It Is the Most Complete and Satisfactory Rest for the Worsing Mind.

It is a significant fact that many o the hardest intellectual workers turn at times to fiction with intense and eager interest. After the tension of prolonged thought or sustained investigation the mind is immensely refreshed by contact with human life in some good story. In the first despairing moments which followed the confession to Carlyle that a part of the manuscript of the "French Revolution" had been destroyed, the great Scotchman, whose working power was phenomenal, tells us that he plunged into Marryat's nov-els to secure distraction, and that the effort was successful. AN UNLUCKY WATCH. It Has Been Lost Many Times But Al-way, Returned Back to Its Owner.

Jens Johnson, traveling agent of the Northern Pacific, has brought to St. Paul several specimens of the famous meteor picked up from the spot where it fell, twelve miles from Forest City, Ia. I.) jeweler's, where in a show window it attracted atten-tion as a proper gift to bestow upon a friend. It was purchased, put in a pretty case with a chatelaine attached, and the whole was lost before the pur-chaser arrived home. Three days later it was advertised as found, and was again restored to the possession of its purchaser. It was bestowed upon the friend. Before many days, after the lady had returned from a drive, the lady had returned from a drive, the watch was discovered to have drop-ped from its chatelaine. Three weeks later it was carried into a jeweler's store for sale, was recognized and re-eovered.

it, and only ashes and screws and wires

In well informed circles the pro of war between China and Japan is be-ing seriously discussed. The bone of contention is Japan's claim to the Lui Chin Islands as Japanese territory, and as the Chinese are said to be determined to fight unless Japan gives up the islands in question it is quite possible that fight-ing may ensue. At all events, the Chinese government is said to be enerof war between China and Japan is be-It was a fish; I thought I saw him flop." The Neglige Shirt.

Now is the time to formulate a plan of ampaign in regard to wearing the eglige shirt by business men during ess hours in the city. During the winter there are a large aumber of me who bravely declary that they will wear the aforesaid shirt next season in spite of all possible sneers and criticisms. But when summer comes it is found that they invariably weaken; and they stick to the old regular edition of "boiled" shirt. Dur-
