The Villard House.

During a recent visit to Halsey we had occasion to stay over night with Mr. A. Laubner, proprietor of the Villard house at that place. To say the least, this house is first class in every particular. The rooms are capacious and are furnished equal to any of the best hotels in the state. The kitchen and dining room departments are under the management of Mrs. Laubner and a corp of efficient help. The house is also applied with hot and cold water tents, and all other modern appliances. Mr. Laubner neglects nothing which adds to the comfort and convenience of his guests.

School Meeting.

The annual school meeting of District No. 16, Linn county Oregon, was held at the district school house Lebanon, on Monday March 7th, 1887.

Oregonian: A large number of immigrants acrived here yesterday by the Pacific express, more than have

W. Burkhart and W. B. Donaca. numl report read and adopted.

The directors were instructed to take into consideration the advisability of days ago and the result of his visit to purchasing the town lot adjoining the school grounds for school purposes.

The following officers were elected:
C. B. Montague, director, to serve for the term of three yenes; G. W. Smith, clerk, to serve the year.

No further business appearing the meeting adjourned. G. W. SMITH.

Shooting at Scio.

From the Oregonian we learn that Frank Harris, son of L. Harris, aged about 18, in an altereation with John Craft, a young man about the same age, shot the latter in the neck with a 38 caliber revolver. Two of the Harris brothers were engaged in a cattle trade when George Harris accused Mat Craft of stealing cattle. A fight ensued, and in the melee Frank Harris drew a re-volver and shot John Craft in the back of the neck, the ball ranging forward through the fleshy part of the neck. Deputy Sheriff E. Daley left Seio at five o'clock with papers for Harris's arrest. Drs. J. L. Hill and S. W. Doed, of Albany, were summoned, who say the wound is not considered fatal.

A Lively Runaway.

On Thursday last as L. N. Woodle, vetenary surgeon, of Albany, accompanied by another gentleman, was driving into Lebanon from Sodaville the neck-yoke broke and let the buggy pole to the ground. This frightened the team and they lit out at a lively run. Mr. Woodle in his attempt to hold them in, broke one of the bridle bits giving the horses their freedom. In another instant both men were hurled from the buggy and the team came flying into town and in turning to go down the county road, off Main street, one of the horses turned a double somersault, and every one thought the enimal was seriously burt. Fortunately no harm befel either the occupants of the buggy or the team. Neither was the buggy or harness much broken.

Encourage Manufactories.

J. M. Moyer, of the B. W. M. Co. of Brownsville, went to Portland Wednesday morning via. the Oregonian Ry. It was 'our pleasure to be on the same train as far as Lebanon Junction. During a conversation with Mr. Moyer we learned that his company had paid out during the past ten months, for wool, help and other expenses incedental to operating their manufactory, $40,000. The most of this sum has been circulated in Brownsville and vicinity. The people of Lebanon may learn from this the great benefit to be derived from manufacturing establishments. are glad to say that the initiatory step has been taken here and with the conpletion of the ditch now being surveyed, we hope to see every encourage ment given to any one who may contemplate coming here to engage in any business which will aid in building up uated and all that is required to make it one of the best cities in the state is the continuance of the energy now apparent on the part of its business are parent on the part of its business men. Let the good work go on and soon the attention of capitalists will be directed this way. Lebanon, we are glad to state, has no "drones" in business and don't want any. Live, energetic and frugal people will find here as profit-able channels for the investment of capital as anywhere, and anyone looking for a location is respectfully invitto come and see for themselves.

IN MEMORIAM.

The subject of the following lines-NANCY WALLAGE-was a woman of many virtues and aimable qualities, and highly esteemed by all who knew her. She leaves a husband, three daughters, and six sons to mourn her death. To the many mourners these verses are sympathetically dedicated:

There was an earthly spirit fair, The angels marked it for their own. They leave it from our world of care. And placed it near our Father's throne.

We miss our loved one, but we know tool's hely will is always best; There is no pain, nor toll, nor woe Where her spirit is at rest.

At home they miss her tender love, Her death is grief to many friends that oh! In that blessed world above No love or friendship ever ends. However ernel sceme the cross, However little seems the pain, How sweet to think our tearful loss Has been our loved one a perfect gain.

We know she fell asleep in tool, so pure the faith her lips express Her form alone is heath the sot, Her spirit is with him at rest.

So we will check the rising tear,
And still the servow in our hears,
For we can meet in that bright sphere.
Where friends are never dooned to part,

Afflicted husband! ween no more!
Thy darling now is with the blest;
She is not lost, but gone before.
Where earth freed spiritual rest.

And now her spirit walts for thee Within that land so pure and pair; When then are from earthly sorrow from How sweet to meet thy durling there.

Sad som, weep not o'er her grave; the only sleeps, she is the dead, But anto him who died to save. Your mother now has fied?

Life's weary longth is but a span, A few short years and it is past; When ends its ble-sing, or its bun. Your mother you can meet at last.
