

INTEREST INCREASES IN TENT MEETINGS

Evangelist Bentley Holds Splendid Attention and Tent Is Crowded Nightly—Sunday Was Biggest Day

The past Sunday was, in the minds of most of the church-going people of Scio and the surrounding country, the most triumphant day of the revival meetings now being held by the Federated church. At the morning service the tent was crowded to the door in spite of the rain, and a large congregation attended the Activity meeting in the afternoon.

At the morning service Mr. and Mrs. Steinberg, of Albany, rendered a beautiful duet to a highly appreciative congregation.

The basket dinner served at the church was one of the best ever, even surpassing the big dinner at Jordan the week before, some of those who were present at both places say.

So far there has been no slackening of interest in the services, and Rev. Bentley is putting forth his best efforts in appreciation of the loyal support his congregations are giving him, and Mr. J. C. Austin, assistant director of Baptist activities in Oregon, who was present at Sunday's meeting, is highly elated with the progress thus far made. Pastor Her says not a word, but he wears a smile that just wont come off and keeps on a-workin'.

No closing date has been announced so far, and it is not expected the meetings will close for two more weeks.

At the evangelistic meeting Sunday night a representative of the Tribune saw two women bring children forward, then they turned around, in both cases with a laugh more of amusement than of a happiness that should come to a mother's heart under such circumstances. Twice women came to their husbands and asked them to go forward with them, and both times the husbands refused, and the wives did not go alone.

The Tribune man is an inquisitive fellow, and he asked this question of Rev. Boyce, of Lacombe, "Are women more intelligent than men, are men losing their supremacy over the world, or are they just plain moral cowards?" He then repeated what he had seen, and instantly Rev. Boyce's answer was "Men are moral cowards." We then asked the same question of Rev. Her, and he said "Women are more intelligent than man, and have time for thought on the subject. Woman's development in most cases is mental while man's development is physical." Rev. Bentley gave his opinion as "Women have a stick-to-it-iveness that men have not. This enables women to graduate from high schools and colleges while men graduate from dens of iniquity and vice. Is it not natural, then, that women should be the first to accept God, considering that religion appeals to intelligence and to the educated mind?" Last, but not least among those interviewed, was J. C. Austin, of Portland, who said, and we cannot help but believe he is right, "The woman's environment is her home, and the man's is his business. In order to succeed, a man must continually push himself forward, make new friends and new acquaintances, and he is not always able to select his associates—but he must put his business first. When his mind is not actively engaged on that business, it is tired and must rest in order to function properly on the next day. A woman in her home waits for people to call, she can accept or reject those who offer her their friendship, and thus makes a more select circle of friends than her husband. This tends to thought, religious as well as otherwise, and she is more perceptible to things religious than her husband. Man is no less intelligent, nor is he more of a moral coward, but he just simply does not understand that God and the study of His book are the greatest things in life."

Rev. Bentley's subjects for the immediate future will be: Friday night: "Procrastination". Saturday night: "Christ or Barabbas, Which?" Sunday: 10 a. m. Sunday school; 11: a. m. preaching; "How to Make A Success of our Christian Lives" Sunday evening: "Pitching our Tents"

Arbuckle and family gathered up all the "hot dogs" (sometimes called weenies) they could find and took them to Wilson Park last Thursday night for a real outdoors picnic. RIVERSIDE LOCALS

September 19

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Holt, of Dayton, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nicholson, of Salem, were Sunday visitors the 11th at J. G. Holts. Their son Cletus has returned from a few days spent in Portland, where he worked before he was called home by the serious illness of his father.

Chas. Hornbuckle, who has lived on the Ed Smith place the past two years, has moved to the Mackey place, near Lebanon.

J. S. Funk's have raised some of the largest tomatoes we have seen this season.

The evergreen blackberry, for years a pest, has at last come into its own. The agricultural college used to get hundreds of inquiries asking how to kill the plant, but now farmers are planting them instead. Leonard Gilkey, of Banner Farm, sold $360 worth of the wild berries. So much for the canneries even though berries were cheap.

Mrs. Gus Shieman is quite ill.

Elmer Whetstone received an injury to his foot when his horses became frightened at a yellow jackets nest and caught his foot in the drill. He has been going on a crutch.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Lytograph (and several young people) came from Salem to help in the Sunday service. They also brought their three daughters, the youngest, Willo Mae, had not been here before.

Miss Nora Holt, of Woodworth's store in Albany, and O. L. Holt and family, of Portland, spent Sunday, the 11th, under the parental roof at T. M. Holt's.

Eugene Titus, of Stayton, called in to see his cousins at Gilkey station as he was going to Lebanon.

The Farmers Union met Saturday evening at Riverside, with Mrs. Vada Whetstone acting as president. Ice cream was served.

Miss Helen Johnston has accepted a position as teacher of the fourth grade at Powers, near Marshfield.

We can now see the wisdom of the wild geese migrating south so early, when all our gardens were killed by frost September 11th.

Some of our people have been attending the tent meetings held in Scio.

Two Fires—No Damage

Last Friday morning about 10:30 the fire alarm rang out vigorously, and the fire laddies responded immediately. The cause of the alarm was the upsetting of a bucket of molten tar from the top of a stove in the rear of the Scio Meat Market and which workmen were preparing to spread on the roof of the market. The chemical apparatus was used instead of water, and the fire was soon extinguished. Practically no damage resulted.

This was the second fire alarm within twenty-four hours, the other one being on the roof of the N. I. Morrison hardware store about noon last Thursday. This fire was put out before the department arrived.

On account of the large volume of advertising this week, we are unable to run our story about the state fair and county fair, they being quite lengthy. The state fair begins next Monday, and the county fair on Tuesday, Oct. 4. The county fair story will appear next week. Attend both if possible.

Must Undergo Another Operation

Spencer Long, wife and baby, were in Albany Saturday making preparations to go to Portland, where he will have another operation on his chest for the removal of a growth caused by some sort of infection resulting from a severe attack of influenza while in the army, according to army doctors.

The first operation was performed about two years ago, but for some unknown reason the growth returned, making the second operation necessary now. He will never be able to do hard labor, and has been attending the O. A. C. for some time past preparing himself for a useful life. His many friends wish him good luck in this trying ordeal.

Arbuckle Pictures Withdrawn

John Weseley, manager of the People's Theatre received a letter from the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation stating that no more "Fatty" Arbuckle pictures would be released, and that those now in circuit would be withheld until he is proven innocent of the charges filed against him. Last Saturday the People's Theatre was to have shown "Fatty" Arbuckle in "The Traveling Salesman", but the picture was withheld and "The Whistle" was shown in its place.

George Rockwell Passes Away

George Rockwell, who died at Lyons Tuesday evening, September 13, of a lingering illness, was buried in Fox Valley cemetery Thursday. Mr. Rockwell was about 50 years of age and had lived at Lyons and Mill City for many years. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and the United Artesans lodges, and is survived by his widow and four grandchildren. The deceased was well known in Scio.

Club Booth Ready

All is in readiness excepting the final decorations at the booth to be occupied by the members of Linn county boys' and girls' clubs, at the state fair, said F. N. Williamson, county club leader, while in Scio last Thursday. The booth is located in the southeast corner of the educational building. County Agent Heyman and B. F. Sprague, of Millersburg, assisted in erecting the booth.

FEED MILL TO BE ERECTED IN SCIO

J. D. Densmore Is Having Plans Drawn For Large Plant and Expects to Start Building by Oct. 1st

J. D. Densmore, one of Scio's best boosters and a firm believer in its future, spent Friday and Saturday in Portland in conference with his engineers, J. L. Ross & Co., and during that time the dream of his life was matured and arrangements completed for the erection of an attrition feed mill in Scio by Mr. Densmore. Blueprints are being made and material gathered so that work of construction on the mill may be started by the first of October.

The total cost of the mill, according to the figures of J. L. Ross, will amount close to $2000, and when completed will be one of the best equipped feed mills in Oregon, and the third one to be erected in the Willamette valley.

No estimate has been made as to the amount of work the mill may do, but it is Mr. Densmore's opinion that its possibilities are unlimited, and that it is bound to grow from the day it is put in commission, about the middle of November.

This is just a beginning—watch Scio grow.

Demonstrated at Miller's

Last Thursday, F. N. Williamson, county club leader, and O. M. Nelson, of the department of animal husbandry, O. A. C., were present at the home of W. W. Miller, east of Scio, and assisted in one of the series of demonstrations being held by the Scio Angora Goat and Sheep Club. This club is doing good work in the way of taking care of their flocks and how best to prepare them for exhibition purposes.

The gentlemen demonstrated the correct way to clean the wool on a sheep of burs and how to trim it to the best advantage, and how to hold a sheep to make it give the best appearance when being judged. Much interest was taken in the demonstration and the work highly appreciated by the members present. Five members of the club are exhibiting animals at the state and county fairs.
