

Curtis Hop Ranch

Situated about six miles Northwest of Jefferson or about one and one-half miles west of Talbot.

30 acres of hops, good camp grounds, tents and shacks, tables, benches, sawed wood and clean straw furnished free.

Groceries will be delivered to camp grounds once a day. Fresh vegetables can be procured from a neighbor.

Picking will begin about Sept. 1st and continue about three weeks. We will pay the prevailing price for picking. The hops will run about 2,000 pounds to the acre.

Durbin & Cornoyer, Salem, Ore.

We are registering pickers for this yard at the Tribune office.

Oregon Made Home Knitting Yarns

A great surprise for the home knitters of Oregon, but still a fact. Furthermore, this yarn is absolutely virgin wool yarn; the wool was grown in Linn county, sold by Mr. Senders to the Oregon Worsted Company (mills located at Sellwood), made into worsted yarn by Roy T. Bishop, son of C. P. Bishop, proprietor of the Woolen Mill Store of Salem. Oregon knitters try this yarn out. All colors. 45c per ball of 2 ozs. Samples sent on application. Address C. P. Bishop, Box 75, Salem, Oregon.

ALL OUR CHILDREN MUST HAVE A DECENT CHANCE

Two children are born side by side, free and equal. One within the city limits, the other just across the imaginary corporation line. The one will go to school in the city in a modern, well-heated, well-ventilated school building under the direction of many professionally trained teachers for nine months in the year. The other may go to a little, ramshackle, one-room school, poorly heated and lighted, insanitary, and breathe into his nostrils vile contagion from the dirty floors; taught by one uncouth, mediocre teacher, who has 35 recitations per day with less than nine minutes per recitation, for a period of only five or six months in the year. The one has Sunday schools, society, hears good preaching and is constantly in touch with all the broadening influences of the entire country. The other lives like a terrapin, sticks out his head, looks about and goes back into his shell to live his narrow existence.

Where these conditions are found there is often an estranged feeling which exists between the people of the cities and the people of the rural districts. Such sections ought to have one board of education, and one superintendent of schools to administer justly, fairly and equally to all of its citizens, both within and without the city.

It is difficult for us to understand how some people now fight the building of roads, schools and churches with the excuse that their tax burdens are greater than they can bear. If it is necessary to double, triple or quadruple your taxes today in order to give your children a decent chance to live a full and happy life, then there is no way by which you can sidestep the issue.

GLARING HEADLIGHTS

And what has become of the old fashioned car driver who used to dim his glaring headlights when passing another auto? Two or three years ago huge sums of money were spent in buying new lenses which were supposed to prevent glare. Every car had to be equipped with the new lenses, and it certainly sounded like a sensible idea. It worked satisfactory to a degree, but the idea seems to have been lost sight of. Headlights are more glaring than ever, and the custom of dimming has become a lost art.

The way it is now, when two cars pass at night, there is a certain space during which the drivers can only hope that they are on the road, or that no obstacle is directly in front of them. It seems to the Tribune that the laws regarding headlights should be strictly enforced. There seems to be no reason why the cars should not be equipped with lights which will not blind the driver of an approaching car. And the courtesy of dimming might also be revived with no harm resulting.

On the face of the opinion as rendered by Attorney General VanWinkle, school patrons of districts of the third class, such as Scio, will have no say in its budget. If the county tax supervision and conservation commission wishes to levy enough taxes to keep the district up to standard and out of debt, then it will be worth while and the law beneficial, otherwise the law is bad and takes away local autonomy. For freak laws and an abridgement of freedom, this law takes the concrete toothbrush.

All this talk about curtailing production on the farm in order to bring about a reasonable price for the produce is the bunk. If returns from the labor on the farm are not soon equalized, no farmer will be able to produce—he will be broke. Agitation for greater production with a remunerative price is both reasonable and practicable. The farmer is not a seeker for charity in the way of subsidies—he wants and is entitled to the fruits of his labors, nothing more.

In Society

Mrs. Jess Rodgers entertained a number of friends at her home Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. Rodgers' cousin, Mrs. Bernice Wooten of Phoenix, Ariz. A delightful evening was spent at cards and other amusements.

The Cascara market is showing a wonderful come-back from the slump that began in 1920 and reached the low level in 1921 and 1922. The market today shows the greatest activity known in the history of the business with the exception of the boom period following the war. The peeling season extends well toward the end of September.

The field man for the Oregon Cooperative Grain Growers was in Scio last week and made arrangements with the Scio Mill & Elevator Co. to handle the Association wheat; also to furnish the sacks to the members. This will be good news to the membership, we believe.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Densmore and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robinson and daughter of Salem drove to Forest Grove Sunday and visited the Masonic home.

Proper Protection!

Our lines of furnishings, for men, women and children, is the best we can buy, and we believe you are receiving proper protection in price and quality when you come here. Our lines include hosiery, work and dress shirts, ties, collars, etc., etc. Look elsewhere, get prices, and we know you will buy here.

We are in the market for chittim bark, and are paying the going price. Get your supply of sacks here, 3½c each.

J. F. WESELY, Grocer

WE want your Cascara or Chittim Bark, and have the price to get it.

Parties having large lots will not make a mistake in seeing us before selling. We are in the market to BUY.
