GOOD BYE

With this issue the Intermountain Tribune closes its publication in Sweet Home, to be resumed sometime about October 15 at Scio under the name of "The Scio Tribune." Of course, everybody has a reason for doing things. Our reason for making this expensive move is, we think the field at Scio and vicinity will be more remunerative than that of Sweet Home. In fact we expect the balance to be on the side of profit, at Scio. It has been on the loss side since we came to Sweet Home. There are not now enough business houses in Sweet Home to give a newspaper the support it must have in order to exist.

When we moved our printing plant to Sweet Home, we had every reason to believe that a railroad would soon be in operation between the Sweet Home country and the valley, under which condition the number of our business houses would have been greatly increased; also, we expected that the 12-4 settlers would be able to prove up on their claims as well. In both cases we have been disappointed and the prospect is that neither proposition will materialize for some months and, possibly, years to come.

We have no reason to complain of the subscription patronage which has been given us and if the advertising and job printing were in proportion to the subscription, we would be glad to remain in this field.

We are not going to leave Sweet Home without newspaper representation. We have employed Mr. R. W. Van Fleet to edit and have charge of the Sweet Home section. We expect to make the Sweet Home section an important feature of the Scio Tribune and we trust our Sweet Home, Foster, Holley, Waterloo and Crawfordsville subscribers will continue their patronage. In addition to the Sweet Home news, you will get the Scio news as well. Our correspondents will please forward their news letters to Scio by Mondays mail.

The Tribune regrets being forced to leave Sweet Home, for we believe we have formed friendships which will last through life and, we trust that our enemies, if we have any, will forgive and forget any grievance they may have against us. We wish to assure the people of the Sweet Home country that we have but the kindest of feeling for one and all and that we trust that the future may bring both happiness and prosperity to all.

We Expect the Scio Tribune to be in operation on or before October 20. Again extending good wishes we are respectfully,

T. L. Dugger and family

HOW TO BUILD UP A TOWN

We assume that every citizen of Sweet Home desires to build up the town, to get more people and business houses to locate here. This is true because merchants would have a larger trade and a general advance in property values would result. We, also, assume that the people of the Santiam country desire a railroad, because railroad connections mean an increase in the value of property, a broad extension of the farming and dairy interests and a general increase in the prosperity of the Sweet Home valley and vicinity.

Now the people of this locality can do much towards the accomplishment of these ends, if they will simply pull together. They cannot accomplish anything if they continually antagonize each other. The strangers who come to town with the expectation of locating, will not be favorably impressed if they find one part or one section of the town knocking the other. On the other hand, if they find our citizens pulling harmoniously, they will count that feature an important factor.

The only and the one way to develop a town or community is, for the people to pull together. "In union there is strength." Of course everyone would like to have his own way and cause things to move so that he or they would reap profits from any and all development. But, unless each and every one is willing to concede something to the other fellow, development will be blocked.

Sweet Home has factions, the same as all other small towns. Human nature is such that everyone desires to have his own way and that every new enterprize will put dollars into his pocket. From the nature of things this cannot result. Some people will reap more profit than others as a matter of course. Yet this should not cause jealousies, bickering and knocking. Any new business which comes to town is sure to help everyone in a more or less degree. We all want to make money. Let us not find fault because the other fellow makes it faster than we do.

To make Sweet Home win out, there should be a union of effort on the part of everyone. All should pull for the one end—development. If you cannot reap direct profit, you will do so in the end.

PRESIDENT WILSON SHOULD BE SUSTAINED

President Wilson's popularity will be reflected by the result of the November election. Congress is the president's working machinery. If the voters elect a republican congress, it will be regarded as an act hostile to Mr. Wilson. His enemies would claim in such case that the president's influence is waning. Politicians in the east are watching eagerly for some indication in the present campaign that the strength of the president with the people is declining.

Samuel G. Blythe, nationally famous as a political writer, in a recent article in the Saturday Evening Post, said:

"If Mr. Wilson shall be rebuked by a great defeat in 1914, and if the House should turn, or remain only scantily democratic, there would be some doubts of his availability for 1916; for if he does not carry the coming House, and carry it substantially, it will mean but one thing, and that one thing is that his prestige is gone."

"He is the only candidate who has so concrete and crucial a condition confronting him."

A vote for George E. Chamberlain for the senate is a vote of confidence in Woodrow Wilson. Senator Chamberlain stands high with the administration. His re-election is desired by the administration. A vote for his opponents is a vote to send an enemy to the president.

There ought to be no difficulty in making a selection of state senator as between Mr. Porter of Shedd and S. M. Garland. The last named is a successful business lawyer and can be relied upon to do all in his power to cut out a number of the useless and expensive state commissions. Mr. Porter was a member of the legislature of two years ago and assisted in foisting a number of these commissions upon the state. Besides he is an alumnus of Oregon University and is sure to vote for every appropriation the state colleges ask for.

The argument advanced by the Oregonian upon the subject of tariff points to the prohibition of foreign made goods. At the present time, the great European war has resulted in shutting off importations from many of the European countries, just the condition which would exist with the Oregonian's prohibitory tariff. Yet the Oregonian finds fault because the tariff revenue has fallen off and the administration is compelled to replace this deficiency from other sources.

The Brownsville Times assumes that the saloon is the cause for the moving of the Tribune from Sweet Home. This is not true. There is simply not enough business houses here to support a newspaper. The Times well knows that an advertising patronage is a vital requisite for a newspaper to live. That patronage is not here because of lack of business houses. So far as the saloon is concerned, there have been fewer arrests since its establishment than before. We now have no 'blind pigs' such as Brownsville, Lebanon and Albany have; consequently no expense to the county at the goal for board. We, also, have about one mile of crushed rock road which saloon money builded. If Brownsville, Lebanon and other patrons of the saloon would observe proper decorum on their return home, there would be no cause for complaint of the saloon.

Duroc Jersey pigs for sale. All registered stuff and are the very best strains on the market. I will also sell my herd boar. There is none better than he. Farm at Goltra Station. M. E. Roth, Albany, Ore., R. F. D. No. 5.
