Evergreens are here again with a bountiful harvest, whether markets are favorable or not. Thus the good and bad seems to be going hand in hand till some process of readjustment takes effect, but who can say when?

We must say one of our most popular young men has recently become obsessed to paint things red. We had felt assured such characters dwelt only in novels; but now comes our gentle Sylvester Bender, who is giving his mill a beautiful coat of red trimmed in white. But as "Syl" has many good merits to his past career, we for this first deviation, look over the rashness and call it very good. Oregon Mist
