Premiums Won by Local Men

The Linn county fair for 1925 is history. According to reports it was also the most successful. The attendance each day, except Wednesday, was large, the wedding on Thursday being a drawing card and the school children being the incentive on Friday, the attendance on the last day being estimated about 6000.

Millard and Donald Shelton won first prize with their Japanese Silkies chickens; Rudolph Borovicka won first, champion and grand champion with his Holsteins; Orville Gilkey won first with his Holsteins; Ed Posvar won first and champion with his Guernseys; and in farm exhibits the Riverview exhibit (Farmers Union No. 113) won sixth place, and the prize is $25. Last year the Forks of the Santiam was seventh, and the showing made by Riverview shows that Leo Zeller is improving with his experience in assembling and arranging the exhibit of the products of his home community.

Rudolph Borovicka also won first on his young Holstein bull at the state fair yesterday. He also won first on him last year when he was only six months old. Of course Rudolph is proud of his winnings, as he is putting this section on the live stock map.

Millard and Donald Shelton also annexed most of the prizes with their sheep, while Lona and Hazel Zysset claimed most of the prizes in sewing.

There may have been other exhibitors from this community, but we have not been so informed.

Miss Bonnie Sutherland represented Scio as an attendant upon the queen on school day. The float used by Scio was the same as used during the Odd Fellows' parade in Portland and no pretense was made to win the cup. The schools won in the order named:

High schools of the county: 1st Brownsville, 2d Lebanon.

Rural schools: 1st LaSalle, 2d Tallman, 3d Oakville.

Grammar schools: 1st Shedd, 2d Lebanon, 3d Brownsville

The pagernt Friday night was well presented, and was a quaint interpretation of an old folk tale of Cornwall, England, written at a time when goblins were believed to be real.

In the guessing contest staged by the Scio Mill & Elevator Co. on the number of corn kernels in a bottle, R. C. Jones of Corvallis won the 49 lb. sack of Western Blend Flour for his guess of 1177; Paul Ryan of Albany won the 24½ lb. sack of Pheasant Flour on a guess of 1179.

and Mrs. George Hurley of Albany won a similar prize on her guess of 1180. The correct number in the bottle was 1172 kernels.

Local Sokol Club Participates

Saturday afternoon about 50 members and friends of the Sokol clubs drove to Portland where they had been invited to participate in an athletic meet with the Portland clubs, the meet being held in the Bohemian hall at Sellwood. The Portland ladies served supper in the hall in the evening which was followed by a dance.

On Sunday a dinner was served to the visitors, the Portland ladies again playing the part of hostesses. During the afternoon a short program was rendered and several contests staged. In the volley ball contest, Portland took two points and Scio one. The Scio team believes they would have won had it not been for the fact that one or two of their best players did not play.

The Portland and Scio teams each put on ladies' and men's calisthenics drills separately and combined and the Scio teams gave a combined drill, music being furnished by the Scio Sokol orchestra. Short talks were made by various members of the clubs, I. G. Faltus representing Scio on this part of the program.

Among those attending were R. M. Cain and family, Mrs. Joe Wesley and daughters, Mrs. Rudolph Wesley and daughters, John Kuckacka and wife, I. G. Faltus and daughter, Charles Pletka, Miss Frederick, J. F. Novak and son Henry, Joe Stacek, Frank Bartu, jr., and wife, Joe Bartu and wife, Richard Chrz, Eddie Stepanek, Joe Dobrkovsky and family, John Dobrkovsky, Eddie Prospri, Rose Chromy, Joe Frank, Jim Lada and Christine Krosman, Mrs. Chas. Vstecka and daughters, Tony Faltus and wife, Mrs. Herman Hargnon and Mary, Joe Menhart and son Joe, Walter Holechek, wife and daughter.

Sold Farm—Public Sale

Last Thursday W. T. Hassler sold his 100-acre farm to Con Westenhous, who will take possession on or about the 10th. Mr. Hassler has been a busy man ever since in advertising a public sale next Saturday, Oct. 3, beginning at 10:30 a.m. At this sale he will sell three head of horses, 12 head of cattle, 3 head of hogs, farm machinery, 75 turkeys, 14 ducks, some chickens, and other articles. The Lacombe ladies aid will serve lunch at noon. Mr. Hassler expects to move to Lebanon to make his future home.

Mr. Westenhous is one of our young dairymen, and he will devote most of his time to dairying, hog raising and turkeys. We congratulate Con on this step toward independence and know he is energetic enough to be a winner.

While we are sorry Mr. Hassler could not see his way clear to stay among us, we wish he and his good wife health and prosperity wherever they may locate.

John T. Brock took advantage of the rain Tuesday to come to town from his farm, about seven miles southeast of Scio. He says he had about an 80 per cent crop of prunes and has sold the entire output.

Two Couples Marry

Last Thursday night, at the home of the bride's father, James Johnston, six miles southwest of Scio, Miss Leona Johnston was united in marriage to Clarence Miller of Jefferson, only immediate relatives of the couple witnessing the ceremony. The newly weds left Friday morning for Kitchen Springs, accompanied by Mr. Johnston, where they will spend two weeks honeymooning and hunting.

John Leffler and Mrs. Edith Cousins went to Vancouver, Wash., last Saturday, where they were married. They returned to Scio that evening and are now at home to their many friends on the groom's farm, north of the city. Both parties are well and favorably known and are receiving the congratulations of their friends.

Comes From Albany

Mr. Meiser, who owned the ranch recently occupied by Elmer Limbeck, in the Mt. Pleasant neighborhood, has traded it to E. L. Church for a small acreage at the city limits of Albany. Mr. Church has moved his family to this new home and his 16-year-old son started to Scio high school last Monday. We are glad to welcome this family to this community.

Charles Smolik and his mother are more newcomers to this community. They come from Silvertown and have rented the Anna Shindler-Kouba acreage, just east of the city limits. They will go into the dairy and chicken business.

Council Meets Tonight

The regular monthly meeting of the city council takes place tonight, and it is hoped every member will try to be present—7:30 is the hour. Besides the regular routine business the naming of a budget committee will be made, also a petition has been filed with the recorder asking that something be done toward stopping the inroads being made by Thomas creek in the city and thus relieve the dangers of another flood. The public is invited.

Gresham Given Credit

We understand the Scio float in the I O O F parade at Portland last week elicited much applause, and that it won a $50 prize. The Portland papers credited it to Gresham, which accounts in a large measure to the delay in receiving authentic information. It was so nice that those who had charge of placing the floats could not realize that a little place like Scio had such good talent, it seems.

Unfold a Weird Tale

"Monsieur, our people are panic-stricken." Col. St. Onge gravely shook his head. "None of the Indian trappers will go into the bush alone. They are always seeing and hearing things. Our hunter refuses to leave the post since he saw strange tracks and heard screaming at night. And now the climax is capped!"

Brent Steele leaned forward toward his host, keenly awaiting what was coming, as the Colonel finished.

"Our fur canoe, which left here early in July with $18,000 worth of hides and four men, never reached Albany!"

"Never reached Albany?" repeated the astonished listener. "They sent you word, by canoe?"

"Yes, they sent a relief party upriver to find my men who were long overdue. They feared they had lost their lives in the Albany rapids and were following the shore."

"And this search party found nothing?"

"Nothing!" The Colonel lifted shoulders and hands in eloquent gesture. "Men, fur, canoe; gone, wiped out, swallowed up!"

"But there must have been something washed up along shore," protested Steele, "the shell of the canoe, small stuff, and a paddle always comes ashore."

"Nothing," repeated the Colonel. "They searched everywhere. The only thing they found was the first camp of our people. But no canoe, not a body, or a paddle or a scrap of a canoe—nothing."

Suddenly it began to dawn on Steele that the Colonel was keeping something back—that there was more to the story.

"Yes, those are the facts, Monsieur, and our people are mad with fear."

"That leaves us the Windigo theory, Colonel," Steele laughed. "Maybe the Windigo got them."

What was the Windigo? How had the canoe disappeared? Was the river haunted? Was the Colonel telling all he knew? Read the "Valley of Voices," by George Marsh, beginning in the next issue of The Scio Tribune.

Miracle in Accident

Last Friday afternoon an accident occurred at West Scio that was a miracle, in that no one was killed or injured. It occurred on the railroad crossing as the gasoline car was pulling in from Shelburn and as George DeWall was attempting to cross with a truck loaded with about 6½ tons of lumber.

DeWall is hauling lumber from the Ambrosek sawmill for the Nebraska Bridge Co., which is being loaded out at Munkers, and he drove his truck directly in front of the oncoming train, which hit the truck center on the hind wheels and damaged it to the extent of about $150, while the car was damaged about $300. Three ties were torn out of the track, and a wrecking crew was sent out from Albany to take the damaged car in for repairs.

Kelly Donohue was riding with DeWall, and luckily no passengers were on the car, but the train crew received a shaking up, as did DeWall and Donohue. The view is clear at this place, and why neither occupant of the truck heeded the whistling of the approaching car no one knows. The engineer set all brakes, but could not stop in time. We understand DeWall assumes all blame.

Geo. W. Queener Dies

On Tuesday of last week, George W. Queener of Lacombe, brother of Mrs. Sarah Morris of this city, died at a hospital in Albany from a paralytic stroke suffered several months ago.

The deceased was born in Gentry county, Mo., July 26, 1854, and died Sept. 22, 1925, aged 71 years, one month and 26 days. He crossed the plains with his parents in 1865 and settled near Scio, where he spent the greater part of his life. He was one of 12 children born to A. J. and Elizabeth Queener (six boys and six girls), all of whom have passed on except three sisters—Mrs. Sarah Morris of Scio, Mrs. Bell Caldwell of Irrigon, Ore., and Mrs. Martha Hill of Palouse, Wash. He never married.

For the past several years he made his home at Lacombe, where about seven years ago he made a profession of religion. He was laid to rest Thursday in Franklin Butte cemetery beside his father and mother, G. L. Sutherland conducting the service at the grave.

Looking for Dairy Ranch

J. E. Baldwin, father of A. T. Baldwin, who lives on the William Mespelt farm in the Gilkey neighborhood, arrived with his family at Jefferson from Kellogg, Idaho, last week and is camping at Santiam park. Mr. Baldwin is looking for a dairy ranch on shares and is anxious to get located. He says snow was 16 feet deep there last winter, and that was too much for him to face again this winter. Mr. Baldwin and a son were in Scio Monday.

Entertained at 500

Mrs. Dean Morris entertained a party of ladies at two tables of 500 at her home on Main street Tuesday evening. The high score was taken by Mrs. Laura Shelton while Mrs. Nell Bilyeu was given the low score. Mrs. Colene Walters and small son of Seattle were out of town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Borovicka of Beaverton arrived Monday on a visit to relatives and friends in this community.
