Scioties are finding it hard to get back to normal after the holiday vacation.

What has become of that grand old slogan "We view With Alarm" used by both old parties?

With LaFollette in the presidential race politics ought to be worth more than usual this year.

"Andy Gump," 100 per cent for the people, will probably be our next president. We need that kind of man in the presidency.

Help the Salvation Army in its campaign to raise $3000 in Linn county for its work of relief among the needy. It's a small sum if we all give a little, and no one will miss a few dimes. Campaign ends Saturday night.

With the rank and file of the democratic party wanting McAdoo as their standard bearer and Tammany wanting Smith, it is pretty sure now the chances for the election of any man under the democratic banner is mighty slim.

For genuine commonsense, it is hard to beat the LaFollette platform. Probably that is the reason the republicans didn't accept it and the democrats spurned it—being commonsense and understandable is just what the leaders don't want.

Ground hogs in the state of Washington have not been popular, even when they did not see their own shadows on the 2d of February. In one county last year some 15,000 were killed on 9474 acres and more than $10,000 in crops were saved.

Just now there is grave danger of fire. An ounce of prevention is worth more than tons of ashes, and therefore see that the fire is out. If our own carelessness would just burn us out, that would be bad, but if it also burns others out, that is criminal.

With over two weeks spent in a stubborn fight to name a candidate, the democrats have wiped out all chances they might have had for election. The progressive element wants McAdoo and the reactionaries want Smith, and rather than give in both sides are willing to wreck the party. A majority of the people want McAdoo, and he should have been nominated long ago.

OREGON'S STABILITY

Travel where you may, if Oregon and Portland is known, you will hear nothing but words of praise. The great reason for this unsolicited praise is the strength of the Portland banks, freedom from serious labor troubles and a steady, constructive building and manufacturing program.

The eye of the homebuilder, the farmer, the prospect and the manufacturer, is on Oregon. They are studying the Oregon country and its future with the idea of becoming a part of our business life. And why are they seeking out Oregon? The reason is simple: Like yourself all peoples want a home where satisfaction is seen on every face, where letters teem about the glorious summers and winters, about the community life, the support given Oregon-made products and the cheapness of our land (a soil that grows most everything), and where fishing and hunting abounds to suit the most ardent sportsmen. Wouldn't this be enough to make anyone long to become a resident among us?

But that isn't all! Where will you find a more law-abiding, church-going people? Nowhere. Where do people have more to say about what shall be written upon our statutes? Nowhere. And the making and unmaking of laws is a privilege gladly accepted, for the majority rules. There are less drawbacks in Oregon than in most any other state in the union, and consequently more advantages.

The basic industries are lumber and agriculture, the latter being divided into dairying, horticulture, livestock and general farming—all paying industries, for there are few bank failures and few bankruptcies. Nowhere can this healthy condition be beaten. The poultry industry is becoming an immense business success and a real protection against old age without a competency.

In educational circles, the U. of O. and O. A. C., (state institutions) rank high, and have made their mark so big that students come from almost every country under the sun to seek their higher education, while the Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Christians and others have well established and high class institutions of learning.

Why shouldn't we boost Oregon? The above tells why. If we believe in our city, our community and our state, let's tell it every opportunity we have. And we don't have to lie about it either.

SHELBURN NEWS
