

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1887.

J. H. STEIN, Editor.

The Sunday Tribune says: The success or defeat of the Prohibition amendment depends largely upon the vote of Multnomah county. Shrewd observers claim that if a majority of not less than 5000 is not obtained in Portland, Albina and East Portland, Prohibition will carry the state. The advocates of this latest issue in Oregon are well officered, thoroughly organized and heartily interested in the cause. Their forces are ready at a minute's notice to assail every vulnerable point, the small country precincts throughout the state being in sympathy with them. On the other hand their opponents, ever sanguine of success, appear to rest on their arms while the enemy captures in detail every outpost. This conclusion is reached by observation of the contending parties in the city and hearing the remarks passed by the rank and file as well as by the leaders of the opposing armies. The retail saloon keepers take little interest in the contest saying, should the Prohibitionists win it will make comparatively little difference to them, since they would run their place of business just the same and save each the $300 annually paid the city for license. They might perhaps have to change to the second stories of buildings to do so.

"The Nevada bank deal has destroyed our business for the present," remarked a heavy shipper and grain broker of San Francisco a few days ago, "but it has been and is a bonanza for the warehouses of this city and Port Costa. Storage accommodation is taken up in and about the bay, while in the interior comparatively little grain is stored. The reason is that wheat was rushed forward weeks ago to deliver on contracts. The ringsters were caught; then the wheat was taken up, and here it will stay. Shipping is at a standstill. The Liverpool market is overstocked. From this state about 250,000 tons were put on the market at once. Wheat here is held at $1.25 and $1.30 per cental, and there is no prospect that it will go lower. Farmers will hold on and so will dealers rather than let it go at present prices, which means at a loss. This state of affairs, I think, will continue until January. Then the surplus in Liverpool will have been consumed, and as the crop in India and Russia has not been large the price must increase."

Portland printers and their employers are profoundly disturbed over a discussion of the International Typographical Union to all subordinate unions numbering over sixty men, to demand for job printers nine hours' work and the same wages as are now being paid. The minimum amount of wages paid to any Union printer is $21 per week for ten hours' work per day. Employers declare that they will not pay that amount for nine hours' work, and printers are unwilling to take less. They would wish to continue work under the old scale, but the mandate of the International Union interdicts them. The difference will be settled amicably, if possible, but as yet neither side has shown any disposition to yield.

Captain Lee, after ten years' search, has at last discovered the wreck of the Brother Johnathan, and is happy. The vessel, or what there left of it, lies two miles south of Northwest Seal rock. It is known that a large amount of money went down with the vessel, it being in a huge safe. There was a cartload of gold and no end of greenbacks. After being buried in the sea for 22 years there is no telling the condition it is in; but in all probability the old captain can find ample time to brighten it up, with the assurance that it will be a legal tender in exchange for real estate or groceries.

Adventures from South America state that an immense nugget, weighing about 51 pounds, of pure gold, has just been unearthed in the now famous Minas mine. The find has created intense excitement. The nugget is flat and has something of the contour of a colossal hand, held open, with the thumb and finger close together. Its greatest length is twelve and one-half inches, and breadth eight and one-half inches. It varies in thickness up to two and one-half inches. The value is estimated at $10,000. A cast of it will be taken before it is broken up.

Col. Frederick D. Grant, the nominee of the republican party of New York, for secretary of state, was with the Union army during a considerable portion of the war of the rebellion, thought he was too young to take a hand in the fighting. He accompanied his father through the Fort Henry and Fort Donelson campaigns, the siege of Vicksburg, and the Wilderness and Petersburg campaigns. The boy was often on the scene of actual conflict, and was once wounded.

Judge J. R. Ren, of Minneapolis, was chosen Commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic at the recent annual meeting of that body. He is a native of Pennsylvania, enlisted in the war as a private and won promotion up to brevet major. He is now judge of his district. The choice gives general satisfaction to the Grand army.

One of the murderers of Rev. Frank Haddock, the Iowa prohibition champion, has been found guilty of manslaughter in Iowa is eight years' imprisonment. The murder of Haddock was unusually villainous, and if the perpetrators are to be punished at all they should receive the death penalty.

The commission appointed by the government to view the Willamette Valley and Cascade Mountain wagon road, will in all probability make a report adverse to the interests of the present owners of the property, the land donations incident to the building of the road having repeatedly changed owners.

The brewers and millers of New York City propose to defeat by the use of money every legislator who voted for the Crosby and Vedder high license bills.

LEBANON AND VICINITY.

Visit to a beautiful section of the Willamette Valley.

The following agreeable opinion of Lebanon and vicinity is taken from the Oregonian, and will serve to show how others see us:

The town of Lebanon, some twelve miles from Albany, just on the eastern edge of the great Albany prairie, was visited by a representative of the Oregonian a few days since. It has a charming location, and is one of the cleanest, neatest and most thrifty looking little towns in the Willamette valley. It has a bank, several stores carrying large stocks of goods, two hotels, the St. Charles, kept by H. E. Parrish, being a very commodious and comfortable house for such a town. It has a newspaper, the Express, published by J. H. Stine. There are two churches, and the Methodists have another in course of erection. Beside the district schools there is the Santiam academy, where some of the prominent men of the state have graduated. A handsome two-story brick building, the first in the town, is just completed. Just in the outskirts of town is a flouring mill and a planing mill, and a short distance in the country is a cheese factory, which produces a most excellent article of cheese.

Although apparently near the foothills, Lebanon has a large country tributary to it. The section between the forks of the Santiam, known as "Canada," is an extensive and fertile territory, where many hops are raised. Many Indians were seen in town who had been engaged in hop picking, spending some of their earnings preparatory to going home. The work of railroad construction going on across the Cascades causes a great deal of teaming out of Lebanon, tools, supplies, etc., being sent there by rail and forwarded to the front by teams over the now much talked of wagon road, which runs away up through the Sweet Home valley and much fine country and crosses to Eastern Oregon.

Some five miles distant up the South Fork of the Santiam is Waterloo, where there is a soda spring, rising from the rocks in the channel of the river. This is quite a place of resort for Lebanon people. A pleasant drive behind a fast team from W. C. Peterson & Co's livery stable brought the Oregonian man to the place. There is a small fall in the river above which is a dilapidated dam which furnishes water supply for a flouring mill and a sawmill in early days. Below the fall is a long and deep pool suitable for boating and bathing, and crossing this on a floating bridge the soda spring is reached. It is a beautiful spot and the grove on the shore bears evidence that many people visit it. Coming back a different road is taken and the town of Sodaville is visited, where there is another soda spring. Some public benefactor deeded the spring and a plot of land around it to the public. The spring has been bricked up and a sort of pavilion with seats erected over it, and people walk back to the entrance of the plot. Many people were sitting around drinking the water, which is very pleasant, and many were taking home pugs and pitcherfuls for future consumption. From Sodaville a fine view is had of the prairie, with Albany in the distance, and away beyond the Coast range, with Mary's peak looming above the other peaks of the range. A more pleasant place than Lebanon and the country round about in which to spend the summer vacation cannot be imagined.

CRAWFORDSVILLE NOTES.

OCTOBER 2.
Quite a number of people are going up the Calappa to the mines. Some think there is a prospect for a rich mineral camp up there.

A. J. Shanks and wife came down from Fern ridge Saturday to his father's. He is teaching school up there and reports a good attendance.

School began here last Monday. Miss Belladonna Banta, of Wisconsin, is teaching.

Mrs. O. P. Abrams accompanied her husband to his logging camp to remain a week.

Mr. Jack Banta and family of this place, have moved on Mr. Pugh's place, about one mile and a half from here.

Mrs. Pugh has received her stock of full and winter millinery goods, and is ready to accommodate all who want goods in her line.

Mr. T. A. Lewis has moved his shoe-maker tools to Albany, where he expects to work at his trade in partnership with J. B. Hughes, of that place.

Mr. Hannab and family, who have been visiting in this vicinity, have returned to their home in Illinois. Grandma Hughes, who has been quite ill, is recovering.

We are glad that this country supports one prohibition paper. Hurrah for the Express! FAITH.

After the 10th of this month, the staging on the O. & C. railroad will be reduced to twelve miles, and one of the tunnels used. A few weeks after the line will be completed. Then a person can ride by rail from New York or Canada to Los Angeles or Mexico and return by way of Arizona and the southern states, or vice versa. Then look out for immigration to Oregon.

A drummer made President Cleveland a present of a Waterbury watch during his stop at Indianapolis. No doubt the traveling salesman thought he would give the president something which would occupy his mind while "swinging around the circle," as it would take him at least three hours each day to wind his watch.

During the month of September Nelson Bennett drove the big Cascade tunnel 430 feet. That is to say, at the east end the workers bored 210 feet and at the west end 220 feet. Mr. Bennett claims that this beats all previous records in tunnel boring. There only remains 3500 feet of the tunnel to bore.

The proposition to cover Goose Creek valley with water, by means of a canal tapping Snake river near or at the American Falls, is again revived. The canal is estimated, would cost half a million dollars and would reclaim 350,000 acres of land.
