We return thanks to Mr. G. W. Wheeler for a large potato which he presented to this office. It weighed 7 1/2 pounds.

Don't move in with your wife's people for the winter, but buy yourself a new stove. They are down to bed-rock at Swan River.

Mr. Laforgue, a former resident of this vicinity, was in town this week. He now has charge of the Coleman hotel at Eugene.

Rev. F. M. Parker, a former citizen of this place, is visiting in town and helping in the protracted meeting at the C. P. church.

Mr. M. J. Monteith, of Albany, paid our town a visit on Wednesday. It looks natural to see Mac on our street. Come again, Mac.

The children of Mr. Brewster, who lives several miles from town, have the scarlet fever, but Dr. Courtney informs us that they are convalescent.

For novelties in dressing cases, album, picture frames and toys, optical goods, &c., for the holidays, call on Owen Osburn, druggist, Brownsville, Oregon.

Married, Dec. 9, 1888, by Rev. M. Hickman, at the residence of Silas Reynolds, Mr. Walter Reynolds and Miss Elmina Crump, all of Linn county, Oregon.

Everybody goes and everybody comes with a smile on their faces, as much as to say I will see you some other time, but Miller still leads in the holiday trade.

A young lady of Nevada City, Cal., is now under the treatment of a physician for a nervous affection brought on by excessive gum chewing. Girls, take warning.

Protracted meeting is now in progress at the C. P. church, conducted by the pastor and assisted by the other ministers of the town. So far the congregations have been good and the interest is increasing.

There has been various answers to the conundrum: Why is a ship called a ship? We think the proper answer is: Because she is handsomest when she is well-rigged. Wives should cut this out and show it to their husbands.

Raising poultry is a good business in this part of Oregon. There is always a market for chickens and eggs at good prices. Some families almost supply themselves with groceries and dry goods with the eggs they take to market.

J. M. Dillard, of Dillard's station, recently took a carload of live poultry—400 turkeys and 900 chickens—which he had bought in Douglas county, to San Francisco. They were in crates on an open car covered with canvas awning.

Don't fail to attend the auction sale in Albany. M. J. Monteith has auctions every afternoon in the store-room formerly occupied by S. E. Young. Everything will be sold to the highest bidder. Don't miss this chance to get dry goods, etc., at your own price.

Having enlarged our business with a complete stock of everything kept in a first-class furniture house, we invite the public to call and give us a trial. We make a specialty of everything kept in the undertaker's line.

FORTMILLER & IRVING, Albany, Oregon.

As will be seen by our Brownsville correspondence, the family of Mr. Gus Thompson are not afflicted with small-pox, as was reported here and elsewhere, but are enjoying good health, and were not at any time exposed to the disease. Everyone will be glad to hear that the report is untrue.

Mr. John B. Slater has retired from the editorship of the Stevens County (W. T.) Miner, in order to give his attention to the duties of probate judge, to which office he has been elected the second time. Mr. Slater is well known in Lebanon, having been raised here, and his many friends will be glad to hear of his promotion.

We call the attention of the public to the fact that the merchants of Lebanon are selling goods at a very small margin. They are using every fair and honorable means to retain their old customers and gain new ones. The business men of our town are broad and liberal, and will do all they promise, and make good their words. Advertising columns and give WRECKED. The Steamship Yaquina Bay Stranded on South Beach.

Last Sunday evening at 6.30 o'clock the splendid iron steamship, the Yaquina Bay, while making her first trip from San Francisco to Yaquina, struck upon the sands at the Yaquina bar, while being towed in by the tug Resolute, and may prove a total wreck. The cause of the accident can only be ascribed to carelessness or negligence on the part of some one in charge of the management of the steamship.

Ordinarily the bar is considered so safe that vessels in entering merely follow in the wake of the tug, but, contrary to this rule, the Yaquina Bay was being towed in. The bar was smooth when the vessel crossed, but after passing over the bar proper, the ship suddenly took a sheer to the right and struck upon the sands about two hundred feet south of the end of the jetty. The tug immediately went to her assistance and would undoubtedly have pulled her off without trouble or damage, had it not been that the powerful six-inch hawsers continually broke, and within one hour after striking she had worked fully fifteen feet on the sands. The tug worked with the stranded vessel all night, but without avail. The constant beating of the waves and wind has stove two holes in her bottom and turned the ship about, bow in, and she now lies at nearly right angles with the end of the jetty.

Not the least blame can be laid to the bar, for when the vessel struck the sands she was entirely over the bar, and the last heave of the lead showed twenty-five feet of water. The vessel was in command of Capt. Kelly, who brought her from New York, but was, on entering the harbor, turned over to Pilot Lord, who is in the employ of the Oregon Development Co.

The ill-fated vessel made the remarkably quick time from New York to San Francisco in 53 days and 9 hours. It is not a new vessel, having been built in 1881 at Philadelphia. She is a screw steamer, with half brig rigging; is a double-decker, made of iron, 257 feet in length, 34 in width, 21.2 in depth, and has a registered tonnage of 1,500 tons. She has compound engines and four built-hood shafts. She has been plying between New York and Liverpool up to the time of her purchase by the Oregon Pacific people, who re-christened her from her original name, "Caracas." She is valued at $250,000 and was insured. The cargo, consisting of 300 tons of freight, was saved.

LATEST FROM THE VESSEL. Dispatches received Wednesday indicate that conditions are now favorable for getting the vessel afloat. It has been ascertained that she is not leaking, and it is thought has no holes in her bottom. She is lying in a sheltered position. New hawsers, wrecking apparatus, etc., has been secured, and with the aid of the three tugs on the bay a united effort will be made to get the vessel afloat. The people of the valley hope the effort will be successful.

Two Accidents. About 5 o'clock Monday morning Mr. Wm. Watkins, the coal mine man, was walking along the sidewalk in Lebanon, near the depot, it being very dark, when he fell off the walk against a bundle of tools he was carrying, and broke two of his ribs. He heard the morning train and started for Portland, but got off at Oregon City and the doctor's fracture room. Mr. Watkins said he would sue either the railroad or city of Lebanon or somebody for damages. A boy who was walking along near Mr. Watkins at the same time fell off the walk and injured himself considerably, perhaps spraining his arm. There was no light burning at the time, though it is said it has been customary to have one there.

We copy the above from the Albany Democrat to call the attention of our city fathers to the necessity of providing street lights in a few places where most needed. The walk at the place where Mr. Watkins fell is about two feet from the ground, and in the dark a person not familiar with the surroundings might easily fall off. Mr. Watkins returned Tuesday night, so we presume he was not seriously injured; but that does not alter the necessity of a light at that point, and a light is cheaper than defending a damage suit.

New-Comers. We are glad to see quite a number of visitors and emigrants in our town. We bid them a cordial welcome and extend them the open hospitality of a generous and warm-hearted people. We call upon all our people, in town or country, to do all in their power to make the strangers feel at home among us. Let us not be afraid of losing a little time or incurring a little expense in advertising our country. We have immense resources, but we must greet the stranger kindly and welcome him with little acts of courtesy if we would favorably impress him with our section. Many a man of energy, tact and means would settle and help develop this country, who, if treated coldly, would go away and settle elsewhere.

Christmas Tree. This ancient custom of a good social entertainment for the young folks is innocent and right, and we hope the public-spirited young people of our town will take the matter in hand at once, as there is no time to lose. We ought to have at least two such entertainments in Lebanon. Now don't you old folks say, "Nonsense," but lend a helping hand. Remember that you were once young, and that you cannot put old heads on young shoulders." Let us have a "merry, merry Christmas," with plenty of innocent cheer. And don't forget the poor and needy, but make all hearts alike glad and happy.

ACADEMY NOTES.

Frank Ross is once more seen in his accustomed place in the school room. Rial Smith, a student of last winter, was at the E. L. S. last Monday night. All were very glad to see him back again, as he has been in Washington Territory for several months.

The Professor thinks that a mental arithmetic sociable once in a while would be more beneficial than so many of other kinds.

There will be no meeting of the E. L. S. on Dec. 21, the time for the regular public meeting, but the public meeting will be held on Dec. 31st, the last meeting of the old year. All are invited.

School will close one week from Friday for one week, commencing again on the last day of the old year.

The following piece of poetry is taken from the Literary Star edited some six years ago. The author, Mr. John H. Marks, is now in Aspen, Colorado, and is a civil engineer and United States Deputy Mineral Surveyor:

An angel mother's life appears; And recedes long past, from us, we see, As memory kneels at mother's knee, The pleasant thoughts of childhood's hour, Come back to us with magic power. The pleasant, serene, days and weeks, Trials and triumphs childhood knows: The lessons by our mother's tongue, Adapted well to childish thoughts; The right to practice, wrong to fear, Remembering God is ever near.

Each purchaser of one dollar's worth of goods at any store from the 1st of December till the eve of the 24th will be given a ticket free for a chance to draw a fine plush toilet set worth $20.

When a person purchases a purchase they will be given a card numbered; their name and number will be put down in a book. On the eve of the 24th the numbers to be placed in a box, shook up, and some young lady, blindfolded, to draw a ticket from the lot, and the party holding the ticket with number corresponding with the one drawn will be allotted the prize. Now is your opportunity to get something nice for nothing. Give me a call. M. A. MILLER, Lending Druggist.

THE FIRE BELL. Last Tuesday night about 9:30 o'clock an alarm of fire was quickly responded to by the fire company. There was a smart blaze in Joe Harbin's blacksmith shop that started under the work bench. A few buckets of water put out the fire, without the use of the pump. The cause of the fire is a mystery. The prompt action of the company shows that we have an efficient company that can be depended upon in any emergency.

Improvements. We note with pride a general spirit of improvement going on in and around Lebanon: New buildings being erected, new enterprises springing into existence, a fine lot of choice fruit trees being planted, and there is a general air of progress. If we could have a few small factories, such as broom making, a tan yard, a cannery and a creamery, it would pay handsomely and enhance our town and vicinity very much.

A NARROW ESCAPE. Col. W. K. Nelson, of Brooklyn, came home one evening, feeling a peculiar tightness in the chest. Before retiring, he tried to draw a long breath but found it almost impossible. He suffered four days from pneumonia, and the doctors gave him up. Dr. Acker's English Remedy for Consumption saved him and he is well to-day. Sold by Beard & Yates.

The Happiness Man in Town. Is the fellow who bought a new lot of furniture at the mammoth house of Fortmiller & Irving, at Albany. If you want to please your wife and make her greet you with loving smiles, just go and do likewise. They are honest dealers and carry an immense stock.

TERRIBLE FOREWARNING. Cough in the morning, hurried or difficult breathing, raising phlegm, tightness in the chest, quickened pulse, chilliness in the evening or sweats at night, all or any of these things are the first stages of consumption. Dr. Acker's English Remedy for Consumption will cure these fearful symptoms, and is sold under a positive guarantee by Beard & Yates.

Vaccination. Dr. J. S. Courtney has just received a supply of fresh vaccine virus.
