The Sanitary Market, Shelton & Large, wish to announce that they will conduct a cash business, or credit for 30 days only. All book accounts must be paid in full within the next 15 days. We thank you for your patronage and would like to give you more time on accounts, but we have to pay cash for our cattle and most of our supplies so will have to demand cash or 30 days. SHELTON & LARGE.

Wedding Anniversary Observed.

On November 20 (last Saturday) Mr. and Mrs. George Bilyeu of this city were given a very agreeable surprise by their children, the event being to celebrate the 30th anniversary of their marriage.

A sumptuous feast was spread and all but two of the children were seated around the parental table.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bilyeu and family and Lester Bilyeu and family, all of Scio; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Crume and two daughters of Albany; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Thomas and two daughters of Albany; Mrs. George Klinge of Junction City; Byron Bilyeu of Oakdale, Wash.; Rev. H. B. Iler, wife and children of Scio.

The day was spent most pleasantly and all departed for their homes excepting Mrs. Klinge and Byron Bilyeu, wishing their parents many more anniversaries.

The Tribune joins the children in good wishes and regrets that business engagements prevented our presence. Mr. and Mrs. Bilyeu are retired farmers. Their family all raised and doing for themselves, deserve to pass the rest of their lives less strenuously than has been the 39 years of their marital life.

W. N. Shope of Northern Arizona with his family, is visiting his parents here at Scio.

M. E. Roth of Goltra station drove over Wednesday. He says but little clover was saved in his neighborhood.

Mrs. Ramer of Crabtree, who had been in the city hospital for several weeks suffering from an incurable cancer, was relieved by death last Sunday. She was of advanced age.

TO BE SOULAGE OR SOLITARY

William Hazlett Tells of Times When He Wants to Be Left Alone With His Thoughts.

Give me the dear blue sky over my head, and the green turf beneath my feet, a winding road before me, and a three hours' march to dinner—and then to thinking! It is hard if I cannot start some game on these lone heaths. I laugh, I run, I leap, I sing for joy. From the point of yonder rolling cloud I plunge into my past being, and revel there, as the sunburnt Indian plunges headlong into the wave that wafts him to his native village shore. Then long forgotten things, like "sunken wreck and sunless treasures," burst upon my eager sight. . . . Instead of an awkward silence, broken by attempts at wit or dull commonplaces, mine is that undisturbed silence of the heart which alone is perfect eloquence. No one likes puns, alliterations, antithesis, argument and analysis better than I do; but I sometimes had rather be without them. "Leave, oh, leave me to my repose!" I have just now other business in hand which would seem idle to you, but is with me "very stuff of the conscience." Is not this wild rose sweet without a comment? Does not this daisy leap to my heart set in its coat of emerald? Yet if I were to explain to you the circumstance that has so endeared it to me, you would only smile. Had I not better then keep it to myself and let it serve me to brood over, from here to yonder crazy point, and from thence onward to the far distant horizon? I should be but had company all that way, and therefore, prefer being alone. I have heard it said that you may, when the moody fit comes on, walk or ride on by yourself and indulge your reveries. But this looks like a breach of manners, a neglect of others, and you are thinking all the time that you ought to rejoin your party. "Out upon such half-faced fellowship," say I. I like to be either entirely to myself or entirely at the disposal of others; to talk or be silent, to walk or sit, to be sociable or solitary.—Table Talk by William Hazlett.

FRENCH USE ENGLISH WORD

Academy Which Keeps Language Correct Decides to Admit "Gentleman" to the Dictionary.

The French academy, which devotes long sittings to the task of keeping the French language absolutely correct, and which regards all foreign words introduced into the language with horror, has just made an exception in favor of an English word, which is henceforward to have a place in the official dictionary of France, says the London Telegraph. This is the word "gentleman," which is very frequently used in modern writing and conversation rather than the time-honored gentilhomme, which ordinarily means nobleman, but which, in the new edition of the dictionary, is to be described as meaning "a man who without being noble by race, has lofty sentiments, elegant manners, and does noble acts." With regard to the word "gentleman," it is to be described in the dictionary as "an English word sometimes employed in French in the metaphorical and moral sense of the word gentilhomme."

This is undoubtedly not the last time the French academy will be called upon to give an official welcome to an English word which has become current in the French language; for example, the word "home" is becoming a great favorite, and the misuse of the words "smoking" and "dancing" for "smoking jacket" and "dance hall" has become so usual that the English origin of the words is quite forgotten.

Vanishing Indian Language.

Nowhere in America has there been such a diversity of Indian languages as in California. But these languages are now rapidly disappearing. Several of them are known only by five or six, and others by only 20 or 30 living persons, and hardly a year passes without some dialect, or even language, ceasing to exist, through the death of the last individual able to speak it. Efforts are being made to record all these languages for the sake of the light they throw on the ancient history of the Pacific coast.—Sun and New York Herald.
