Oregon Made Home Knitting Yarns
 A great surprise for the home knitters of Oregon, but still a fact. Furthermore, this yarn is absolutely virgin wool yarn; the wool was grown in Linn county, sold by Mr. Sanders to the Oregon Woolen Company (mills located at Selma); made into worsted yarn by Roy T. Bishop, son of C. P. Bishop, proprietor of the Woolen Mill Store of Salem. Oregon knitters try this yarn out. All colors. 45c per ball of 2 ozs. Samples sent on application. Address C. P. Bishop, Box 78, Salem, Oregon.

Out of the calamity which has befallen Astoria will arise a bigger and better city, and the people of the state will render all assistance possible. While it is deplorable that so large a loss should be entailed, it will reflect itself with more substantial buildings and a cleaner city.

President Harding is having a hard time in holding his party in line, as is evidenced from reports coming from Washington. It might be easier if he would recommend what is good for the whole people and not just a few. The latest break is from his recommendation to pass the ship subsidy bill, giving private owners of ships a guarantee of millions of dollars taken the pockets of the taxpayers.

Christmas is but eleven days away and Santa Claus is looking for good boys and girls of all ages. But where will he find them? There is a beautiful lesson in this season of good cheer, and few there are who remembers it from season to season. How much better it would be if the happiness and good cheer spread at this time could be extended over the whole twelve months. We have decided not to publish any souvenir edition this year, because the one of last year cost us more than we received out of it, but we wish all a Merry Christmas.

In another column will be found an announcement by City Marshall N. I. Morrison, calling attention to the enforcement of city ordinances and state laws. He has given this public notice and taken no steps toward enforcing them until the people have been duly warned. This is as it should be. There is no snap judgment taken, and wholesale arrests made by reason of no information. It is true that all ordinances are not well known by the people, but there can be no excuse, for all have ample time to familiarize themselves with the requirements of the city. All interested can find these ordinances at the city recorder's office.

The escape of Clara Phillips from the Los Angeles jail some days ago has baffled the great sleuths of that city as they have never been baffled before. She was under sentence of from ten years to life for killing a woman with a hammer some months ago. How she ever sawed her way out of jail with a guard in close proximity to her cell is also a mystery. But it takes some one of the gentler sex to slip a big hood over the eyes of the detectives of a great city, and this is one of the enigmas of the times. Suspicion has pointed to Mrs. Obenschein and to Mr. Phillips, the latter being held as accomplice of the escape. Mrs. Obenschein had been freed of murder of a man named Kennedy the day before the escape, and was being entertained at the home of a friend. Probably Clara took wings and flew away, who knows—the police don't seem to know any way.

Worms

Rev. Denkspeil gives the readers of the Tribune a sermon on worms:

Dear brothers and sisters scattered abroad throughout the domain wherever the Tribune is read.

We greet you this lovely Lord's day morning to talk to you on the all important subject of worms. Now my good brothers and sisters, you know worms are very pestiferous things. We have ambiscuous worms, hairy worms, sleek worms, angle worms, grub worms and worms of many kinds and colors. Lazy worms, industrious worms, fat worms and lean worms, worms living off of other worms, which in similitude represents humanity as worms. But the particular worms we want to call your attention to this morning is the "skin worm," and wish to call your attention to passages in holy writ found in the book of Job, 19:26 verse. "And though after my skin worms destroy this body. Yet in my flesh, shall I see God?" Job, 24:20. "The worms shall feed sweetly on him he shall no more be remembered."

Now my beloved friends, we have many skin worms in this old world, and many sinners too, and we should be consoled in the thought. "They shall no more be remembered." Halleluja!

We hate to admit we are so morally rotten.

In a few years at most, we'll all be forgotten.

A hole in the ground, where they tumble us in.

"Where the worms will crawl out, and the worms will crawl in, Will be crawling about, all over our chin

They will invite all their neighbors, and their friend's neighbors too."

To feed on the carcass, of both me and you.

Our goal will be reached, and our funerals preached.

And the worms will be tickled, to have such good eats.

Then at the last, when they've all gotten through.

They will shout halleluja, they've had such a chow.

The chills and the shivers, crawl up our backs.

When we think of these gruesome, cold solid facts.

Who cares for our bones, or our flesh when its rotten.

Or envy the worms, for the feast they have gotten.

For this is the end of all flesh we are told.

According to Job, in a book that is old.

When flesh life is ended, the spirits unfold

And worms never feast, in the home of the soul.

Spending Much Money

Those who have studied the question of State development and better advertising for Oregon, point to the great need of more national advertising for Oregon products. Many of our readers probably saw in last week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post a double page center spread advertisement in colors for the Oregon City Woolen Mills. In two different issues of the Saturday Evening Post this year the Oregon City Woolen Mills have taken this great advertisement, which is the largest and most expensive advertisement in the world. It's cost is $17,000 per issue, but the Oregon City Woolen Mills have found, as have many other advertisers, that by putting the merit of their products squarely before the nation, they have enlarged their business and thus absorbed the cost of advertising in the economies of operation.

This advertising for the Oregon City Woolen Mills is handled by Botsford-Constantine Company, the leading national advertising agency of the Northwest, with offices at Portland and Seattle. Botsford-Constantine Company are also conducting large advertising campaigns in all parts of the country for such products as Tillamook Cheese, Hood River Apples, Snowflake Crackers, Albers Cereals, Mapleine, Jantzen Swimming Suits, Goodyear Rubber Footwear, and others.

Oregon is rapidly approaching the point where we should have many other nationally advertised products, particularly our fruits, salmon, lumber, etc. It is estimated that California cooperative association and such products as the Del Monte canned goods are spend-around six million dollars a year for national advertising. This has helped to build the wonderful reputation for California products which exists in all parts of the world.

Romans First Pleasure Tourists.
 Traveling for pleasure came into vogue in the peaceful years of the Roman empire, says the Scientific American. Historic places and natural curiosities were sought out and famous groves and grottoes visited. The Romans seemed to have preferred these gentler aspects of nature, and had little appreciation of towering heights and plunging canyons.

Gifts for a Man from a Man's Store
 (A secret, womenfolk!)

Even a little thing can carry with it a big thought. Certainly the "one big thing" is most to be desired but the small one will be heartily appreciated if thoughtfully presented.

A new suit or overcoat is as fine a gift as one can imagine; but you may want to give him something else in wearing apparel.

In selecting the little things as well as the big ones, make sure they reflect the right spirit. Get them here and he'll be pleased, for this is a man's store for a man's gift.

MAY WE SUGGEST:
 Slippers Shirts Robes Neckwear Hosiery
 Gloves Kechiefs Sweaters Mufflers

Anything and everything he would buy for himself.
