A. KARNOS KILLED BY RUNAWAY TEAM

Wood Falling on Heels of Team Frightens
Them, and Start to Run—Victim
Thrown Under Wagon.

Word was brought to town Friday afternoon of the death of Antone Karnos, whose home is a few miles southeast of Scio. Dr. Hobson, who was called, gives us the brief particulars of the accident.

Mr. Karnos was hauling wood in the wagon box and across the top of the box. In descending into a small but steep gully, the wood fell forward onto the heels of the team and throwing Karnos from the load.

One of the team was young, and the wood tumbling onto the wagon tongue frightened the animals, resulting in a runaway. Mr. Karnos fell so that the wagon was pulled over him. He was taken to his home and Dr. Hobson called, who found a collar bone broken and several ribs crushed in, evidently resulting in severe internal injury, for Mr. Karnos lived but two hours after the accident.

Mr. Karnos was a farmer in the middle years of his life and was a good citizen. He leaves a wife and children to mourn his untimely death. He was buried Monday.

To Identify Oregon Wheat.

Specimens of more than 300 varieties of Oregon wheat are being sent to the head of the department of Cereal Investigation in Washington, D. C., for standardization in name and classification. The same varieties of wheat have been grown in different parts of the United States under many different names. Of the 300 varieties of wheat to be sent, only 125 are accurately named, and all were grown on the college farm under the supervision of the experiment station.

Married.

At the residence of A. E. Bilyeu on Sunday July 24th, at high noon, Mr. Ralph W. Hassler and Miss Sylvia Thibodeau, were united in marriage by G. L. Sutherland.

The bride wore a dress of flesh colored crepe de chine and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. The groom wore a suit of dark blue serge.

Miss Mildred Couey and Miss Maysel Hassler acted as flower girls, each carrying a bouquet of sweet peas, and little Miss Anna Bilyeu acted as ring bearer.

After the ceremony, a delightful lunch was served, every one wishing the happy couple health, happiness and a long wedded life.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hassler, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Chrisman and children, Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson, Mrs. Harry Wiley, Mrs. J. A. Craft, Miss Evalyn Hundley, Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly and son, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Churchill and children, Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Hoagland, Mrs. Mary Carson and daughter, Miss Maysel Hassler, Miss Mildred Couey, Frank Bilyeu, Leona Bilyeu and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bilyeu.

Mr. Hassler is an engineer and at present is working for the county at Green's Bridge, where the newly weds will reside for a time.

Notice to Water Patrons

Notice is hereby given to take effect at once that all water for sprinkling purposes must be used only from 6 a. m. to 9 a. m. each day. Owing to the shortage of water it is necessary to discontinue the evening sprinkling hours.

A Remarkable Case.

Mike Kelly, of near the green bridge, reports a case almost unheard of, the truth of which he vouches for.

Mike owns a bright colored Jersey cow. On July 4 she gave birth to a black calf, which is an unusual but not an unheard of freak. On July 22, last Friday, the cow gave birth to a red calf. The color of the calves is not so remarkable or unusual, but the birth of two calves in the same month, almost three weeks apart, is most unusual and unheard of to most of us.

We would like to hear from some of our breeding stock experts explaining this freak in nature's laws.

There were six fatalities in Oregon due to industrial accidents during the week ended July 21, according to a report prepared by the state industrial accident commission. The victims were: Ray W. Burt, construction worker, Portland; Edward Erickson, construction laborer, Goble; George H. Dayton, laborer, Grants Pass; Chris Hoyt, construction worker, Portland; Stephen Stewart, road worker, River-ton; and John C. Lewis, lineman, Salem. A total of 357 accidents were reported.

SANTIAM FARM TOPICS

The Pie Eater has just returned from a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Ida Graham and family, of Monitor, finding them all well.

We had a full house Sunday, as Bill Garland and two daughters, of Scio, and other neighbors came in and gave us one of the regular old times of our life.

Editor Tribune:

I have often thought since I have been here that I would write a line to The Tribune. I got into the habit of scribbling lines which you could not read, but you generally guessed at what I wrote and published them. For fear that you might do the same with these, I am using a typewriter. Don't blame me for any mistakes; lay it onto the machine.

I am about to indulge in play that is work. Next Wednesday evening the teacher's class in Play Producing, of which I am a member, presents three short plays. I am playing the part of the Father in Maeterlinck's "Intruder," and the Professor is presenting the comedy "Bringing Up Father"—me. Thursday I went down into the dressing rooms and had my face disfigured with purple and crimson lines. I left my hat in the auditorium above. When I came to leave President Campbell was making a speech, and I decided not to disturb him and came home bareheaded. Concerning plays, I will add that I have instructed the doorkeeper to shoot on sight any Scio people attending the performance.

Preparatory to my return to Scio, I want to send an advance word about school, giving you permission to print any part of this letter that may seem fit to publish. The unfortunate situation in Scio and elsewhere regarding taxes has aroused great interest in schools. Some are interested because they want the schools to be improved; some because they see faults in the system; and some, I am ashamed to say, simply because they wish to reduce taxes. I will speak of the latter class very briefly, because they are probably very few in number; and because I do not wish to quarrel with anybody's opinion. These people would not any of them think of stealing in order to pay their taxes. I wonder if they ever thought of themselves as attempting to rob children of what is needed for their school?

Twenty Years in the Philippines.

Twenty years ago the late Brigadier General Frederick Funston broke the back of resistance to the American occupation of the Philippine Islands by the capture of Emilio Aguinaldo. Those twenty years of American occupation have wrought a mighty change in the Philippines. When we went into the islands there was one railroad line, one hundred miles of railroad and four thousand miles of good automobile roads. Cholera, bubonic plague and small-pox used to sweep the islands with terrible effect. Our medical men have stamped them out. The peasants were near-slaves of the land owners; now four-fifths of the farming land is being cultivated by small owners. A public school system established by the Americans is gradually being taken over by the natives. Before our occupancy the Filipinos had no foreign trade; in 1918 their exports were valued at $135,682,536. Under Spanish rule government was arbitrary and graft-ridden; now the natives have a representative legislature.

Ready to Serve.

Do you appreciate what a "ready to serve" organization means?

It usually represents the work, experience and saving of years of one or more individuals.

Take a newspaper as an illustration. Too often its value to a town is underestimated by the leading citizens of the community.

Yet the dearest town in the world is the one without a newspaper.

The newspaper is called upon to support every public movement free of charge. It must help the church, it must lead the way for civic improvements and it must pioneer for all manner of new development enterprises.

When the good work has been done the "leading citizens" of the community sit back with a smile of satisfaction and too often take credit for the work which would have been impossible without a regularly issued daily or weekly newspaper.

Good times and bad, the paper must come out. Merchants threaten to discontinue advertising if necessary rate increases are made. Subscribers threaten to stop subscriptions if its policies do not agree with theirs.

But sooner or later every citizen in the community must have the services of the newspaper for some purpose or other. Little do they consider the trials of the average country editor in maintaining a "ready to serve" institution that is seldom thanked for the public good it is constantly doing, that is often cursed for no just cause, but that always comes out on schedule and is "ready to serve" in its field, although the requirements of the individual asking the service may come ten years apart.

BORAH WOULD USE DEBTS AS WEAPON

Defer Payments Until After Arms Conference, Is Plea—Armies Held
Too Large, Says Borah

Postponement of allied debt refunding until after the proposed disarmament conference was advocated in the senate Monday by Senator Borah.

If the foreign governments are unable to agree with the United States on a disarmament program, he said, "the American people will be justified in insisting that they promptly meet their debts and interest also."

The debt question, Senator Borah said, will play an important part, molding and shaping policies, whether it is mentioned or not. If the governments are to spend vast sums for armament, it would cause the United States to adopt an entirely different policy in case of a failure to agree on disarmament.

The leading debtor nations, the senator said, were amply able to pay the interest, even if it was necessary to defer the principal. He cited a recent loan by Great Britain to Argentina.

Congress did not propose to "abdicate all of its authority" over the allied debts, the senator said, and no more legislation is needed to collect either interest or principal, "if we are willing to come under limitations of interest and time of loans."
