PORTLAND MARKET.

A Besume of the Condition of Its Dir ferent Departments.

A good demand was felt in the fruit line, and produce was also in demand. Watermelone are very plentiful. Re-ceipts of peaches were light. Blackber-ries are still in good demand, and are arriving in somewhat better condition. The market for vegetables is well sup-plied, and prices remain firm under a good demand.

and white lat.

If pork is young, the lean will break on being pitched; the fat will be white, soft and pulpy.

Delicate-colored silks should never be laid away in white paper, as the chloride of lime used in bleaching the paper often draws out the color.

People who are subject to attacks of giddiness or laintness, and those who suffer from palpitation and other sense of discomfort at the heart, should not bathe.

bathe.

Bits of soap which are too small to be used should be carefully laid aside for laundry days, when they can be melted up to add to the wash boiler instead of scraping up a new bur of soap.

Butter in small quantities may be made by stirring the cream in a bowl; and this is done every day by some good honsekeepers, who prefer butter made of sweet cream and are willing to perform this extra labor that they may have it fresh daily. fresh daily.

When decanters and carafes become so discolored inside that shot or fine coals will not cleanse them, fill the bottle with finely chopped potato skins, cork tightly and let the bottle stand for three days, when the skins will ferment. Turn out and rinse. The bottle will be as bright and clean as when new.

and clean as when new.

When you leel the pricking pain on the eyelid that announces the coming of a sty, use as an application very strong black tea, or simply the tea leaves moistened with a little water, put in a small bag of norslin and laid over the eyelid. Moisten again as it dries. This, if used before the sty gets well under way, will generally drive it away.

generally drive it away.

Opening the window in front of a stove will stop a smoking chimney. The smoking is sometimes caused by an insufficient supply of air. Oftentimes simply faming the fire vigorously will stop the smoking. Nothing is more annoying than a smoking chimney. Two openings in the same time will cause this trouble; therefore, it is necessary to make separate flues for every fire. A tree above the chimney may stop the draft; this can be remedied only by cutting down the tree.

Dangers of Underfeeding.

Underfeeding rains more live stock in the West than overfeeding. Grave as is the objection to pampered breeding animals, yet where there is one beast rained by an excessof heating food there are a dozen well-bred ones suffered to lapse into a state of hopeless degeneracy by a failure in the case of young stock to keep them growing or by neglecting to provide a sufficient ration to support breeding animals against the taxes of nature. Feed the younsters generously on proper food stuffs, and when they are matured, if of the right stamp, they will not require extra care. Prof Sanborn argues that there is even more in feed than in breed, and the facts are not all against him. Whatever is worth keeping at all in the way of farm stock is worth keeping well.

raise the mass in a few minutes to about 56 in summer and 60 in winter.

Work for Rainy Days.

Work for Rainy Days.

It is so often necessary to work over hours in pleasant weather that when a rainy day comes in summer the farmer may profitably devote it, artly to intellectual improvement. He can at least then take time to estimate carefully what needs to be done and plan as to the best way of doing it. This will require study and prove the best possible intellectual exercise. It at least requires as much executive ability to keep everything on a large farm in order and working smoothly as it does to manage a manufacturing or commercial business.

Compelling Stock to Eat Food.

Competiting Stock to Eat Food.
Animals can possibly be wintered or kept at other seasons on food that contains barely enough nutrition to custain life. But whenever this is the fact no profit need be expected from stock thus led. All the advantage to the farmer from feeding stock comes from feeding more than is needed for birroly retaining the same condition. There must be increase either of flesh, milk or wool before there can be any profit, and this requires generally good feeding.

Should any one ask your opinion about the Histogenetic system of medicine, just answer boldly that it is no good. Should Column of Very Useful he ask you the reason why it is no good. Should be ask you the reason why it is no good, tell him—just because. If this answer does not confound him by its profundity and he still persists, tell him that it is a new-fabgled idea. This will probably prove effect ive, as it bankrupted the first iron plow es-tablishment. Should you fall in that, too, don't give up, but insist with the powerful don't give up, but insist with the powerful argument that your grandmother never heard of it; that you can't see how mercury, arsenic, strychnine, etc., can be improved upon, and that the old schools of medicine must necessarily have exhausted all the stock of wisdom, and that therevariant possibly be anything left to learn. And if all your powerful arguments have failed to convince him of the reasonableness of your position—you have still one Parthian shot—tell him that you are simply astonished; that you thought him an intelligent man!
