WATERLOO WHISPERS.

Waterloo had her share of people on the Fourth, a crowd equal to any here before. All seemed to enjoy the day and left as happy as though they had been to Portland, Eugene etc.

A number of tents are to be seen on the camping grounds and, also quite a number of boarders at the Waterloo hotel. All enjoying the soda water.

Mr. Klum has commenced harvesting peas for Kay & Weatherford.

A party of engineers are surveying the Kay & Weatherford property here. Forty acres will be laid out in town lots.

Joe Klum, supposed to be the best angler in this vicinity, has gone to Sweet Home for larger fish, having caught every thing here even the (Minnie).

On Friday before the third Sunday of July a series of meetings will commence at this place, in the Waterloo grove. Come one come all both saint and sinner, all are cordially invited.

Mrs. Jas. Davidson went to Lebanon to visit relatives' and will return Wednesday.

Don't think for a moment that Waterloo is dead; no, never! Waterloo is as lively as could be expected and booming too.

Remember the soda spring (that everyone thinks was blown to atoms, which is not true) is as good or better than ever. The dryness of this spring was only caused by the dry, hot season, the soda has not, in the least, been tampered with and is all O. K.
