Hammer Disappears

Recently George merdian left a hammer which he had owned for about 50 years at a coffer dam he has been building on his land, which Thomas creek has seen fit to make another outlet through, and some one passing through took it with them. A great many complaints keep coming to the Tribune about small articles disappearing, and which cannot be found. It is always the best policy to remember when going through private property that anything found laying around there, belongs to the owner of the property, and it is wise to leave it laying there. Mr. Merdian feels keenly the loss of the hammer because of the long years he has owned it.
