Rev. Milo G. Bentley, who is conducting services in Scio, went to Providence last Sunday afternoon and delivered a sermon to the people of that community.

Posters were placed in and around Scio Monday announcing the biggest and best little county fair in Oregon, the Linn county fair, to be held Oct. 4 to 7 inclusive.

In both Oregon and Washington committees appointed by the governors of the two states are working on the problem of more equitable distribution of the tax burden.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Kula, of Shelburn, were business visitors in Scio last Tuesday. They have been quite busy making arrangements for a sale he will hold at his farm on Monday, Sept. 26.

State Foresters of both Oregon and Washington expect to continue activities looking for more complete slash disposal during the fall season. Federal aid through the Weeks law is available for this purpose.

Elmer Ray, of Jordan, was brought to the Scio hospital last Thursday and operated on for appendicitis. He is reported as doing nicely, despite the seriousness of the case. Dr. Prill performed the operation.

Joe Oupor, N. I. Morrisons right hand man, was in Albany Saturday night and Sunday in order to be with his father who is in hospital there. He drove over again Wednesday night, and reports his father is getting along nicely.

J. A. Reams, inspector for the Pacific Millers Fire Insurance agency at Seattle was a Scio business visitor Tuesday. He is firmly convinced that the bad business season is over, and that everything points to a sound financial return to pre-war standards.

N. I. Morrison was seen giving a pile of shingles that were parked in front of his store the "once over". A pile of lumber or shingles in front of Morrisons store always means improvements, and in this case it means a newly shingled roof.

Somehow, in performing the operation on Elmer Ray, of Jordan, Dr. Prill caused his finger to become infected, and as a result is carrying his whole arm in a sling. Though "Doe" does not believe it to be anything serious, he is taking no chances and is giving his hand the best of care.

Joe Oupor sr., a farmer living near Richardson bridge, was operated on at the St. Mary's hospital in Albany Monday morning for bladder trouble. He has been in the hospital for about three weeks and the doctors hoped that it would not be necessary to use the knife, but his case was such that it could not be cured otherwise.

The story that a case of sleeping sickness had been discovered near Scio was pronounced Monday by Dr. Prill to be "the bunk." It is his opinion that the case is nothing more serious than a severe case of nervous prostration, and that Mrs. Thomas, who is the afflicted one, will soon recover. Her breakdown is said to be caused by attempting to do two people's work during the summer.

William Gorger, formerly of Scio, but of late years a resident of Lone, Morrow county, together with his son Leo and daughter Minnie, drove down to Jordan for the dedication of the new Catholic church. Leaving Lone Thursday morning, they made Portland that night, and came on down here Friday. According to Leo, the roads are in A-1 condition and it was possible to make good time all the way.

Brass Rail Explained

We used to wonder just why a bar had to have a brass foot rail in front of it and we had to wait until prohibition hit us before we found out. The old brass footrail steadied your arm, my boy, and enabled you to lap up "just one more" without wobbling. How do we know? Well, read this item from Women's Wear: "A Chicago store recently increased its glove business by a simple mechanical device that has since been adopted by a well-known Philadelphia establishment. A brass rail was placed about six inches from the floor, running the full length of the glove counter. When a person tries on a pair of gloves the foot unconsciously rests on the brass rail, forming a brace, which steadies the arm and makes the fitting of gloves an easy matter."

TALKED WITH MONKEY "KING"

Buddhist Disciple Was Positive That the Animal Understood Speech He Addressed to Him.

A third degree disciple of Buddha who hails from the famous Yellow mountains (Huang Shan) says they are the home of tigers, wildcats, wild horses, goats, boars and an animal resembling a panther, with bristly hair and impervious skin—and monkeys.

The monkeys he divided into two classes, one the ordinary brown monkey with a tail, the other white breasted and white faced, with a gray back and but little smaller than a man. He intimated that this type manifested a degree of intelligence when spoken to, very much resembled man, and was talkative.

To this second class belongs what he called "the Great White Monkey King," ruler of all the beasts of the mountains, and described as being more than twenty feet tall, with arms ten feet long, four tusks each at least a foot long, a face and eyes proportionately large, and a voice that made the earth tremble whenever it spoke.

He said he had seen this great monkey king twice—once at a distance of half a ft. and once when he dropped down from a high cliff and stood within fifteen feet of it. On this occasion the monkey king was attended by five smaller monkeys.

He attempted to address them, whereupon they all sat down and gave respectful hearing, punctuating his remarks with assenting grunts which indicated that the message was being understood. When he had finished his speech the monkey king arose muttering something and started away.
