We noticed in one of our Texas exchanges that at one place an artesian well had been bored over 1500 feet, and is still being bored, but no water has been struck yet. Now we guess this will be a pretty hard story for some of these old Oregonians to believe, but we think it is all true.

This week the sawmill of Humphrey & Michael was hauled through town. It was under an attachment for an old debt, which the sheriff served on it. We hope this matter will soon be straightened up, and the mill resume business, as lumber is in great demand.

On last Sunday evening a man giving his name as Gum came to town and said he had been shot in the leg, and wanted Dr. Foley to give him some medicine to keep it from swelling, but would not let it be dressed or examined. He is the same man who had the row in Retherford's saloon.

Considerable excitement was caused last Friday evening by the firing of two pistol shots in Retherford's saloon. It seems that a man named Gum, who has been working for Ross Humphrey was in there, and was pretty full. He became boisterous and Mr. Retherford ordered him out, but he refused to obey. One word led to another, until finally they began to throw bottles and glasses at each other, and then Retherford fired his pistol into the ceiling twice, trying to scare the man, but he went out and picked up some rocks and started back again, but was stopped by the marshal.

On last Saturday night there was considerable disturbance in the east part of our usually quiet town, caused by a pack of hoodlums who, no doubt, had inhaled too much snake poison, throwing rocks and clubs against Arnett's house. This, of course, caused the old woman to turn floose, and, as there was a gun or two in the house, the air was soon full of vile oaths and gunshots. Now we don't pretend to say who were to blame, nor do we know, but we think the city officials should not allow such disgraceful acts to go unnoticed. They say, "We can't look after such things;" but we say you can and should do so, and will certainly receive the support of all good citizens.

Ralston; Sec'y, A. R. Cyrus; Treasurer, G. H. Bland; Directors, D. Andrews, J. G. Eaton and N. M. Folms. It was decided to appeal to the citizens of Lebanon and vicinity to assist in putting the academy building, grounds and fences in good repair. This grand and beautiful campus, the gift of those noble citizens, Jeremiah Ralston and Owen Kees, who have both gone to their reward, should be kept in good repair, and be, as it is, the pride of the town of Lebanon and surrounding country. Let all take hold with a will and put this property in good shape, and be sure you will reap an hundred fold in benefits, as it is fully determined to make the Santiam Academy a thoroughly equipped educational institution.
