The Test of Time Proves the Value of PE-RU-NA

Under the date of March 6, 1902, Mrs. Maggie Durbin, 139 Riverside Ave., Little Rock, Arkansas, has this to say about her experience: "I was troubled for five years with a chronic disease. I tried everything I heard of, but nothing did me any good. Some doctors said my trouble was catarrh of the bowels, others consumption of the bowels. The medicine I took did no good. A friend advised me to try PE-RU-NA. I did. After taking two bottles I found it was helping me and continued. Am now sound and well."

A letter from Mrs. Durbin, dated December 12, 1923, shows that, even after twenty-two years, she is in the best of health: "I still recommend PE-RU-NA to my friends who need a good medicine and everybody is pleased. I thank you many times for what PE-RU-NA has done for me."

There is nothing strange in this experience of Mrs. Durbin. It has been repeated thousands of times by sufferers from catarrh and catarrhal diseases.

Chic Apparel for Matron and Maid

Frills and Furbelows Are Different for Mother and Daughter.

The sophistication of fall clothes means that henceforth there is to be a difference of apparel for the matron and the maid. The woman of forty has affected the simple frock of sixteen, provided she was slender enough to get into it. Mother and daughter shopped together, swapped outfits and wore the same hats. That day is passing, asserts a fashion correspondent in the Kansas City Star.

The frills and furbelows of youth differ from the studied bouffants that grace middle age. The matron will be known again by the gown she wears. The transition will be gradual; to give to youth what is youth's is not the disposition of fashion followers. That is one reason for the continued popularity of the jumper frock.

But the situation does bring youth its own; designers have provided especially for the school and college girl.

Almost every girl has a natural liking for pretty clothes and she often wears them with an air that forecasts future success when she takes her place in the grown-up world. It is gratifying to note how many of our young girls have extremely good taste and are familiar with points of style.

Every school wardrobe should include a suit or an ensemble of dress and coat that is sufficiently tailored to be classed as such. Tweeds and homespuns are always good, and this season offers more attractive ones than ever. One pretty model is made of a heather mixture in the "bird" colorings which have replaced the "jewel" tones of last season. The coat is seven-eighths length, which is a new note in suits for girls and is extremely smart. This suit is a splendid choice, because the coat can be worn over other dresses and still look correct. If, therefore, has a twofold value and eliminates one extra garment. Another costume suit that emphasizes

Bags in Many Sizes to Meet Taste of Every One

As one sees handbags in Paris, their vogue appears only to have begun, according to a writer in the New York Times. Along the Rue de la Paix, Avenue de l'Opera, Rue de Rivoli and in that longest and most alluring Rue St. Honoré, there seems to be at least one bag shop in every block. There are purse bags in many sizes to fit the needs or fit the taste of every one. Some are very large, some of convenient size and hold a few necessary accessories, and many are little envelope-shaped affairs in which to carry a coin purse, handkerchief and perhaps a lipstick and powder box.

The latest bags are oblong, with a little flap at the top, and are held in shape by a stiff crosspiece. Daintier bags have handles of the same beading or are drawn together with a silk cord. Only the utility bags are now seen with metal frame and chain handle.

The point about the great quantity of bags now on the market is their ar-smartness and utility is of tweed and plain coating fabric. The little dress has a collar and pockets of the popular punched leather. The coat is of plain coating material, lined with tweed like the dress, and it has a big fur collar. This gives an extremely smart costume suit and also a good separate dress and topcoat as well.

Often the blouse chosen to wear with a tailored suit is extremely long. No line in a blouse is more becoming to girlish slenderness than one which reaches half way to the knee, and is called finger-tip length. Of course, this blouse cannot be worn under a short jacket, but it beautifully completes the suits just mentioned, which have the seven-eighths length coats.

The regulation two-piece dress of jumper type with circular or plaited skirt is so popular that it is perhaps the best model that we have this season. Certainly every school wardrobe can contain at least two of this type, one in cloth and one in velveteen and Jersey.

Followers of Fashion Match Hat and Frock

One of the rules which followers of fashion must adhere to strictly this season is the matching of the hat to the frock or coat. This apparently is the crux of the fashion situation and must delight the hearts of milliners. Every costume requires its hat not only in harmony as to color but in line and fabric suited to the occasion.

More and more are women realizing that in harmony they have found the key of chic and that the care expended in choosing accessories to complete the picture brings fashion results that are more than worth while.

French Hosiery

The stocking of the hour in Paris is of plain sheer silk in rose beige, with openwork clocks, and these are fashionable for both day and evening wear. Among the novelty hosiery is an evening stocking embroidered in metal and in rose silk in ankle design. Both at the ankle and knee is a monogram embroidered in metal and colored silks.

tistic quality. Apparently there is little interest in the cheap, gaudy bags with which shop counters have been filled these last several seasons. The fashion has drawn the interest of artists of a high order and the best of these newest models are examples of the finest designs and workmanship. Patterns taken from old brocades and tapestries are worked in beads so tiny that the surface, when it is finished, has the appearance of woven fabric. Some of the designs are very ambitious—reproductions of figures, groups, landscapes, done with great skill.

Then the heavily jeweled bags are shown for evening. The colors employed are charming, seldom bizarre, less silver and gold, but much mauve, pale green, rose, blue and amber. Quaint bags are made of genuine old silks, velvets and tapestries of embroidered stuffs and pretty trifles, to carry with evening dresses.

For Evening Wear

Fashionable colors for evenings are white, black, pink, lavender and much silver and gold.
