total of $276,141 to her credit, Astoria stands fifty-sixth of all the cities in the United States in size of postal savings deposits.

Forty-one of the 48 fires in the Santiam national forest last summer were caused by lightning, according to the supervisor of the forest.

One of the largest storage tanks in eastern Oregon, capacity 500,000 gallons, is soon to be built in Baker by the Standard Oil company.

Burglars entered the Hellwell, Bangs & Marks store at Cottage Grove and escaped with goods worth between $1500 and $3000.

Work conducted by the forest service in the eradication of poison hemlock in eastern Oregon has turned in a net profit of $680 for the year.

The Union Bridge company of Portland has been awarded a contract to construct a steel bridge across Lost river at Olene in Klamath county.

Salem insurance agents assembled at a banquet and perfected a permanent organization, which later will be affiliated with the national association.

Oregon's flax industry gives promise of receiving great impetus through the contemplated establishment in Salem of a large flax products manufacturing plant.

Six crates containing 12 pairs of young China pheasants from the state game farm at Corvallis were shipped last week to Juntura, in Malheur county.

Great Statesman's Hobby.

Gladstone in his day was quite an axman. The great Englishman used to slip away from the cares of state and he himself out to his estate at Hawarden, seize the haft of his trusty ax and let the "chips fall where they may." To him the exercise afforded the most complete mental rest that he could find. With coat off and shirt-sleeves rolled up the prime minister would tackle a tree several feet in diameter, and keep at it until he had reduced it to cordwood. He was forever consulting his friends as to the advisability of cutting down this tree or that one on his estate. So proud was he of his wood chopping ability that he even had himself photographed with his favorite ax at his beloved pastime; and so great was his reputation and so ardent his admirers that he was frequently being presented with an ax as a mark of esteem. At one time he had more than 30 axes in his collection.

NATIONAL FLOWER OF FRANCE

Iris, or Fleur-de-Lis Was Originally Called the Fleur-de-Louis—Valued for its Medicinal Purposes.

The Iris, or the fleur-de-lis, is the national flower of France. It was originally called the fleur-de-Louis.
The ancients valued it highly for medicinal purposes. A powder made from the root, mixed with honey, was used for broken bones, and it was also considered beneficial for snake and scorpion bites. A valuable perfume and oil was also obtained from the Iris.

The legend as to how the flower received its name goes back to the Greeks. Iris was the messenger of the gods, and the rainbow was dedicated to her. On her birthday, Juno invited all the flowers to celebrate the occasion. They all came in their prettiest frocks. Among them were three sisters, gorgeously dressed in gowns of purple, yellow and red, and who were unknown. Since they had no name, they were called Iris, because their gowns were the color of the rainbow.

Since Iris was the messenger of the gods, and conducted the souls of dead women to their final resting place, the Greeks decorated the graves of their women with purple iris.

This flower was widely used in old Egyptian architecture. It signified power and eloquence to the Egyptians, and was, therefore, carved on the brow of the Sphinx, and upon the scepters of their kings.

Wasn't Open.

A rather green countryman had just returned from his first visit to New York.

"Well, SL," said the postmaster,
"what did you think of the metropolis?"

"Wat say?" gawked the other, stumped by so big a word.

"I asked how did you like the metropolis?"

"Oh, that—'twan't open," said SL.—
Boston Transcript.

Crowning Triumph.

Little Norman and his two play-fellows were boasting about their parents and their belongings. "My father," said Norman, "is going to build a fine house with a steeple on it."

"That's nothing!" exclaimed Willie scornfully. "My father has just built a house with a flagpole on it."

Conrad, who had been listening intently, was silent for a moment, then burst out triumphantly: "Oh, that's nothing! My father is going to build a house with a mortgage on it!"
