Some of the merchants in Scio are complaining about goods disappearing from their counters immediately after some of the larger girls of the town are in their stores. We are sorry to hear of such deprivations being committed by girls, and hope this little warning will cause them to be more considerate of other people's property and leave their hands off. These merchants say that they do not want to be compelled to resort to the law, but fear they will have to if this warning has no effect.

Last Saturday night J. P. Harrang a merchant of Foster, accompanied by his little daughter, Charlotte, got stalled on the hill to Snelburn, and had to come to Scio to get pulled out. In some manner he found his way to D. C. Thoms' home, and Mr. Thoms took his car out to assist in relieving the situation. He also got mired, and they had to send for help from some of the garages, and soon were back in town all covered with mud. Mr. Harrang proceeded on his way Sunday morning, glad of the help he had received here.

Tuesday about noon a large buck and doe breezed into town and found it best to travel on the walk of H. A. Ballin, at his home. They were somewhat scared at the sights they saw and soon made their way out of town. Mr. Ballin notified his friends of his visitors, and they turned out in large numbers to try and catch them, but the pair was too wily for the pursuers. It is thought that the heavy snow in the mountains drove them out where they could get something to eat, it being reported that snow is over two feet deep at Quartzville, and other places.

Russell Gives Figures

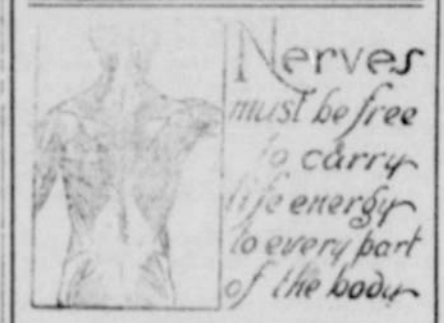

According to figures compiled by County Clerk Russell for the state highway commission, Linn county this year has received $582,214.56 for county road purposes and has spent $424,765.42. The figures for 1921 are Receipts, $623,017.09, expenditures $589,882.39; 1920 receipts $615,389.12, expenditures $565,324. The discrepancy between receipts and expenditures is explained by the fact that the court had requisitioned funds from various other funds for road purposes, and the balances are covered by outstanding warrants totaling more than $200,000.—Albany Herald.

Mrs. Riley Shelton entertained the lady teachers of the Scio schools at a dinner the first of last week, and all report a fine feed and a good time. Those present were: Misses Marie Skei, Etta Morcom, Esther Humphrey, Ruth Wirth, Frances Eckert, and Miss Grace Hovenden, of Portland, who is a cousin of Miss Humphrey, and was on her way home from the "homecoming" at Corvallis.
