I prefer Shur-On all Sheltex, because—

They are the best frame in the field today! The design of the bridge is especially attractive. The hinge is anchored into the Zolonite and the temples are re-inforced with wire from tip to tip.

THURSDAY, March 26, 1925

Governor Pierce has gone to Hot Springs, in eastern Oregon, where he will take a short rest and recuperate by delivering a few addresses in Baker, Umatilla and Union counties.

Wheat fields are showing no signs of the winter's freeze and growing grain is carpeting old mother earth in a beautiful green. Willamette Valley, as usual, is several leaps ahead of our middle west states.

When we can get away from our sordid selfishness and pious worship of the dollar, we'll begin to live for others and have more joys in worship of righteousness. Selfishness and love of money will wreck homes and nations, as present-day events are proving.

Since President Coolidge has suggested the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington be celebrated in 1932, he has appointed a big committee to work out a fitting program, and Editor Piper of the Oregonian is one of them. This assures a good program if Editor Piper is selected to deliver the principal speech.

Less fake warrants by officers and stool pigeons who crave notoriety will make the work of our judiciary more honorable and convictions easier secured. Portland is now reeking under such reign, and a man's home is not his castle. Find the maker of moonshine, and the drinker will take care of himself—when he can't procure it.

The advertisements this week are teeming with spring, and are worth your time in reading. They are a personal invitation to you to visit them, to acquaint yourselves with the dependable merchandise they carry. If their wares were not dependable they would not advertise them. An advertiser is your best merchant and his goods are fresher.

It is reported that one of the fastidious newly married ladies of this county kneads bread with her gloves on. This incident may be somewhat peculiar, but there are others. The editor of this paper needs bread with his shirt on, he needs bread with his shoes on, and unless some of the delinquent subscribers to this "Old Rag of freedom" pony up before long he will need bread without a darn thing on, says the Brownsville Times.

The rapid passing of the pioneers who builded Oregon is taking place.

Their earthly work is finished. Their hardships are now being repaid to them with crowns of glory by the Son of Man who said, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, come unto me and I will give you rest." As we look back over the pages of time and see mother engaged at the spinning wheel and loom as she wove the cloth that covered our body, and we note how easy it is now to secure our wearing apparel, we too must say with the Savior "well done thou good and faithful servant."

In the present difficulties of the Thomas Creek Lumber Co., it is said that Ballin, sr., holds the whip hand in the whole affair, and if he wanted to could easily affect a settlement in full for the laborer's wages without a heavy cost to the workmen. Report says Ballin has a mortgage on the mill and is safe, and in this safety could help the boys realize 100 cents on the dollar by finding a market for the attached lumber. But will he do it? Will his aid be with the bankrupt company? So far, it is said, he is playing with the bankrupt company. It seems money comes before the rights and protection of human beings. Mr. Ballin here's your opportunity, can you see it?

WE SYMPATHIZE

How thankful the people of Oregon should feel that they can go to bed at night without fear of being killed by lightning; that when a peculiar cloud appears on the horizon they are not scared to death for fear it will be a tornado, that neither intense heat nor cold is their lot. For this reason it is hard for native Oregonians to appreciate the fears and hardships the people of the middle west suffer because of the elements.

The immense loss of life and property by the tornado in Missouri, Illinois and Indiana last Thursday cannot be pictured in words. It is impossible for us who have never seen the destructive work of a tornado to even visualize the force of the element. Even at this long range our sympathies go out to the survivors and relatives of those who met an untimely death, many of the victims not having been found as yet.

Missing link's skull has been found in Java and another in South Africa. We're all brothers under the skin. The congregation will please rise and sing the International.

The confidence man is one who churns the butter out of the milk of human kindness.
