WHO TO VOTE FOR.

It is time for the voters of our State to ask themselves what sort of man should be elected, and what sort of man should not be elected. There are many grounds of disqualification too obvious to need mention. Among the essential qualifications to be sought in an officer, in addition to honesty and integrity, are these: He should be a man of mature years and of sound business judgment—a man who has proved by the successful conduct of his own affairs, ability to manage the affairs of the public. He should be a man who, when once he has taken the oath of office, will keep steadily in mind the fact that no matter how he was nominated he is in office not as a representative of any party clique, but of the whole people. And finally, he should be a man whose private life even if not immaculate, has at least not been so vicious and profligate that he deserves to be barred from the hearth of the respectable household. No man should be elected to any office who is a salaried employee, and especially a salaried employee of a corporation, such as a railroad company, that is liable to want franchises during his term of office. A man working on a salary is not master of his own time. He must first serve his employer, and business as an officer must in all cases take second place. And if his employer be a corporation seeking favor from the people and the government, then it becomes not merely a question of time to do the people's work, but a question of unbiased and disinterested loyalty to the people's interests. Who believes that a railway employee will risk his bread and butter by arraying himself against his company in case its interests conflict with those of the people?

No statesman can afford to omit the common people from his calculation. They are the very root and core of society. Presidents are only blossoms of the national tree. The root is more dependent upon the foundation than the blossom upon the stem. Nearly all if not quite all the movements which have changed the thinking and determined the new courses of the world have been upward, not downward. The great revolutionaries have generally been cradled in manure and gone through rough discipline in early life. "All men who have done any notable work in the world have felt the consciousness of its importance as a fire in the bones. They could not languidly dream of it, not contemplate it from a hazy distance. They have hasted unto the battle. Such a consciousness makes men die young. It drives the blood along the channels with an urgency that greatly distresses nature, and strains the intellectual nerve until the brain sees strange sights and often trembles for its own safety. Only men of strong natures know what is meant by this lavish expenditure of life."

It is apparent to the most casual observer that our population is gravitating toward the cities and towns. While we like to see our towns growing in population and wealth, we question the wisdom of such a course if done at the expense and impoverishment of the country. As cities grow there must be a corresponding growth and development in the rural districts, or a collapse is certain to result. What the country needs is not a more diligent class of farmers, but small farms well tilled, a greater variety of crops, and a thorough, practical knowledge of some one branch of husbandry.

"To discontinue an advertisement," says John Wanamaker, "is like taking down your sign. If you want to do business you must let the people know it. Standing advertisements are better and cheaper than reading notices. They look more substantial and business-like and inspire confidence. I would as soon think of doing business without clerks as without advertising."

It will not be long until the candidates start out on the campaign. One-half of them at least will work hard for nothing and board themselves. If we could forecast the result next June we would gladly lessen the campaign expenses.

Generally when people have nothing to do they buck again' any one else doing much.

THE RAILROAD.

Mr. Huntington has declared his intention to alter the narrow gauge to standard gauge. It now behooves the citizens of Lebanon and vicinity to make an effort to secure the road through our town. Railroads are not built for the accommodation of small towns and impoverished communities, but are the creatures of traffic and commerce. Good reasons (which among capitalists are equivalent to paying dividends) must outweigh the financial advantages of the old narrow gauge line before we can entertain any hope of a change of route. Very little can be said in favor of the route now traversed by the narrow gauge. A great many long and unnecessary curves have altered many miles to the length and forty or fifty thousand dollars to its current expenses. Bridges which cannot be altered without paying impracticable points, and the road miles by several miles some of the important towns in the upper Willamette valley. Unless the road be built near the east side of the valley, the rich agricultural belt lying east of the present route, together with the lumbering interests and rich mineral deposits of the Cascades, may prove a sufficient inducement to some other company to avail themselves of this unoccupied territory and reduce the present line to the condition of a mere straggler.

SOBER THOUGHTS FOR SOBER PEOPLE.

MAN'S RELATION TO LAW.

Man must stand in one of two relations to law; either to law as an outward declaration of authority, or to law as an inward principle of love. Take the principle into the family for practical elucidation. Law as an outward authority, is established in the family, to meet ignorance on the one hand or disorder on the other. So long as the household has worked harmoniously, the head of the house does not feel called upon to write commandments, and publish edicts; he says it is better to have spontaneous expressions of interest and love than forced submission; but he feels that where love has been defective, law must be made stringent; as the moral impulse is weak, the outward prohibition must be emphatic. Legal restriction is in proportion to moral feebleness. The stronger the written law, the weaker the unwritten dictate of love. The ignorant or self-opinionated man, especially the guilty man, must have law thrust upon his notice, thundered into his ear, sometimes indeed, scourged into his flesh. By an inverse process we may read a nation's moral history by studying its penal code. The legislator and magistrate are constantly, though it may be unconsciously, writing the spiritual history of the country.

VALUE OF DISCIPLINE.

To be able to look at a pleasure, yet to keep it at arm's length for the sake of a brother, is the highest attainment of discipline. The disciplined man enjoys the spoils of a large conquest—in conquering himself he has conquered his principal foe. He can look at the forbidden tree, acknowledge that it is pleasant to the eyes, and, probably, a tree to be desired to make one wise, and yet tell the damning serpent that there is no folly so great as the wisdom which comes through violated love. The fear is that the disciplinarian may become ungenial in judgment. The man who has cut off his right hand may be tempted to think that other men should cut off their right hands; and the man with one eye may think it hard that other people should have two. One of the main purposes of discipline is to give men a firmer control over their critical faculty when they institute a comparison between themselves and others.

THE BIBLE.

What a wonderful book is the Bible in the matter of the variety of its contents. Everything seems to be in it—poem, narrative, music, friendship, personal news, national intelligence, judgment, battle, prayer, song, anathema, and benediction. Where is there anything to correspond with this? Not in any book certainly—but in actual life there is the same thing over again without the loss of one line. If the sun could print for us what he sees on any day in the year, he would print a second edition of the Bible. It is a page torn out of the great volume of life. What is the daily newspaper but a revised translation of the Bible, often, indeed, with God left out in the spelling, though He cannot be left out in reality. Take to-morrow's paper in one hand and the Bible in the other, and see if the paper be not full of repetitions and if there be not something like an echo in all its utterances.

WELL-GROUNDED FAITH.

What confidence can an untried man have in himself? The man who has no faith in himself is weak; the man who has a false faith in himself is deceptive; the man whose faith is founded upon the fact of a great conquest is strong and honest in proportion to that faith.

Men cannot be benefited by mere power, but they are necessarily reduced to a meager manhood by the presence of a power that is destructive. To have in the city or nation a power that is so uncontrollably destructive is to live in perpetual fear, and fear can never train a noble and generous manhood.

"Shall We Have More Churches?"

EDITOR LEBANON EXPRESS:

A peculiar subject, and no less a peculiar meaning. As a lover of the cause of Christ, I simply wish to say to the readers of your excellent paper that I have forgiven "citizens and church-goers" for supposing more churches organizations; but I would much rather look him square in the face and tell him that I have forgiven him. It seems that the public would love to know how often he goes to church; and if he believes what the preachers say; but if he will come to me like a man and tell me who he is we will get down and put over the matter. In proof of the brief statements in our former articles we simply refer reading and intelligent people to his- tory, church polity and the Bible. As to our work here, we lay down the thirteenth chapter of first Corinthians as our standard and upon that we expect by the help of God to build. As to Southern Methodism, she has withstood the mutations of time, the disintegration and downfall of dynasties, her motto always having been, "Love to God and man." She has come out as gold refined of its dross. With that same motto she is "forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, and she is pressing toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." JNO. M. PRICE.

A Brother-in-Law Uses a Knife.

Monday Clint Cole and his brother-in-law Jack Barnes, of Millers, were in Albany, and though reported not to be on very good terms, they navigated together and filled up on about the same kind of tarantula juice. Going home late in the afternoon they disagreed materially on all the live issues of the day, resulting in a free fight in their doegart. Cole drew his knife and gave Barnes a frightful cut in the face, beginning on the right side of his nose, past the mouth to his chin. The blood ran very freely. An Albany man who met them going to Jefferson, Cole driving and Barnes sitting with his head in his hands, said the bottom of the car was covered with clotting blood. Barnes' wounds were dressed by a Jefferson surgeon. Cole, who told the story of the fight, was arrested by the city marshal here and brought to Albany. Justice Humphrey was called out at 11 o'clock and issued a commitment, and Cole was placed in the county jail. Mr. Cole was taken before Justice Humphrey Tuesday afternoon, but Barnes refused to appear against him and he was discharged.—Democrat.

I. S. Doten, Justice of the Peace and merchant of Bristol, Ill., has been recommended St. Patrick's Pills. "I have used them," he says, "and know whereof I speak." A anyone troubled with constipation or biliousness will find them a friend. They are prompt and certain in their action and produce a pleasant cathartic effect. For sale by M. A. Miller.

What greater and truer friend has humanity than the country editor? He laughs with you when you are glad, weeps with you when you are sad, and smiles at you when you are mad. He is kind and wise, and rarely fails if he does it creates no surprise. He has a heart as well as cheek; is possessed of spirit and yet is meek, and for all this he lives on fifteen cents a week.

If you have a friend in some other State that is likely to come here, and is anxious to learn something concerning the Express for a year.

Nothing Succeeds Like Success.

So said Bulwer, that greatest of novelists, and he never spoke more truly, and he might have added with equal force, that merit is the essence of success. Wisdom's Robortine is the synonym of merit, and its history is success. The magical effects of this preparation have been attested by thousands of the leading ladies of society and the stage. It is the only article ever discovered which gives a Natural and Beautiful tint to the complexion, at the same time removing all roughness of the face and skin, and leaving the skin soft, smooth and velvety. It has long been the study of chemists to produce an article that while it would beautify the complexion would also have the merit of being harmless, but these two important qualities were never brought together until combined in
