

BROWNSVILLE.

E. Martin, of Fish Lake, was in town on Wednesday.

Andy Gross, of Centerville, Or., is paying Brownsville friends a visit.

Dr. A. H. Diven of Salem City, Penn., is visiting J. M. Long, of this place.

Mr. Barnes, of Seio, was in town during the past week looking for an investment in real estate.

On Monday last Stephen Riley, who resides with W. T. Cochran on his farm, received a kick from his horse, resulting in a broken leg.

Those desiring information in regard to A I investment in real estate should consult the bulletin of O. P. Coshow, who has on hand at his office numerous bargains in home sites and farms.

"Oklahoma" means beautiful land, but when you find a land that beats "Webfoot" for products, climate, good looking babies and pretty women, you must be very previous in your morning rising.

One of the finest specimens of juvenile horse flesh can be seen at the farm of Joseph Hume. It is a yearling colt weighing 920 pounds, is of a beautiful dark bay color, and was sired by Peasles imported Percheron, "Merlin."

On Wednesday the postal department of this town was removed from its former site to the new office adjoining the store of G. A. Dyson. The building which was built for the purpose is neat and amply fitted with glass front and lock boxes, and is quite a credit to our town.

R. M. Moxley and James McHargue have formed a partnership in the baking, confectionery and fancy grocery line, Mr. Moxley having purchased and removed to the City Bakery. This will form a strong combination in the candy business, which fact should be remembered by the young folks and all those desiring fresh bread, cakes, etc.

The South Brownsville school, I. D. Boyer, principal, closed with appropriate exercises on Saturday last. The attendance for the past term under the management of Prof. Boyer has been over average, and the progress in studies made by the pupils has been most satisfactory alike to parents and teacher. The closing exercises were of a most entertaining character and gave evidence of close application to studies.

The amount of patronage bestowed upon Mrs. Sanders and Howe at their millinery store by the ladies of Brownsville, will convince the most skeptical that only the latest and most nobby styles of ladies' and misses' spring bonnets and hats are kept in stock, with a most complete line of ribbons, feathers and trimmings.

Wild strawberries are abundant.

Mrs. Ely Roby and children are visiting relatives in Prinesville, eastern Oregon.

On Friday evening at the North Brownsville city hall the ladies of the Baptist church gave a "corn supper" was well patronized and proved a perfect success both financially and also as an epicurean feast. At 7:30 the public were invited to be seated and partake of the many palatable dishes compounded from corn, embracing corn bread, corn hulled, corn starch, corn Johnny cake, corn gems, corn starch cake, corn meal mush and milk, corn beef, corn popped, corn balls, corn coffee, corn starch custard, corn starch pie, also white bread and coffee. For the space of two hours the tables were filled by a hungry crowd, keeping the young ladies in attendance, who were prettily addressed for the occasion, actively engaged attending to the wants of the large number who enjoyed a most palatable meal for the reasonable charge of 25 cents, thereby increasing the church funds by many dollars and helping a worthy cause. At the conclusion of the supper a musical entertainment was given by the young folks, some choice vocal selections being rendered in a most creditable manner, which concluded the programme for an evening, voted by all attending a most enjoyable success. A REPLY.

EDITOR EXPRESS:-

I am very glad that my friend O'Connor noticed my article on "Chinese Labor," though he considered me not worth noticing, and I thought that I would show my respect to him by a short reply.

First—He says that I claimed the Chinese to be superior to white labor. If I did I did wrong, for we can only compare Chinese labor with white labor, and not Chinese simply with white labor. But I think that I know what Mr. O'Connor meant, and I would say that the statement is false, for I never claimed that Chinese labor was superior to white labor. Nor do I think that it is, but the contrary. The idea that I tried to set forth was, that the reason why the railroad employed Chinese was that they were more to be depended upon than white men. This can be proven by the fact that the railroad employs Chinese instead of white men. We all know that white men would be more convenient to handle if, as a laboring class, they could be depended upon.

Second—My friend asked me to answer a question, which I frankly admit I could not have done if he had not answered it for me. For his information I am much obliged. But the question with me is, why did they employ Chinese when white men could do so much more? You say that it was because Anderson had for his advisers such men as me. That is the first time that I was ever compared to a man holding such an important position. But I think Anderson was a poor railroad man to have such men as us for his advisers.

Third—Mr. O'Connor charged me with seeking for a soft snap or employment on the railroad. As to that, I would say that I wouldn't exchange my occupation for any, that I am competent to fill, that the railroad masters might give me. But holding to that part of our constitution which says that "all men are created equal," I am opposed to this law, mean, underhanded way of oppressing, or putting anything in the way of those who were not so fortunate in their birth as I. But there are many crank office seekers who have no merit in and of themselves, and lacking moral worth, they take advantage of anything that they think will give them public recognition, and I suppose that Mr. O'Connor is one of that stamp. He would not sell his soul to the devil for a loaf of bread, but he would sell his soul and all that he has to the devil for the chance of holding public office, if it wasn't more than to be read supervisor. Such men are fifty degrees below my sovereign contempt.

CRAWFORDSVILLE.

Prospecting going on up the Callpool and the prospectors think they have made some good finds and that there will be much gold and silver taken from that section in the early future. Copper has also been found.

Major Smith left Halsey on Friday, 26 ult., for a trip to the saw mills, but not returning for several days his friends became uneasy and went out to look for him. He had gotten on the wrong road and wandered up the river to the logging camps, and had remained there without food for himself and horses until he was found on Thursday, May 2. Both the Major and his horses were badly used up. The Odd Fellows turned out in force to look for him. When found he was quite badly chilled, but was brought out safely, furnished food and taken to Halsey the same day. We earnestly hope his privations for several days will not seriously affect him.

Colonel Alley, of Eugene, was here last week writing up this section of Linn county for a pamphlet to be sent east. He is preparing a descriptive history of the entire county for distribution east and elsewhere. He seems to be the right man in the right place.

O. P. Coshow, Jr., of the firm of O. P. Coshow & Sons, real estate and insurance agents, Brownsville, visited the town. They are five men, and rustle for their patrons.

J. H. Scott, of the firm of J. H. Scott & Son, has gone on a trip to San Francisco in the interest of their business as tanners and carriers. Their leather ranks No. 1 in the California market. More anon. X. Y.
