Oregon Made Home Knitting Yarns

A great surprise for the home knitters of Oregon, but still a fact. Furthermore, this yarn is absolutely virgin wool yarn; the wool was grown in Linn county, sold by Mr. Senders to the Oregon Worsted Company (mills located at Sellwood), made into worsted yarn by Roy T. Bishop, son of C. P. Bishop, proprietor of the Woolen Mill Store of Salem. Oregon knitters try this yarn out. All colors. 45¢ per ball of 2 ozs. Samples sent on application. Address C. P. Bishop, Box 75, Salem, Oregon.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run-down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Combined Treatment, both local and internal, and has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over forty years. Sold by all druggists.

If marriage is lottery, and gambling is illegal, is marriage legalized because it is a sort of board of trade?

Congressman Hawley says business is too pressing to come back to Oregon and look after his candidacy in the primaries. Willis is quite sure of nomination, however.

On the democratic ticket for U. S. Senator, will be found the names of Milton A. Miller, Will King and S. B. Strayer, the two former from Portland and the latter from LaGrande. Miller being a former Linn county citizen, no doubt will carry this county.

Through Commissioner Thoms, the West Scio road has been put in good shape, and it will be kept that way if the road supervisor will use the drag once or twice a week. What is the use of scarifying the road and then letting it get back into as bad or worse shape than before? Why not keep it good the whole year around? The cost will be less.

Eugene E. Smith, candidate for United States senator from Oregon, has withdrawn from the race. He says lack of finance has forced him to do this. 'Gene has a penchant for entering a race, changing his mind to some other office, then at the proper time withdrawing. This leaves the field to George Baker, K. K. Kubli and senator McNary, with the chances in favor of McNary.

OPINIONS DIFFER

On all great subjects men differ, some honestly and some dishonestly. By dishonestly, we refer to those who see an advantage to be gained for themselves by taking the opposite side. This is probably more or less true on the McNary-Haugen bill, designed to meet the needs of the farmer at the present time.

The difference of opinion lies today between the average farmer and the average buyer of the product of the farm. There are those on the former side who are just as strenuously opposing the passage of the bill as there are on the latter. These see what they term "nationalism" in the bill and claim it will wreck the government in maintaining the provisions of the bill—in the multitude of employes scattered all over the country in fulfilling the requirements. They claim it will place a fictitious price upon the local market and dump the surplus upon the stricken countries of Europe at any old price—that no government can stand long under a price fixed beyond that fixed by supply and demand. They cannot see anything, so they say, but disaster for the farmer and the buyer, and a wrecking of the government.

On the other side, the supporters of the bill see better times for the farmer, a more prosperous nation, and a "big brother" spirit toward the needy nations of the old world. They claim there is no intent, either in word or implication, of "nationalism" of industry affecting the farmer, but that it does mean a quick relief for the oppressed farmer in that the government will assist in finding a market for the surplus. In part their contention is correct, for it is not true that too much stuff of the same nature is imported when the home product could be used to just as good advantage? This is the light in which the proponents see the bill, and in which the average farmer sees it.

In a measure both contentions are correct, and if the buyer of the farm products and the producer would work together in the spirit of helpfulness, a bill such as the McNary-Haugen measure would not be necessary. Without giving our version of the whole question, we ask our readers to study the whole matter with a determination to know the facts, and then write our senators and congressmen their views.

Do You Know

That the local condensery is establishing a cheese-making plant to care for the surplus milk it is receiving?

That the primaries are about 15 days away?

That the next meeting of the community club will be held at Crabtree next Monday night?

That the Forks of the Santiam has received more road work since it has had a representative in the county court?

That with the present mail facilities and train schedules Scio has been practically eliminated from the outside world?

That if we are to have an easy way of getting in and out of Scio, someone must establish a stage route, to carry both passengers and the mail?

That Scio will soon have one of the most modern homes in the valley?

That the price of milk is on the increase?

That the farmer who diversifies is the farmer who has a check book?
