Oregon Made Home Knitting Yarns

A great surprise for the home knitters of Oregon, but still a fact. Furthermore, this yarn is absolutely virgin wool yarn; the wool was grown in Linn county, sold by Mr. Senders to the Oregon Worsted Company (mills located at Sellwood), made into worsted yarn by Roy T. Bishop, son of C. P. Bishop, proprietor of the Woolen Mill Store of Salem. Oregon knitters try this yarn out. All colors, 45c per ball of 2 ozs. Samples sent on application. Address C. P. Bishop, Box 75, Salem, Oregon.

Bible Thought Today

THE HIGH CALLING--: Be ye therefore perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect. —Matthew 5:48.

Love is the quality that persuades a girl to quit a good job waiting on customers and take a life job waiting on one man.—Exchange

In an exchange we see that Marion county is to do 300 miles of paving this year and that Salem is to have a Ford assembling plant.

Sara Bernhardt, the best loved actress of the whole world, died Monday night at her home in Paris, after having fought bravely for life for weeks. She had been upon the stage longer than any other person, male or female, and was known to everybody. She was the exponent of all that was good and will be missed.

Quick work was made in disposing of the murder case of young Vanderzanden, of Washington county, when he plead guilty to second degree murder Monday and was sentenced to life imprisonment. The young man last fall killed an old man for what he thought was money hidden in the house, but was frightened away before he could get the loot. The pleading of guilty saved Washington many thousand dollars, and is being commended for the act of so pleading.

A barbers war was in effect for several days in Lebanon last week, and the end is not yet in sight. One barber announced that he would keep open all night if need be to accommodate the great number of his friends who are in the habit of remaining up at all hours, in order to keep his patrons. From 50c for a hair cut to 25c and from 25c to 15c for a shave is the result. We all want everything as cheap as we can get it, but a rate war is no way to get it. No one appreciates a man that will try to get business by an unfair method, no more than they do a profiteer—both are alike in dire results. Everybody likes to see everybody else prosper, get a fair price for what he or she does, and then live and let live. Maybe prices for tonsorial work was a little high, but if the boss barbers had gotten together and worked out a solution, each one would have felt better and peace been supreme.

HAPPINESS IN THE DISCARD

Two old people on a farm in a distant state, offered $10,000 to a girl to take care of them until they died. The girl left after a year's trial and went back to the city. She said that she wanted to get married and she couldn't stand the loneliness of farm life.

Poor girl, and poor old people! They could not learn the secret of how to be happy together.

Of course, girls will want to get married; but they do not need to go to town for a husband. Of course girls will get lonely sometimes; but a healthy mind and a wholesome heart are good company enough.

Here was a girl who was to get a fortune—to be actually paid for living on a farm. There are millions of girls who live on farms for nothing. There are millions in city streets who yearn for a quiet lane and a sight of the fields.

Here was a girl who had both hands full of potential happiness, and yet spilled the package and left it behind her while she ran back to the moving pictures and crowded factories of the city. You can't buy happiness and you can't expect a tango dancer to enjoy petting Bossy the cow and hitching old Tom the horse to the plow.

Yet there are singing girls all over this country who lovingly wait on the old folks and whose feet jump joyfully toward the barn or the chicken-coop or the beehive. Life on the farm is the life of nature, and nature's children are happy there on a thousand things that cannot be bought with mere money.

IT MUST NOT BE

We are told that a noted minister has flatly denounced that sacred and well-known institution, Sunday night sparking. Great heavens! What on earth is the matter with the old grouch—for he must surely be old? Would life, at a particular age, be worth the living without it? Answer, no. What man lives who has no tender memories of those Sunday nights, in the long ago, when he took her home from church and was invited in "for a while"? If such man lives it's a 30-to-1 shot he's a crusty old bachelor. It is our unvarnished opinion that any man who is a woman-hater never knew one—a real one. Has your youth never been sweetened by a Sunday night kiss, stolen from lips unwilling—but not too unwilling? If not you have missed half of your life; yes nine-tenths of it. Don't you remember those cool autumn Sunday nights, low-burning fire, low-burning lamp? That lamp and that fire will cast a soft and cheerful glow on your path all the way to the grave. No, we will not give up this age-old institution—NEVER. Our fathers did it, as did our grandfathers and great-grandfathers and their fathers before them. Generations may come and they may go, but the ancient custom of the Sunday night kiss goes on forever.

High Yields Important

Growers of vegetables who plant an acreage for a cannery or dehydrator carefully consider all of the important factors that go to make a high yield of the vegetable they are growing.

High grade seed, a soil naturally fertile and in some cases additionally fertilized with manure and commercial fertilizers, as well as irrigation possibilities directly determine high yields.

Low yields will make the overhead costs too high for much if any profit. High yields correspondingly reduce the overhead cost per ton.

J. F. WESELY, Grocer

Cabbage is a good example of the comparative value of low and high yields when it is being grown on a contract basis at so much per ton.

As a matter of suggestion to the parties who give dances in this neighborhood: Why not try an old fashioned dance once in awhile, where the old timers can go and dance the lances, the squares or the Virginia reel? Might take and might not, but worth trying.
