

A Rat That Didn't Smell After Being Dead for Three Months

"I swear it was dead three months," writes Mr. J. Sykes (N. J.). "I saw this rat every day; put some KAL-SNAP behind a barrel. Months afterwards, my wife looked behind the barrel. There it was—dead! KAL-SNAP sells in three sizes for 50c, 65c, $1.25. Sold and guaranteed by Kelly's Drug Store, Scio, Oregon."

Oregon Made Home Knitting Yarns

A great surprise for the home knitters of Oregon, but still a fact. Furthermore, this yarn is absolutely virgin wool yarn; the wool was grown in Linn county, sold by Mr. Senders to the Oregon Worsted Company (mills located at Sellwood), made into worsted yarn by Roy T. Bishop, son of C. P. Bishop, proprietor of the Woolen Mill Store of Salem. Oregon knitters try this yarn out. All colors, 45c per ball of 2 ozs. Samples sent on application. Address C. P. Bishop, Box 75, Salem, Oregon.

A LAMENT

For the past two or three years or longer there has been considerable lamenting by the people in general because they are not treated fairly in buying or selling that which they produce or purchase for reselling. This is partially because of lack of confidence in one another. Lack of confidence begets fear and often leads to hatred and condemnation.

There are several ways to prevent this sort of feeling, and one is really getting acquainted with each other. One will often send away for stuff to other parts of the country, and not know to whom they are sending, but through imagination feel they are getting better treatment than they would receive at home. The sending away for such stuff as one may need, takes money away from the community that never returns, and the more that goes out leaves the community that much poorer and does not help in paying taxes or improving one's home place by the addition of needed buildings and does not pay rent or interest on any investment made in the community.

There are in Scio some business men and others who send away for their printing, their groceries, their clothes, and almost all other supplies needed in their business or in their homes. This entails extra cost upon these parties which goes out from their own community probably never to return, and does not help in solving what a good many call hard times at home. To illustrate what we mean by sending money away from home:

In the spring of 1922 the Tribune sent away for samples of high school invitation, announcements, and other material generally used by graduates, and these arrived two months ahead of graduation time, but the students could not wait until the samples arrived, so ordered from an Ohio institution the supplies they needed. The Tribune could have saved them 50 per cent of the cost they paid to the Ohio printing office, but the order had been given and mailed, so they paid twice what it would have cost them here in Scio. The next year, or 1923, we did not send for samples, and consequently we did not even get a chance to talk to the students about their programs, invitations and other stuff. This year we did send for samples, and the next day after they arrived we learned the order had been placed with an outside firm, because, we believe, the firm agreed to take a small space in their coming annual. If the Tribune was not capable of handling most every kind of printing that is required here, it would not mention the above, but as it is able to do the work, it feels that this office should be given all preference where everything else is equal. If they are saving, and they do not know they are, the difference in what the Tribune would have charged them, and in addition got the advertising, the Tribune would have nothing to say, but we know they are paying more than the Tribune would have charged them, and the parents must foot the bill. Some local merchants are doing the same thing, and we know they pay more for their printing than they would pay here. But if they feel they are getting more for their money away from home than at home, well and good, but that print shop is spending no money here, is not paying any taxes here, does not buy groceries, gasoline, stoves, or anything from any merchant in Scio.

The Scio Tribune stands for the community all the time, and it boosts for the citizens of the entire community without business favors as well as with business favors. It has never attacked any person in private or in public, and it feels that what little business is given out in the printing line should come to it. It has lost some subscribers recently because the Tribune is the local correspondent to the Albany papers, and the reader can and does get the Scio news therein. We do not object to this, if the Albany papers are paying taxes in this community, and are helping to keep the community alive and awake—everybody should be patriotic enough to take one or the other of the county seat papers, and keep posted upon county seat news, which we cannot give the reader.

And what applies to the Tribune applies to all other lines of activity—farmer, business man, printer. Your problem is our problem, and if all would pull together the community would be richer and happier, and all would be prosperous.

Seldom does the Tribune get a sale bill from this community, as it usually goes to the town from where the auctioneer is employed. Personal pride, a desire to see the local printing office succeed, should prompt every citizen within this community who proposes a public sale to have his printing done at home, when it is a fact money can be saved by so doing. Why send away for things you can get at home anyway? Does the party, parties or firm send here for your milk, butter, wheat, hay, oats, hogs, stoves, farm machinery or anything that we have for sale? Not on your tin type, nor do they usually extend credit when we need it, but our local business houses do that after we have spent all our ready cash in Portland, Albany, Chicago or New York. 'Tis sweet if you don't weaken, but no one of us locally can help but weaken when such things take place practically every day.

There is about $1200 due on subscriptions at the present time, and to most of those statements have been mailed, but no response has been received from them. If our readers knew how badly we need the money, we believe they would come in and settle up. You know the editor has just gone through five months of sickness, and this took over $1500, and used all the money we had saved through the building and loan association at Salem, and about $500 more, which is our sick indebtedness, to say nothing of the other indebtedness that has naturally crept in. The editor has tried to keep a stiff front, but those who are crowding us, and as we do not want to crowd any of our friends, we are asking them to make a hard effort to pay at least something on the account. Can't you do it? We would surely appreciate it.

Is there anything in colors? Do they reflect the feelings of the people in a community where the houses, stores and other buildings are of a drab or dark color? This question has no doubt been asked many times and no doubt as many times answered in one's own mind. For instance, you see a person dressed in black, your thought naturally gives way to the belief that the person is in mourning or despair. If the colors of wearing apparel are not loud but of a cheerful nature, you will find enclosed therein a cheerful nature. If the colors are dark and dreary, in the paintings of our homes and business houses, we then naturally think that the town or city is about dead or dreaming. Nothing adds more to one's enjoyment of one's home town than its cheerfulness, and to be cheerful we must put on cheerful clothing, paint our homes in a cheerful color and we will surely be cheerful. And it is just as easy to be cheerful as gloomy, and it doesn't cost any more.

When they get through with that oil probe by the senate, we should not be surprised but that Coolidge will be brought into the limelight. Already it has been learned that some of his appointees since taking office are tainted with oil, one having until recently been vice-president of the Sinclair Co. Well, well, who next. Certainly it will not be the editor of the Tribune, for he has never been able to get far enough with any of the higher ups to even get his foot on the first rung.

George E. Chamberlain has been appointed by Attorney General Daugherty to look after his political interests in the pending oil investigation against him. George ought to make a good defender for Daugherty, for has't he been in the senate and knows the outs and ins pretty well?

William Gibbs McAdoo has asked the U. S. government for a license to operate a broadcasting station at his home in Los Angeles. Guess all listeners in Los Angeles will be successful in getting the permit.

All is peaceful and serene along the banks of the Willamette at Harrisburg, all because Lane county is going to do her share of the bridge building there.

Barnyard manure applied now to the home orchard or garden soil will be of greater benefit than if applied later. Manuring may be done at this time if the ground is not so wet as to cause it to later bake or harden due to the hauling over it. Well rotted manure is preferred to the fresh.
