THE ELECTION IS OVER.

The great question is decided as to who is to be our next President; but a question of more importance to the American citizen is settled. That question is, that the policy of this nation is to be one of protection to American labor and American industries. Our readers, with a few exceptions, will be affected but little as to whether Harrison or Cleveland is to be the chief magistrate (they are both good men and each have made a public record that their friends are proud of, but the question of protection has been settled by the ballot, and that will be the policy of this nation for years to come. Other issues will come up in the future to engage the attention and action of our statesmen, law-makers and voters, but this question will hardly be agitated again for years to come. Doubtless the internal revenue taxes on whiskey and tobacco will undergo a complete and radical change, if not a total abolition. The next great issue on this line will be, free whiskey and tobacco or no whiskey at all, and in the next four years there will be a mighty tumbler on this question. The Republican party cannot go backward or recede from its position on this question, and what action the Democrats will take remains yet to be seen. The prohibition party will collide with one party or the other, and then form an alliance with the other party.

But the greatest question, the most important question of all, is, shall Americans rule America? or shall the foreign element of our great country control its destiny? The most humiliating thing in the campaign through which we have just passed, is the fact that both parties bid high for the foreign vote. And even worse than that, both parties cringed and twaddled the suppliant knee to gain that vote. What will please and gain the Irish and German vote, and how shall we control this element for our party? Shall we maintain our Americanism in our institutions, or give place to foreign domination? Step by step our country has been yielding to this influence, one by one we are giving up our distinct principles and established customs until we can hardly tell what the real legacy was that was left by our fathers. The time has come for one of our great parties to grapple in earnest with this question, or the necessity will compel the organization of an American party that will have the Chinese exclusion act must be the prelude to a greater safeguard to our American interests. It is all nonsense to talk about protection to American industries and then allow the paupers and scum of Europe to come over here and run our machinery of government. We want protection for American homes, we want protection for the heritage of our fathers, we want protection for the morals and religion of our ancestors.

Gen. Harrison is of a noble ancestry—the blood of revolutionary sires courses in his veins. He is, or ought to be at least, the very ideal type of a true American citizen. The country will expect much at his hands, and although taking no active part in his election, we confidently expect great things from him. He is neither wanting in judgment, foresight or moral stamina. The Republicans have now a working majority in both houses, which places the entire government in the hands of that party, and whatever mistakes may be made, the fault will lie at their door. It is a foregone conclusion that at least five more territories will take their places in the great sisterhood of states, and this will prove a blessing in many ways. Let us all, as good citizens, acquiesce in the will of the majority and try, in the language of the dying soldier, "Our country still lives."

Washington Territory now ranks sixteenth among the coal-producing states and territories, and yet her coal has barely been touched. At Cle-elum alone vast measures of coal exist, and within two miles of the town mountains of iron of the finest quality have been exposed. The territory has more of both iron and coal than Pennsylvania has within the same area, and she has vast more territory than the Keystone state. All that is needed in either Oregon or Washington to produce coal or iron enough for the world is capital and enterprise.

Reading through the newspapers, an observant reader cannot fail to notice the alarming number of divorces that are daily being applied for and granted. Statisticians furnish us the fact that the number of divorce suits is constantly increasing, until it has become almost a by-word that our modern marriages "begin in courtship and end in court."

Whatever else may be said of the campaign just closed, it has been the freest of personal abuse of any national campaign ever known in the country. It has been a fair discussion of the questions at issue, while "mud slinging" has been carefully avoided by both sides, which is a pleasing improvement upon the old style of American politics.

It is stated that one million laborers in America who desire work cannot get it; and that the farmers of the Western States are loaded down with $3,000,000,000 of mortgage debts. Is there a legislative remedy for this sad condition of affairs?

Sam Small was nominated on the prohibition ticket for state senator in Georgia just ten days before election. On election day the vote stood: For Small, 1423; for Democratic candidate, 1696; for Republican candidate, 1339.

The official reports show that out of about 100,000 office holders more than 90,000 have been changed since Mr. Cleveland came into power.

It is said that smugglers receive $30 a day for running the Chinese over the Washington Territory.

ELECTION FIGURES.

The following shows who carried each State and the number of electoral votes each State has. Virginia and West Virginia are still claimed by both parties, and it will take the official count to decide it; but giving them both to Cleveland, Harrison will have a majority of 65.

STATES.	Harrison.	Cleveland.

Total electoral votes, 401; necessary for election, 201. In 1884 the electoral vote stood: Cleveland, 219; Blaine, 182.

WHAT CAUSES TYPHOID.

The typhoid fever, it has been ascertained by scientists, is generally caused by the existence in the water used for domestic purposes of minute animalcules, which are visible only by the aid of the most powerful magnifying glass. It has been proven that these microbes are generated by contact with sewage products, and are taken into the system through the use of such water, passing from the digestive system to the circulating system of the human body and multiplying in such enormous numbers as to change the character of the blood and bring on the dangerous and contagious diseases known as typhoid fever, diphtheria, etc. These are facts accepted generally by the medical fraternity, and may be termed scientific in their character. The life and habits of these microbes have been studied by eminent practitioners, and it has been ascertained that they can be and are destroyed by boiling the water containing them at the highest temperature, this process rendering it perfectly innocuous and healthy. In many cities where the water supply is taken from the rivers subject to pollution, or from springs of doubtful character, a great many people resort to boiling all of the water used in their households. The trouble of this is something, of course, and the water so heated lacks the life and vigor of fresh spring water, but this difference is not perceptible or disagreeable after a little use. The typhoid poison is effectually removed by killing the fungus life which sewerage water has imparted to it.

A Plea to F. M. P. for the Noble Red Man.

PERGAMAS, Nov. 12, 1888.

Whereas—
"The ghosts of Yankess long since dead,
Who sold him flint to make their bread,
Have tricked old Satan and returned
To tell us sinners are not burned."

Why not allow a few extinct Indians of extinct tribes to come along and give in their testimony in their own extinct language? If those Yankess, after "traveling through the heavenly spheres, Have now come back to break your chairs, To spend some time in fooling chairs, In scolding women, boys and girls."

Why not allow the noble extinct red man to come along and see the fun? Now, Mr. F. M. P., one of our mediums has been heard to say that you are an educated man. That being the case, you know what a row was made when Galileo said "The world moves." Comment is unnecessary. But just consider, Mr. F. M. P., the almost infinite amount of time, labor, study and research, to say nothing about the expense incurred by those archaeological societies in digging up bones, stones, bricks, bits of pottery, &c., &c., in those old heathen cities, just to find out what they did and said. Then why not allow James Vinson & Co. to dig up some of those extinct noble red men and learn from them all about

This new world we live so dear And what made them to disappear, For those aforesaid Yankess
"In all the starry worlds have been, In Venus, Mercury, Saturn, Mars, The Milky way and all the stars, They've seen your friends, now doing well, Since Yankess have abolished hell."

And of course some of those noble extinct have been with them. Then why allow the heathen Chinese, with his tail on the wrong end, to freely circulate amongst us with impunity, and not allow the noble extinct to even revisit his ancestral home, when he is so useful in pointing out the spot where treasures are hid.
And then, Mr. F. M. P., you write of the Dr. Whitman affair as though there never had been such an atrocious deed. You surely forget the St. Bartholomew massacre or the doings of the holy inquisition, compared with which anything the uncultured red man has been able to perform sinks into contemptible insignificance, and no wonder he hides and skulks under the table.
Hoping that in your next you will not entirely obliterate us, we remain, yours truly,
DAMPHINO.

Many persons contract severe colds during the early winter months, and permit them to hang on persistently all winter, weakening the lungs and paving the way for catarrh, chronic bronchitis, or consumption. No one can afford to neglect a cold. A single bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure the most severe cold, and costs but 50 cents. For sale by M. A. Miller.

The practice of filling the horse barrel with vegetables, fruit, pork carcasses and soap cakes is believed by some excellent authorities to be the cause of a large per cent. of malarial fevers and other maladies which bring sadness and gloom and death to nearly every rural neighborhood.

Bargain List of Real Estate

FOR SALE BY

A. R. CYRUS & CO.,

Real Estate Agents,

LEBANON, LINN COUNTY, OREGON.

Lebanon is a thriving town of about 600 inhabitants, pleasantly situated in the midst of the most favorable portion of Linn county and also of the Willamette valley. It is the terminus of the Lebanon branch of the O. & C. R. R., 13 miles from Albany, overlooking the beautiful Albany prairie, and controls the trade of a large section of country, both prairie and hill lands being tributary to it, giving a large variety of products. Some of the finest fruit lands of the valley are near this place; there are also great facilities for manufacturing and stock raising.

It is but 41 miles to the famous mineral springs at Sodaville, and 6 miles to Waterloo, where there is a magnificent water power and also a mineral spring. Altogether, this is a most desirable location for settlers.

Linn county is finely situated for commerce, being crossed by two railroads north and south and one east and west, and the Willamette river on the west.
