Walla Walla, W. T., will have electric lights in a few weeks.

A brakeman named A. A. Martin was crushed to death by a Santa Fe train near San Anita, Cal.

The 13-year-old boy of W. K. White was run over by the cars at Gold Run, Cal. One leg was cut off and the other badly broken. He will die.

Peter Whitmore, the 19 year-old son of Captain Whitmore, fell from the top-mast of a vessel at Los Angeles, Cal., and was instantly killed.

M. Bow, a wealthy farmer living near Kent, W. T., was caught under a falling tree and crushed to death. He was 70 years old and well known.

William Higgins, aged 22 years, was run over and fatally injured at Lathrop, Cal., by walking off the end of a car while the train was in motion.

At Oceanside, Cal., Frank Martin, a freight conductor, slipped from a brakebeam while making up a train and several cars passed over his legs. He died in a few moments.

E. C. Allison was shot at San Mateo, Cal., by a shoemaker, who asserts that Allison entered his shop and attacked him first with a stick. Allison says he struck the cobbler after he was shot. The wounded man is not dangerously hurt.

The body of O. H. Peterson was found on a bank of the Russian river near Cloverdale, Cal., with a gash in his left wrist severing the artery. He had died only a short time previous. On his right wrist was a similar cut which was almost healed.

A boy 18 years old was killed at Dixon, Cal., while attempting to board a freight train bound for Sacramento. No one here knows him, but Louis Carson says that he called himself "Dutchy" and that his mother is a widow and lives on Thirteenth street between G and H, Sacramento.

A shocking attempt at murder was made at the farmhouse of R. W. Craig, two miles north of Stockton, Cal. Andy Hoeflich, a farm laborer, entered the bedroom of the two Craig girls, with the intention of killing Julia, aged 18. He entered the room, struck a match, and at once attacked Julia, cutting her throat from ear to ear.

L. M. Hudson, a well-known florist of Sumner, Pierce county, W. T., was accidentally killed while on a prospecting tour, near the foot of the glaciers of Mt. Tacoma. A revolver fell out of his pocket and was discharged, the bullet passing through his neck. His companions buried him forty miles from any settlement.

Louis Riva was found murdered at Guerneville, near Santa Rosa, Cal., in a cabin. A few days before a woman who went to see him on business, discovered that he was lying a few feet from the door, dead. He had shortly returned from a hunt, and had his powder-horn on when found. The bullet entered his body near the hip and ranged upward. Suspicion points strongly to a well-known man.

Miss Nettie McClanehan, who is only 13 years old, escorted by a man of about 40, named Henry Nelson, eloped from Chico, Cal. The pair were taken to the police station, where Nelson was discharged on his own recognizance to appear when wanted. The girl is detained, pending instructions from her family. Nelson told the officers that he and the girl were on their way to Mexico, where they would have been married.

Savage, Son & Co., proprietor of the Empire foundry, one of the oldest foundries on the coast, made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors at San Francisco to James H. Graham, chief clerk. The liabilities are from $75,000 to $90,000. The assets are estimated at $150,000. The failure is reported to be due to under bidding on the part of the firm. About 100 men are thrown out of employment.

Frank Sparks, of San Jose, Cal., a man about 45 years of age, wishing to avoid the noise made by democrats who were ratifying in his vicinity, took a walk toward Normal school. He entered the square and had gone a short distance when three men rushed up behind him and knocked him senseless with a sandbag. When he regained consciousness he made the discovery that $200 he had in his pocket was gone. There is no clue to the identity of the robbers.

Jesus Errada was arrested at the old town of Temecula, Cal., charged with stealing a mare and a colt in San Bernardino county. The officer started overland with the prisoner. On the way the prisoner got slightly in the lead of the officer, and whipped up his horse at full speed, thinking he would escape. His horse stumbled and fell, throwing him from the saddle with one foot hanging in the saddle. He was dragged some distance and fearfully mangled, dying shortly from his injuries.

Samuel Robertson, of San Francisco, aged 22 years, was shot and instantly killed by Albert Bear, another young man. Early in the day Bear, with his friend George Golden, went on a boating excursion on the bay, accompanied by two girls. When the party returned from Sausalito in the evening they went to a down-town restaurant for dinner, and then promenaded in Columbia square, near their homes. While there they got into a quarrel with some hoodlums and Bear finally sent a bullet through Robertson's heart. He then ran away but returned and surrended himself. Golden and the two girls were arrested on the spot, but later the girls were released. Been stated that he fired in self-defense.

Very Considerate.

"Well, John," said old man Jordan to his young friend, "you have just married, I hear."

"Yes, sir," he answered, with a spring morning smile; "just a month ago, and I want you to go up to dinner with me to-day."

"Have you got a cook?"

"No."

"Well, my boy, s'pose we go to a restaurant this time. You must remember I had a young wife once myself."—Texas Siftings.

—The train had run into a snowdrift and the engine was butting its head in rage against a six-foot bank. "For once the iron horse appears to be beaten," remarked a fat woman in a second class carriage. "You shouldn't call it an iron horse," mildly reproved a solemn-faced man. "Why not?" asked the fat woman in some surprise. "Because it's block tin," softly murmured the solemn-faced man, as he gazed out of the window and across the wintry waste with a far-away look in his eye.—English Magazine.

The boat was recovered and brought to the cannery. Gustinson was a fine young man aged 23, and is deeply regretted. The boat-puller was a stranger in the country.

THE CURIO CRAZE.

Japanese Bric-a-Brac Made in Modern American Factories.

I have known the time when a bronze catch for a Japanese coolie's tobacco pouch was worth a great deal, and any man who had a piece of Japanese lacquer or a vase, was a man above the common. Now they make Satsuma ware in America, and export Chinese bronze josses for popular worship from Birmingham to China. Curios? What's the use of paying big prices for curios, when you can lie about them just as easy. I know a lady who has a beautiful set of china, which is the admiration of her friends. She says it came from Japan, and is eight hundred years old. I know she bought it in Oakland, and it never saw Japan. Another has an old lamp that was supposed to have burnt in the Temple of Diana, goodness knows how many centuries ago. She fished it up in a second-hand store on Third street, and the proprietor of the store bought it with the effects of an Irish woman who made a fortune in a mine and sold out of the old truck she brought from Ireland.

I have myself seen the Japanese curio merchants pay one dollar apiece for brass imitation Japanese hair-pins, made in Birmingham, and sold by Nagasaki; and I've seen the wily foreigner pay them five dollars for the same pin and send it home as a great curio. Every thing seems to grow plentiful, even the oldest kind of relics.—San Francisco Chronicle.

—An Indian jungle is not a forest. All uncultivated or waste lands in India are called "jungles." Forests are scarce in that country. The "mountains jungles," where the tiger has his home, and from which he comes down to carry off people or domestic animals, have no trees other than low scattered bushes and rocks.

AGRICULTURAL.

Devoted to the Interests of Farmers and Stockmen.

Too much corn or cornmeal causes chicken cholera.

Linseed meal should not be fed to very young pigs except in small quantities, and not very often, as it is too much of laxative for them.

To prevent the formation of long tap roots and get a large number of small roots on plants raised in boxes use a shallow seed-bed, not over two inches of loam in the boxes. This dries out quickly, and care should be taken to keep it moist.

There is more gain, in proportion to its feed, during the first year of any animal's life than there is any time after. Acting on this hint, calves predestined for the butcher including all grade males, may be well fed until they are a year old, and then turned off for beef. If killed thus early, the male should not be castrated.

The utility of windmills on the farm is now very generally recognized and they are seen dotting hundreds of farms where five years ago none were to be found. A Western farmer writes that with his windmill he grinds all kinds of feed, makes a good article of corn-meal and graham flour, shells corn, runs a feed-cutter and a 29 inch wood saw.

When the farmers are advised to give warm water to stock, it should always be understood that if above blood heat it should have fed of some kind stirred in it to make it palatable; bran or corn meal will do. If given to them clear it should be, for the best results, only a little warmer than spring water, the icy chill entirely removed.

It certainly does not pay to keep a low grade of sheep and then let them take care of themselves. The small amount of wool secured as well as the poor quality, is such that no margin of profit will be left to the farmer over and above the cost. Even with poor sheep a much better growth of wool can be secured if they be reasonably well cared for than if they be left to themselves.

The very best time we believe to make plant cuttings of grape-vine canes is just as soon as frost destroys the leaves. Make two-joint cuttings, leaving an inch of wood beyond each. Plant these at an angle of 80 deg. in mellow soil, a foot apart. Firm the soil, especially about the lower joints; and then cover three inches deep after the first freeze with straw or litter.

Ten tons of superior Texas cottonseed were shipped from Galveston, Tex., consigned to the German East African Colonization Society, Zanzibar, Africa. An experienced planter accompanied the seed for the purpose of instructing the natives of Zanzibar in the cultivation of the cotton plant. This event marks the introduction of cotton on the east coast of Africa.

A method for protecting trees against rabbits and ground mice, practiced by Missouri farmers and indorsed by the Missouri State Horticultural Society, consists in covering the trunk of the tree around with wire cloth. If this be inserted an inch or two into the ground, it is claimed that it proves an equal protection to ground mice, which often girdle trees at and below the surface during the winter.

Experiments in pig feeding, instituted under the Danish Agricultural Society, go to show that skimmed milk has double the feeding value of buttermilk; that rye and barley are of about equal value, with a slight percentage in favor of rye, and that six pounds of skimmed milk have the same feeding value as one pound of rye or barley, and twelve pounds of buttermilk are required to obtain the same result of feeding value.

There is no popular craze just now for growing sunflowers. It is quite as well, since the old-fashioned reasons for planting them are as strong as they ever were. They made excellent winter food for hens, and if protected while young, the sunflower will rapidly tower up and make a splendid shade for them in hot weather, in the yard where fowls run. The plant is a gross feeder, and even the henyard is scarcely too rich for it.

Twenty years ago the value of fruit imported to Great Britain was given at about $15,000,000 from all points. Now it has increased to $37,000,000 Of the apples from North America, one-third reach British ports from Canada. Judging by the quantity shipped, the yellow Bellefleur must be immensely grown for American export, while the Baldwin also reaches Britain in immense numbers. The Newtown Pippin brings the highest price.

The old-fashioned open ditch is in our climate an expensive nuisance. Every spring it is partly filled with sediment, leaves of trees and soil washed down from its banks. There is, beside, a waste of time in plowing, cultivating, and every other to mwork in a field thus divided. The sooner the open ditch is made into an underdrain the better it will be for the farmer's purse. It may cost at first, but it will pay every way.

Except for beets and mangels, which thrive in hot weather, no heating manure should be used for root crops. Turnips, carrots and parsnips are better manured the year before with stable manure and some mineral fertilizer at seeding time. Too much heat and nitrogenous manure makes the roots grow faster, besides causing greater injuries from insects. Hog manure is especially rich and heating, and is therefore especially exceptionable on any ground intended for planting in root crops.

CARTAGO'S MARKET.

One of the Most Interesting Sights of a Central American Town.

Stalls are arranged on portions of three sides of the plaza, and almost every thing is exposed, calculated to find a quick sale with the natives of different hamlets who have come up to Cartago for the purpose of exchanging the productions of their gardens for meat and groceries. Seated close together on the ground, chattering unceasingly among themselves, the women lay snares for pulmonary complaints. No matter if the ground be wet from heavy rains, there the women crouch for hours on the damp soil, shinily clad in long, full skirt and shawl, impassive as statues, apparently heedless of their by no means healthful or pleasant position. The very absence of comfort renders the plaza of Cartago all the more picturesque, for the local coloring is stronger than in the modern market place of San Jose. All around are women wearing shawls over their heads, the heavy folds for some unaccountable reason being surmounted by a big straw hat. They have peculiar methods of calculating the amount of your indebtedness, which are as trying to the patience as they are primitive and amusing. Five dozen oranges at five cents a dozen will be no dos reales, but five cincos, and to find change for even a half dollar is more than the purchaser of small wares can prevail upon any man, woman or child to do. The ananas may be laid down and the oranges relinquished, but there is no sign of interest visible in the face of the girl, who shakes her head at sight of your small bill. The best way is to supply yourself with small coins.

One is always supposed to cheapen any thing one may wish to buy, although many an apparently poverty-stricken old man will keep his price in spite of your evident intention of moving on should he refuse to come to terms. But, while at one stall pineapples may be offered at fifteen cents apiece, the next man will give choicer fruit at half the price. At times, owing, perhaps, to his living nearer the town, and the roads being bad, some fortunate huckster gets a corner on potatoes or cabbages; and then one may cheapen in vain: the merchant stands in front of his suddenly-valuable stock and refuses all attempts at cajolement.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Citizen—What's this, Uncle Rastus, bill of six dollars for sawing a cord of wood.

Citizen—H—m. How would it do, Uncle Rastus, if I settled the bill by giving you the wood?

Uncle Rastus (dubiously)—Dat wood am only worth 'bout foah dollahs, sah.

Citizen—True. Well, what if I should throw in the saw and sawbuck?

A STAB IN THE DARK

Sometimes fails of its murderous intent. The insidious and dastardly attacks made upon the reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters by persons who seek to palm off cheap and fiery tonics as identical with it, or "the same thing under another name," or "equally as good," in most instances react disastrously upon the unprincipled traders upon popular credulity who attempt them, converting their speculations into ruinous failures. The Bitters is a pure, wholesome and thorough medicine, adapted to the total cure and prevention of fever and ague, bilious remittent, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, debility, nervous ness and kidney troubles. Its every ingredient, unlike those in the imitations of it, is of an ascertained standard of excellence, and while they, by reason of their fiery properties, react injuriously upon the brain and nervous system, of both these organs it is a sedative and invigorant. Refuse all these harmful imitations.

"Yes; I shall break the engagement," she said, folding her arms and looking defiant: "it is really too much to converse with him; he's as deaf as a post, and talks like he had a mouthful of mush. Besides, the way he has of spitting is disgusting." "Don't break the engagement for that; tell him to take Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It will cure him completely." "Well, I'll tell him. I do hate to break it off, for in all other respects he's quite too charming." Of course it cured his catarrh.

SPINAL WEAKNESS AND LUNG TROUBLES.

16 PRINCE STREET, NEW YORK, March 25, 1884.

Having been troubled with pains in back and chest during the last Winter I was compelled to remain at home unable to attend to business, until I was advised by a friend to try one of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. I cheerfully recommend them to persons having spinal weakness and lung troubles.

REMARKABLE SURGERY.

The science of surgery has made such wonderful progress in modern times that the most intricate and delicate op rations are now undertaken and carried to a successful issue. There are now several well authenticated cases of what is known as pneumotomy, that is to say the removal of diseased portions of the lungs in cases of consumption. While, however, this delicate operation has sometimes been successfully performed, the risks attending it are so great, and the chances of recovery so slight, that it is seldom resorted to. The safest plan in consumptive cases is to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This will always cure the disease in its earlier stages, thoroughly arresting the ravages of the terrible malady, by removing its cause and healing the lungs.

Consumption, Wasting Diseases,

And General Debility. Doctors disagree as to the relative value of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites; the one supplying strength and flesh, the other giving nerve power, and acting as a tonic to the digestive and entire system. But in Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites the two are combined, and the effect is wonderful. Thousands who have derived no permanent benefit from other preparations have been cured by this. Scott's Emulsion is perfectly palatable and easily digested by those who cannot tolerate plain Cod Liver Oil.

MANAGING SERVANTS.

Bob Burdette Tells How He Does It to the Satisfaction of All Concerned.

It doesn't lie in some people to get along with servants. They have no tact, no knack of managing. There is a great deal in managing a servant in such a way that the minion isn't aware of it. But some people don't know how to do this, and consequently a servant that is a jewel in my well-regulated household is utterly useless in my neighbor's service. Now, not long ago I had occasion to part with a colored man. I didn't want to cast him upon the cold world, because I feared that if the world got too cold he would come back to me, so I unloaded him upon a neighbor. I never had a ripple of trouble with him. I had employed him ostensibly to groom a horse occasionally and mow the lawn once or twice a year. I soon learned that he was running an African dormitory and a poker layout in my stable, and the general appearance of my premises finally brought me letters from the American Missionary Union, asking permission to establish one of their Congo out stations between my barn and the kitchen. This, as much as any thing else, induced me to part with Albert. He shipped with me under the nom de plume of Albert Wilson, but I noticed that some of the natives called him "Lame Jake" and he requested me, in writing his letter of recommendation, to call him Thompson Easley. By and by my neighbor said to me: "That man, Sam Norton, you sent to me—did you ever have any trouble with him?" I said: "No, never." "Well," said my neighbor, "I can't get along with him; he won't do one thing I tell him, not a thing." "Oh, well," I said, "he tried that on me, too, when he first came, but I settled that in short order." "How did you manage?" asked my neighbor. "Well," I told him, "I quit telling him to do any thing." And do you know my neighbor was real angry with me, and abused me, and said I was a fool and had deceived him. You see, he had no tact; that very night Albert landed on my coast again. He confided to me that his real name was James Sinclair, and he brought with him his brother, whom he introduced as Walter Taylor. They took up their old quarters in the barn, and boarded with me for a week before I was able to secure them places in the county jail. They both left me with severe regret, and Albert said, in parting, that any time I wanted him to come back, a letter addressed to Charles Martin would reach him. Albert was a saddle-colored pagan, but he was the richest man in names I ever worked for.—Burdette, in Globe-Democrat.

—There are people in this world so constituted that they would not think themselves paragons of virtue because the statute of limitations forbade their being tried for grand larceny.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

—Henry Shaw, the venerable St. Louis philanthropist, who gave the Missouri Botanical Garden and Tower Grove Park to the public, has donated nine acres of ground near the park to Washington University for base ball and other athletic sports.

—A St. Paul baby fell from a second-story window, alighting on an awning. Thence it bounced off and fell on the shoulders of a gentleman who was passing, and who caught it in his arms. The gentleman's plug hat was ruined, but the baby wasn't hurt in the least.

—"Poor fellow, he died in poverty," said a man of a person lately deceased. "That isn't any thing," exclaimed a seedy bystander. "Dying in poverty is no hardship; it's living in poverty that puts the thumb-screws on a fellow."—Texas Siftings.
