A Russian physician has found that microbes are always present in great numbers in the fasting stomach of a healthy person. During the earlier part of digestion they are always quite numerous. The gastrie juice, however, tends to destroy the microbes, though no effect on digestion appears to be exerted by them.

Recent investigations go to show that the horse has no ear for music, and only a slight understanding of time and military signals. In addition to this list, there are to be found in cans and ready for consumption codfish balls green turtle, herring, smelts, lamb's tongue, bound turkey, boned chicken, ex tongue, chipped beef, smoked boef, ham sausage, compressed ham, pig's feet tripe, devited chicken, ham lobster and turkey; potted duck, chicken, tongue, game, ham and turkey; Boston brown bread and evaporated vegetables of all kinds.

The list of canned fruits includes apples, apricots, blackberries, blueberries, cherries, cranberry sauce, figs, grapes, gooseberries, peaches, pears, pineapples, plums, quinces, raspborries, strawberries, and even preserved roses. There are also fruit fellies of every kind, and fruit preserves, jams and butter. Mince-meat and desicated ecoconut likewise come in cans. With the extension of the food stuffscamed there has also come an improvement in the cans used. Whereas it formerly required a great deal of trouble to open a tin can of any sort, this difficulty has been overcome by a simple though curious device. Around the can is soldered a strip of tin, one end of which may be fitted in a key; by turning this key the soldered rim is twisted off without the least trouble and the can is opened for use. Many people may not like a lin-can dinner, but those who eat such a dinner, either from choice or necessity, certainly can not complain of the variety or quantity of the food at their service.

About Vampires.

The original meaning of vampire, which appeliation has been given to certain blood-sucking bats, was that it was unusually supposed to be the sout of a dead man which quits the buried body by night to suck the blood of living persons. This belief chiefly prevails in Siavonic lands. It is thought that those who turn vampires are generally that the borse has no ear for music, and only a slight understanding of time and military signals. "Well, I used to raise a good deal of injek wheat and it puzaled me to know how to get rid of the straw. Nothing would eat it and it was a great bother to me. At last I thought of a plan.

"I stacked my buckwheat straw nicely and built a high rail lenos around it.
"My catile, of course, concluded that it was something good and at once tore down the fence and began to eat the straw.

"I drove them away and put up the fence a few times, but the more I drove them away the more anxious they became to eat the straw.

"After this had been repeated a few times the cattle determined to eat the straw, and cut it they did, every bit of it.

"As I said. I marry my girls off on the same principle.

"When a young man I don't like begins calling on my girls I encourage him in every way I can.

"I tell him to come as often and stay as late as he pleases, and I take pains to hint to the girls that I think they'd better set their caps for him. It works first-rate.

"He doesn't make many calls, for the girls treat him as coolly as they can.

"But when a young fellow that I like comes round—a man that I think would sait me for a son-in-law—I don't let him make many calls before I give him to understand that he isn't wanted around my house.

"I tell the girls, too, that they should not have anything to do with him, and give them orders never to speak to him again.

"The plan works first-rate. The young folks begin to pity each other; and the next thing I know they are engaged.

Letting a Man Alone.

That a husband is at times silent and preoccupied does not argue that he is indifferent to his wife, writes Mrs. Phineas T. Baroum in The Ledics' Home Journal; he may be depressed, and yet not feel that marriage for him is a failure; he may be captious and fret, yet feel no irritatiou against his wife. I am not absolving men from the obligatian to be agrocable to their woman-kind, nor extenuating their frequent infractions of the code of marital amenities; I am only assuring yon, for your own good, that these things are often the outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual disaccordance which you have not caused, and about which you would be unwise to grieve. Learn to wait, and hy-and-by you will find that business went wrong that day; or he sat in a draft, and all his bones ached with an incipient cold; or he had eaten an indigestible meal (not at home of course,) and was depressed he knew not why.

I wait and when you have found at the matter was, you will be you did not weary him with setions.
