Art Exhibit at High School

The eighth graders took their final examinations last Thursday and Friday.

School will close this term on the 29th of May, due to the fact that the 30th is Memorial day, which is a school holiday.

The Juniors entertained the Seniors at a picnic Wednesday evening, May seventh. The Juniors, Seniors, Miss Hall and Mrs. Shotwell met at the school house and went to Green's bridge where they enjoyed a bon fire and weinnie roast. In addition to this refreshments consisting of cake, cookies and ice cream were served. The Seniors present were: Elden Knauf, Ernest Tucek, Ray McKnight and Kenneth Westenhouse. Juniors present were: Thelma DeLaunay, Arnold Zysset, Grace Long, and Bobby Thayer. Lyle Shelton and Vernon DeLaunay were invited guests.

There will be a household art exhibit at the high school building Friday afternoon, May 16, from 1:30 to 4:00 o'clock. This will be very interesting and all women who are interested are urged to attend.

Dance Well Attended

The benefit Dance given at Byron Bates' barn near Shelburn Saturday night for Darrell Montgomery and family and Elmer Limbeck and family was well attended. About $90 in cash besides a number of gifts was received by these two families.

On April 25 the house in which these two families lived was completely destroyed by fire, in which they lost all their effects. The friends and neighbors took this means of assisting them to get a new start. Music was donated by an orchestra from Albany college.

A Bargain Passed Over

Last week the price of Western Blended Flour was quoted at $1.50 per sack of 49 pounds, and not a sack was sold. This week it is quoted at $1.85, having taken a raise in price for hard wheat flours. Thus the buyer will stand to lose 35c in just one transaction. This is just an illustration of the fact that local buyers are not watching the quoted prices. It will pay our readers to read the advertisements on page five and make note of the article or articles wanted.

Has Bad Accident

Word has been received here of an accident to Fred Axe, who worked at the Scio Logging & Lumber company's mill last winter. While working in a saw mill near Lebanon a log rolled down on him seriously injuring his right side and breaking some ribs and his collar bone.

He is recovering in a hospital.

Goes to Pythian Home

The following article was written for and published in the Brownsville Times last week by M. S. Woodworth, telling of the going of S. P. Barger, of that place to the Pythian home at Vancouver, Wash., and is so splendid that we are reproducing it:

"The old 'Seth Thomas' clock still ticks the hours away. For fifty-one years it has been steadily at its task telling folks that time is speeding on. When the whispering voices were hushed into silence no other sound was heard in the room that night when Aunt Betty, the old man's wife, was slumbering in her coffin. Solemnly the old clock ticked on. It has toiled out the years, many years, that S. P. Barger has grown old and feeble. But many men, women and children have smiled and wept and gone since he bought the clock from C. C. Cooley back there in 1873. Some of yours and mine are numbered among them.

"Just any time, if you'll be still and listen, the old clock will tell you a wonderfully beautiful story of fraternal love and charity, of how for several years the Pythian lodge of Brownsville has cared for this aged man. Fuel, raiment, food and shelter were provided regularly through the years. Ever into its story it weaves the names of all the merchants in the town and never fails to tell again of the unflinching friendship of W. P. Elmore who recently fell asleep in Jesus. Out in front of a confectionery store a young man stepped out to the auto, dropped some money in the old man's hand and shook his hand right heartily.

"Last Saturday the old man left the house never to come back again. The old clock ticks on but is utterly unable to tell where its owner has gone, though it seems full well to know why the old man will not return. It just can't tell where he has gone for Harry Wilson and Henry Blakely are the only ones who went with him on the journey to the new Pythian home in Vancouver, Wash. And this is what they tell:

"On arriving at the Home they found that the manager of the home was out but would soon return. So they left Mr. Barger in the parlor while they inspected the place.

"When the manager returned he found an old man, white haired and tall, reclining in a large and cushioned rocker, looking perfectly dazed and seeming to be doubtful as to where he was and of how and why that he had come.

"Then S. P. arose and bowed his recognition and pleasure of the manager's presence. Then he said: 'My name is S. P. Barger and I am on my way to 'the home'.' 'This,' said the manager, 'is 'the home'.' Skeptically the old man looked and slowly shook his head while he continued: 'No this is not the home for I had it all pictured out different from this. Its up on a high hill and it doesn't look like this.'

"So they left the old man there in a home that is comfortable and clean with wholesome companions and Christian care."

Fliers Entertain Lebanonites

A flying circus took place in Lebanon Sunday. Three commercial airplanes took part in the exhibition. One of the planes was built by a Portland firm and is said to be a great success. One of the planes is owned by Jack Rankin, famous test pilot and instructor, who has carried over 5,000 passengers without an accident.

This little Near East refugee is one among more than a million who fled from Turkey to Greece last year.

Plan Military Tourney

Airplanes, fireworks, wall scaling contests, polo games, sham battle, and special events will be features of the eleventh annual military tournament at the O. A. C. stadium May 24.

A polo game between the Portland Hunt club and the local O. A. C. team will start the military classic at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, with an exhibition match in the evening. Captain Glenn S. Finlev, brilliant leader of the college team, promises a snappy contest.

A military circus will start at 7 o'clock. Cavalry exhibitions, bridge building operations, drills in handling and firing of artillery pieces, riding contests, rescue races, machine gun competition and special non-military events will be put on.

The O. A. C. band will head the parade to the polo field for the sham battle and pyrotechnic display. Infantry, artillery, motor transport, cavalry, and engineers will all be seen in action with the blues leading a charge against the reds. The roar of cannons, sputter of machine guns, bark of rifles, shout of charging cavalry, and glare of signals will make the battle realistic.

Five airplanes will fly in the tournament this year for the first time. Lieutenant Oakley J. Kelly, who made the first non-stop flight across the continent, will pilot one of the planes.

Boosting Stayton Cannery

J. W. Mayo and R. D. Hoke were over from Stayton Friday in the interest of the Stayton Canning Co., a cooperative institution, and gave the Tribune a pleasant call. In another column our readers and fruit growers will find an advertisement calling attention to the cannery and its needs. These gentlemen are real community boosters in their city and say Stayton now has 259 people on the payroll, about one-fourth of the population. Payrolls are what counts in any community, and Stayton is striving for a larger and better working and business condition.

Mr. Merdian Writes

Tuesday we received a letter from our former townsman, George Merdian, in which he says: Enclosed find money order for $1.75. Please send me the Tribune for another year.

Well we landed here all right last August. We had a nice warm winter, and I haven't seen one foggy day since we came here. I have quite a garden, but one must use quite a lot of fertilizer as Seaside is built on sand, no such soil as you have in Scio. Living is much higher here than there. Coal is $16 per ton, wood $5.00 for a small load and everything in proportion. I go clamming once in awhile, but would starve to death if I had to depend on that for a living.

We do not like Seaside as well as Scio, but my wife and I have both regained our health and that is worth a whole lot to us both. Hope you are well.

Very Truly Yours,
George Merdian,
Seaside, Oregon.

Radio News

J. W. Parrish says he listened to the sermon at the First Presbyterian church in Seattle over the radio last Sunday evening. At the close of the sermon the minister said he had an important announcement to make, and announced that Major Frederick L. Martin and his mechanic had been found and that they were safe and well.

Mr. Parrish also heard the announcement last Friday of the arrest of Dr. Charles Price in Victoria, B. C. Dr. Price is an evangelist who conducted revival meetings in Albany last year.

He Backs Uphill

R. M. Cain and family; J. F. Wesely and family; Charles Pietka and family and Mrs. Frances Wesely and daughter, Miss Rose picnicked at Bilyeu Den last Sunday. The members of the party had much merriment watching Mr. Cain back up the hill. He has no vacuum feed on his car, consequently when he goes up a steep hill he has to back up.

Hiram Hern Gets Pension

Pensions have been granted to Mrs. Augusta E. Leonard of Clatskanie, Oregon; to Edward A. Reynolds of Oregon City; to Albert J. Schmidlin of Buxton, Oregon; to Hiram H. Hern of Lacombe, Oregon; and to William J. Carson of Park-place, Oregon.

Visited Goat Club

Lona Zysset, Lucille Sommers and Arnold Zysset, members of the Scio Angora Goat Club, were guests of the Harlan Angora Goat Club of Lincoln county, Saturday May 3. They were accompanied by L. J. Allen, assistant state club leader.

Lona gave a talk on "History and accomplishments of the Scio Angora Goat Club." Lucille gave a judging demonstration. Arnold gave a demonstration and talk on "Mohair grading, showing, fitting, and general management."

"Club members of the Harlan community and their friends were much interested in the work of the Scio club," said Mr. Allen. "Many questions were asked the local club members and their answers and opinions were held in high regard by the Harlan people."

A picnic dinner was served at noon by the club members to approximately 50 persons. The Scio Angora Goat Club will extend an invitation to the Harlan club to visit it in the near future.

Shelburn Girl Hurt

Shelburn, Ore., May 14. — While playing at school today, two little girls, Rosa Gibbons and Bonita McClain, were accidentally hurt by a board that was in the hands of a small boy, who threw it against a building on the school property and glancing off it struck the Gibbons girl on the head and then struck the McClain girl, who is about six years old, just below the left eye, cutting an ugly gash about 1 1/2 inches long. The wound was attended to locally and it is thought nothing serious will come of it. The Gibbons girl was not injured beyond being stunned.

At Victoria

A telegram received here today from Victoria, B. C., from a well known former Albany minister, states that Dr. Charles S. Price, the evangelist was arrested at that place Saturday.

Physicians testify, the telegram states, that Price has caused insanity by placing his patients under hypnotic influence.—Albany Herald.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our many friends who assisted and contributed so generously during our misfortune in the loss of our home and contents by fire. This kindness we will ever keep green in our memory.
