

Oregon Made Home Knitting Yarns

A great surprise for the home knitters of Oregon, but still a fact. Furthermore, this yarn is absolutely virgin wool yarn; the wool was grown in Linn county, sold by Mr. Senders to the Oregon Worsted Company (mills located at Sellwood), made into worsted yarn by Roy T. Bishop, son of C. P. Bishop, proprietor of the Woolen Mill Store of Salem. Oregon knitters try this yarn out. All colors. 45c per ball of 2 ozs. Samples sent on application. Address C. P. Bishop, Box 75, Salem, Oregon.

A good road begins to wear out from the first instant it is used. It needs constant attention and repair. Little breaks in the road, if repaired now, mean a great saving, whereas if they are left they become large breaks, which mean an enormous expense in the future.

Most road officials are competent, and want to repair the road. A few are indifferent, once the road is built. But no official is either neglectful or indifferent to the great force of public opinion.

Boys and girls who travel over the new good road, can help. Watch the road. Look out for the bad places. Keep your eyes open for the spot where the surface has "raveled" or worn off, showing the basic rock beneath. Look out for the uneven ridge, the "waving" which sometimes occurs in oiled roads. As soon as you see any such spot, note carefully exactly where it is, so that you can describe the location accurately on paper. Then write a letter to the road official who has charge of that stretch of road, and tell him about it.

You may think that a State road official will not pay any attention to your letter. If he is the right kind of a road official—and most of them are such—he will not only pay attention to it, but write and thank you for your good citizenship. Our road officials are normally hard working, intelligent men, who want to repair the road and keep it in condition.

If he is glad to get your letter, he will repair the road at once. If he happens not to be the right kind of a man, if he happens not to be the right kind of a man, if he isn't competent, write to him again.

Get George, John, Jack, Alice, Gertrude and Mary to write to him. If he still doesn't pay any attention to it come to this newspaper, ask for the Editor and tell him about the raveled place. Tell him that you have written the road official—tell him how many times, and the names of all your companions who also wrote. He will write the road official himself, and if that individual still doesn't do his duty, this newspaper will publish the facts of the raveled place and that the road official was repeatedly told of it. The way that road official will then make speed on repairing that raveled place will be funny!

Ex-Service Women cared for

Ex-service women of the World War, in need of medical treatment or domiciliary care, will hereafter be taken care of in government institutions even though their disabilities are not due to war service, according to an announcement made today by L. C. Jesseph, northwest district manager of the United States Veterans' Bureau. Arrangements are being made in the Seattle, Portland, Spokane and Boise offices of the bureau to take care of such applicants immediately, he stated.

The War department has advised the director of the Veterans' Bureau that special homes have been established at Danville, Illinois, and Milwaukee, Wisconsin for disabled ex-service women. Mr. Jesseph said, "We have been instructed to accept entrance applications from women in this district. The applications must have been honorably discharged. Admission to either of these homes does not necessitate permanent residence as the women may be discharged upon their own request or when cured. Transportation to the designated home is furnished by the government to all eligible applicants.

The action means that Soldiers' Home privileges are now to be extended to ex-service women on exactly the same status as men, a condition which heretofore has not prevailed. From the record of disallowed cases on file with the Veterans' Bureau, it is estimated that 450 women will seek admission to the newly established homes within a very short time.

Sheep Killing Dogs

It is said that over three hundred dollars worth of sheep have been killed or mutilated by dogs, on one farm alone within the last year. One man came here from Portland and went into the sheep business on this same place and after three raids by dogs that he could not catch, after a loss of over one hundred and thirty dollars he became disgusted, sold out and went back to Portland. Since then dogs have done over two hundred dollars worth of damage by killing or mutilation. This is an unnecessary loss to stockmen due to the carelessness of dog owners.
