

Oregon Made Home Knitting Yarns

A great surprise for the home knitters of Oregon, but still a fact. Furthermore, this yarn is absolutely virgin wool yarn; the wool was grown in Linn county, sold by Mr. Senders to the Oregon Worsted Company (mills located at Sellwood), made into worsted yarn by Roy T. Bishop, son of C. P. Bishop, proprietor of the Woolen Mill Store of Salem. Oregon knitters try this yarn out. All colors. 45c per ball of 2 ozs. Samples sent on application. Address C. P. Bishop, Box 75, Salem, Oregon.

THOSE WHO WON'T WORK

Generally speaking, there is now a job in this country for every man who wants one. This holds true in almost every community shall profit accordingly terprising city of 50,000 people is determined that the industrious members of the community shall profit accordingly without having to support any idlers. He is having a list made of all the able-bodied loafers in town and holding it for future reference. The loafers are duly warned that if they apply for help next winter, as many of them have done in previous winters, there will be "nothing doing."

This is a commendable policy, if carried out with proper discrimination. It is a historic American principle, handed down from colonial days, that "he who will not work shall not eat." There is less need of that drastic rule now than there was in the days of pioneer hardship or during the recent war, yet it is as just as it ever was, and as wholesome for those to whom it is applied.

Let professional loafers be discouraged, by every means possible, in time of plenty as in times of stress. Then, when genuine need does come, it will be less severe.

State Market report

C. E. Spence, Market Agent.

It is indeed an extraordinary economic condition that wages and all living expenses should steadily advance, month after month, while the products of the farm, on which the millions depend for food, are so low that most of them bring less than the cost of production to the growers.

All industries except agriculture are generally prosperous; there is nation-wide demand for labor, and wages in most industries are high. Farming alone seems to have collapsed. Wheat at one dollar a bushel, with other farm products at present prices, would be all right for producers if other products were in proportion. As the unjust situation now is, the grower gets less than it costs him to produce wheat, beef, apples, small fruits and many other products, while he has to pay nearly double for implements and other working and living necessities.

A binder that cost the farmer $175 in 1914 now costs $260, according to the statistics of Charles T. Michaels; a sulkey plow that was $35 is now $54; a wagon that retailed for $80 before the war now costs $135 and labor that cost the farmer $1.50 per day now comes at double that scale.

Wheat at 90 cents per bushel to the farmer, when freight is deducted, is 1½ cents per pound, while the wholesale price on middling ($38 at this writing, $36 at the mill) is nearly two cents per pound—a higher price than the grower gets for his whole wheat. While the grower gets but 1½ cents for wheat the price of flour is nearly four cents per pound and the price of bread from seven to nine cents.

There is far too great a spread between the producer and consumer.

Farm co-operators have a great opportunity in their organizations to invade this middle profit field and reorganize the wasteful and expensive system. Consumers have equal opportunity to co-operate with the growers and come half way for the products. With the two-thirds middle expenses between them cut the barest necessary expense, and with perhaps producers and consumers being their own middle men between the grower and the retailer, then price-control on the part of the farmer to the extent of a fair return for his labor, would not add to the high retail prices, against which the homes are now protesting.

Our Platform

We believe in our town, community and its people; in our store its goods and fair prices.

We believe that honesty is not only the best policy but also the only means to success and happiness.

We believe in courtesy, kindness, generosity, good cheer, friendship and honest competition.

We believe life too short and holds too much to be made solely a matter of dollars and cents.

We believe success should be the aim of every man and the measure of his ability.

We believe a store should be judged by the quality of its service.

We believe in advertising. That it is not wisdom to keep ones light under a bushel.

We believe in practicing in what we preach, and that if you get acquainted with us and the business principals for which we stand you will stand up at all times for our store, our town and our community to your full measure.

Yours to Live and Let Live.
