Truck Impact Damages Roads.

Repair bills for damaged roads would be much reduced, engineers in the bureau of public roads report after extensive experimental work, if motor trucks were designed to carry more of the loads put on them over the front axles and less over the rear wheels, as at present. In the average heavy truck of today the body is nearly balanced on the rear axle. When the truck strikes an obstacle or an irregularity in the highway, the damage done to the road surface by the rear wheels is much greater than it would be if the load were distributed on both axles.

Given a perfectly smooth road surface, traveled by a truck with perfectly smooth circular tires, there would be no impact, regardless of the speed or weight of load.

Since such an ideal condition is practically impossible, road engineers recognize that all factors which increase or reduce the impact of a load are of the utmost importance in planning highway construction and regulation.

The placing of the larger part of the load on the rear axle is only one of several factors which lead to high impact forces. In general, the increased speed of the truck will increase the impact, hence the necessity for keeping the operating speed within reasonable limits.

Roads kept as smooth as possible by careful maintenance will reduce the possibility of trucks exerting impact and pressure forces upon the highway surface. Cushion or pneumatic tires also reduce impact and cause less damage to the highways than those of hard rubber, especially if the latter are not kept in good repair.

BASKETBALL NOTES

Before a crowded house the Scio basketball teams closed a successful season here Friday evening, February 25, when they won both fast games of the double header with Halsey. The boys' team score was 30 to 19, and the Scio girls chalked up 38 points to 9 for the opponents.

Of course, the visitors were handicapped by the low ceiling, but no more than Scio was by strange baskets at Halsey.

It was not entirely the ceiling's fault that the visiting boys were held to seven baskets, five of which were made by Clark, a guard, as that the Halsey girls were allowed but two field goals. Neither were the large scores piled up by the local teams accidental. On a neutral floor the Scio teams would still have won.

The high school games are summed up as follows:

Boys won 8, lost 5—.625 per cent.

As a windup to the basketball season it is fitting that the Scio players receive special individual mention; in the meantime the sports writer will mosey to Salem to escape whatever might be coming his way. Here she goes:

Elfreda Thayer, like a flying squirrel, leaps from limb to limb and is very handy about the cage (basket).

Lydia Shoure is greatly handicapped on the home floor because of the low ceiling, but makes beautiful passes along this part of the wall.

Pauline Sims is a tip top player; she's always on top when she falls.

Hazel Philippi is noted for her ability to grin when bumped.

When fouled Blanche Bates' temperature rises perceptibly.

Concerning Maysell Hassler, we speak romantically in rhyme:

She excels as a player
When tassing to Thayer.

Concerning the ghosts of departed players—Jirocha, Lukenbach, Long-Stoller, Stoddart—we say merely "may they come back to haunt us next year."

"Buck" White shoots like lightning and rolls like thunder.

"Ted" Sims furnishes the audiences with many examples of bloody brotherly love.

"Hippo" Densmore, on the contrary develops an ability to score personal fouls.

"Joycek" Hirons never is a cleaned player, and Neal has not yet kneeled.

"Red" McLain, "Noisy" McKnight and "Toad" White helped entertain other teams a time or two.

Seriously, especial credit is due:

1—The girls' team, which remains undefeated except in a tie game;

2—The boys' team, which developed from nothing to excellence and was undefeated on the home floor;

3—The girls' team forwards Thayer and Lukenbach, who cannot be equalled. The agile boys' team forward White, Sims, the handy man on the

In a note to the reporter Miss Rankin of O. A. C. expressed the hope that some of the girls' team would attend O. A. C. and become a member of the team there.

Lumber Cut Increases.

An increase of 10 per cent more lumber was cut* in 1920 over any annual cut for the past three years is indicated in incomplete returns from mills which have just been given out by the district forester's office in Portland, covering Oregon and Washington.

While the returns received by the forest service are still incomplete, they are given as indicative of last year's lumber production in the two states. The figures from 8 class 4 mills, or mills which cut 5000 up to 10 million feet per year, show an increase for Oregon of over 6 million, while 18 mills in Washington report a decrease of 5 million feet.

The tabulation shows for 35 class 5 mills, or mills cutting over 10 million annually, an increase for Oregon of 120 million, while 64 Washington mills report an increase of 174 million feet.

Oregon Made Home Knitting Yarns.

A great surprise for the home knitters of Oregon, but still a fact. Furthermore, this yarn is absolutely virgin wool yarn; the wool was grown in Linn county, sold by Mr. Senders to the Oregon Worsted Company (mills located at Sellwood), made into worsted yarn by Roy T. Bishop, son of C. P. Bishop, proprietor of the Woolen Mill Store of Salem. Oregon knitters try this yarn out. All colors. 45¢ per ball of 2 ozs. Sampls sent on application. Address C. P. Bishop, Box 75, Salem, Oregon.
