"Electrical Wedding" Next

And now Thomas Edison and a group of electrical men have gotten together and decided that the fourth wedding anniversary be officially designated as the "electrical wedding."

One wag has suggested that the fourth anniversary is just about right for the "electric wedding" for by that time the bride will have worn out most of her household presents and she will have learned (unless she is a dumb-bell) that electrical devices are the most modern and practical to have around the house.

George Leffler of Hubbard, brother the Leffler boys here, had his tonsils removed at an Oregon City hospital the first of last week, and the Hubbard Enterprise says he was getting along nicely.
