A Dream

Under the above heading will appear several articles on timely topics, and we ask our readers to read them whether you agree or not. Exchange of ideas and beliefs hurt no one, and oftentimes much good results.—Editor.

Dream Four

In traveling about in this wonderful of my dream, I noticed a great many fine buildings, that for the time seemed unoccupied, with beautiful shade trees and walkways with many beautiful flowers and roses growing upon either side. These are your school buildings and grounds, I should judge.

Yes. We have the best school and educational system in the world. Our government publishes all its common school textbooks and furnishes them at actual cost to the people, which makes them very cheap. All examinations are uniform both for pupils and teachers, according to grade, and whoever passes for teacher upon the papers sent by the government can teach anywhere and for life. Teachers are given good wages. Teachers below and including the 8th grade receives $1000 per year; from the 8th grade and including the 12th grade, $1500 per year; in the higher and college courses, $2000 to $2500, and are definitely fixed at these prices.

That is sure much better than our educational system in my country. How about your churches? I don't see any costly buildings that I recognize as being built for such service.

We have no high salaried preachers to support. We have many buildings, as you notice, scattered all over the country. These are what are called community buildings, conducted on the open forum plan, where we hold all kinds of meetings. Sometimes a preacher comes and gives a talk on civic righteousness, and where all the people who desire can come together and discuss any subject relative to the administration of justice and education to all its people. We have only one religious maxim, and that seems to meet all our needs, and all try to work in harmony with that maxim. We cherish it and try to live to its admonition—"Out of every nation, kindred and tongue, he that loves God and works righteousness is accepted of him"—so we have no church quarrels, no theological controversies, but all seem to imbibe the spirit of our religious maxim as being sufficient among men. We have but few prisons and jails in this country, and few criminal actions of any kind. As all classes of labor receive good wages and have sufficient money to buy what they need, there is no incentive to rob, steal or pilfer. Poverty breeds crime; crime begets heavy court expenses and costly police force; relieve poverty, and crime ceases. We have no standing army of implements of warfare. Pruning hooks and plowshares takes the place of guns and ammunition. Our imports and exports of commodities are conducted wholly upon the principle of reciprocity and good fellowship exists with all nations with which we have any dealings.

My dream and vision ended in the pleasant awakening that some time, in my own country, it would be fulfilled; and its people all become happy, prosperous and contented, with the promise that I would sometime tell them something of my own country. Goodbye people, goodbye wonderland!

My dream and vision has been a very pleasant one of your country, and long after the editor of the little Scio Tribune, with his efforts to build up a better community feeling and the possible advantages for the future prosperity of the Forks of the Santiam country, and the Dreamer have passed away, the visions may in part become a reality. Upon the wreck and ruin now staring our own country in the face, without a hasty reformation in all lines of its functionary operations, a final collapse is sure facing the end and final destiny of our beloved America, from the fall of which there will be a new government formed and fashioned after many things in the Dreamer's Vision.
