Smokers should be smart enough to see that the genuine Seal of the "Plug Out" costs them nothing, and that the cheap ones will do them no good.

THE BARRONDA CASE AGAIN.

The letter of Secretary Tracy of the navy to Commander Reitor, who has just returned from his inspection of the Barronda case, is as follows: "The letter being the senior commander in the Guatemalan port of San Jose, he did not interfere to prevent the seizure of Barronda on board the American ship Acapulco, has been published. In it Tracy says: "Your ships were on the spot; you had full knowledge of General Barronda's approach; you were informed of the intention to seize him as a political offender. He was not a fugitive from the territory of Guatemala seeking to escape territorial jurisdiction, neither was he a conspirator attempting to return to his country to foment a revolution. He was a passenger on board an American ship, which he had joined in Mexico with his destination for Panama, and had there, without your interference, and outside of local jurisdiction, obtained a place under the flag and protection of the United States. In this situation you found him and his safety was threatened. Under these circumstances it was your plain duty to proceed at once to meet him, and to apprehend him, and to offer to his captain, should he desire it, an asylum on board your ship. Even after the arrival of the Acapulco in port your power of discretionary action was limited to that of a passenger on board." It is believed that few cases have ever occurred in the history of the United States navy where a commanding officer so completely abandoned the responsibility of his position, as according to your own statement, you did on this critical occasion. United States officer does not ask of foreign governments permission to offer an asylum to any person on board an American vessel at sea who stands in need of refuge. An officer who so abdicates his authority and surrenders to others has a lesson to learn before he can safely be entrusted with the command of a ship of war.

THE WAR CLOUD GONE.

There is no longer a probability of hostilities between England and American ships on Behring sea, and the orders for increasing the American force there are discontinued, the report of Sprague Elliott, who was sent to the sea to investigate the reports that there were few seals left, has been filed at Washington and Bialno, in view of the evidence it contains that one or two more seasons will exterminate the seals, and his tactics and asks, in a letter of Dec. 17 to Sir Julian Pauncefote, that the two governments send a commission to see for itself which lies, Tingle or Elliott, and that the entire question at issue be referred to arbitration. His suggestion does not, as has been stated in some of the papers, dodge the issue of sovereignty in Behring sea, but he asks that the following questions be submitted to whatever arbitrators may be chosen. "First—Which exclusive jurisdiction on the sea now known as Behring sea, and what exclusive rights in the seal fisheries therein, did Russia assert and exercise prior and up to the time of the cessation of Alaska to the United States?" "Second—How far were those claims asserted, and how far were they recognized and conceded by Great Britain?" "Third—Was the body of water known as the Behring sea included in the phrase "Pacific Ocean" as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, and what rights, if any, in the Behring sea were given or conceded to Great Britain by the said treaty?" "Fourth—Did not all the rights of Russia as to jurisdiction and as to the seal fisheries in the Behring sea east of the water boundary in the treaty between the United States and Russia of March 30, 1867, pass unimpaired to the United States under that treaty?" "Fifth—What are now the rights of the United States as to the fur seal fisheries in the waters of the Behring sea outside of the territorial limits? Whether such rights grow out of thecession by Russia of any special rights or the jurisdiction held by her in such fisheries or in the waters of the Behring sea or out of the ownership of the breeding islands and habits of the seals in resorting thereto and rearing their young thereon and going out from the island for food, or out of any other fact or incident connected with the relation of those seal fisheries to territorial possessions of the United States."

THE HARRONDA CASE AGAIN.

The letter of Secretary Tracy of the navy to Commander Reitor, who has just returned from his inspection of the Barronda case, is as follows: "The letter being the senior commander in the Guatemalan port of San Jose, he did not interfere to prevent the seizure of Barronda on board the American ship Acapulco, has been published. In it Tracy says: "Your ships were on the spot; you had full knowledge of General Barronda's approach; you were informed of the intention to seize him as a political offender. Farm Notes.

The following are offered in addition to those heretofore announced, to be forwarded from the state university by E. J. Wickson, Berkeley, free of cost except the names named which are to pay for packing and postage:

Black Wattle (Acacia decurrens).—This tree has demonstrated its adaptability to most California climates, its rapid growth and very desirable as a shade or ornamental tree as well as for its economic importance as the source of the wattle bark of commerce. Small trees sent out from the university are already bearing seed in several localities in the state. General success is reported with seed previously sent out, where the seed has been put in boiling water and allowed to stand and cool 12 hours before planting. Overseas country, our largest producer, until the second year. The seed is small, and a packet properly handled should give trees for a large plantation; 25 a packet by mail.

Lorries.—This important commercial plant has demonstrated its adaptation to California conditions, and offers inducements to those who have suitable lands. The importation of lorries from Europe to the United States is very large and the market for the local product is very promising. Isaac Lea of Florida, Sacramento county, our largest producer, obtains 4 a pound for dried, medicated roots, such as druggists use, and the manufacture of stock lorry would probably pay even better. If one would give the effort needed to succeed in its production, however, that florists, horticulturists and gardeners would be benefited. Land that is over-floored in winter suits it well and submergence does not injure the plant. It will, however, grow on almost any soil. The roots should be planted in rows four feet apart, the roots forming one foot apart in the row and cutting on the corners. Harvesting is done by plowing out with a strong team or digging with spades. The plants which we send to each applicant will soon give roots enough to plant a large area if desired. Let it be remembered that the lorry is a hardy plant, and which is desired for other purposes is a troublesome weed and hard to eradicate. We send five root cuttings to each applicant; 10c by mail, postpaid.

Osier Willows.—The demand for the choice varieties of Austrian osier willows, which are in high demand, is increasing from the United States department of agriculture, soon exhausted the supplies available last year. We have therefore produced a larger supply for this year's distribution. Nine varieties sent in lots of 10 or 20 cuttings, a lot or one dozen assorted, 25c by mail.

Mulberries.—Cuttings of the following kinds can be had: Mullein; White; Russian; Downing's Ever-bearing; Lho; Nagasaki. Sent in lots of 10 of a kind; 10c a lot or 12 cuttings assorted, 25c by mail.

Resistant Grape Vines.—These vines are not desirable for fruit-bearing, but are offered to those desiring to test them as stocks for grafting. Cuttings of the following species of Vitis can be had: Italian; California; Constantia; Chalk; Riparia; Arizona; California; Monticola; Novo Mexicana; Rupestris; Vulpina; Romanet; Splido-vitae David. Sent in lots of 10 of a kind; 10c a lot or a dozen assorted, 25c by mail.

Fruit trees of the variety of 500 named varieties of fruit, and our report on "Agricultural Experiment Stations," 1890, pages 182 to 187, contains a full list. This report will be sent to all applicants who may order any of the varieties mentioned in the index, and who supply all applications for some of the newer varieties, because the trees are small. We do not furnish root trees, but scions, for grafting. We do not send large quantities of any variety, because the object is to test varieties, and not to furnish a stock of fruit trees. Send 10c for each dozen of a single kind, or 25c if a dozen of assorted varieties is ordered.
