Wednesday night the little 7-year old girl of Mr. C. A. Zahn was sick and her mother gave her some home made cough medicine and when Mrs. Z. was absent the little girl got the bottle and drank all in it. Mrs. Z. discovering this fact upon her return summoned Dr. Lamberson and later Dr. Foley, and under their skillful care the little girl was brought safely out of the difficulty. The physicians say that there was poison sufficient taken to kill three men. The little girl is feeling all right to-day.

Thrown From his wagon and Killed.

Monday last, at Albany, Mr. Chas. Rinehart met a sudden death in a way that was horrifying to the beholders. He was driving down First street with a four horse team, and two wagons, when he whipped up the lead team. This started the teams at a faster speed than was intended, and the hind wagon breaking loose lightened the load so much that the horses began running. Mr. R. was thrown violently to the ground striking on his head, the wheels of the wagon then passed over his breast fearfully crushing him about the lungs. When the unfortunate man was picked up, he was dead.

Drs. Wallace and Whitney who were summoned gave it as their opinion that death was caused from the blow upon the head, concussion of the brain resulting. The crushing from the loaded wagon would probably have caused death.

Mr. R. had been cultivating part of the land of Rev. D. C. McFarland near Tangent, was a man of good habits, unmarried, about twenty-six years of age. His parents reside at Sweet Home, and he also has a brother at Brownsville.

Drowned.

The cruel waters of the Santiam claim another victim, and Gus. F. Juhnke is among the number gone out upon the highway unknown to the animate.

Sunday afternoon Mr. Juhnke, accompanied by a number of his associates, was bathing in the river when he found himself unable to reach the shore. Aid was rendered at once but not sufficient to save his life. He leaves a wife and five little children with but little to live upon. Mrs. Juhnke had not seen her husband since July 8th, at which time he left home to go with a threshing crew; and when the sad news was broken to her she was completely overcome with grief.

The time came for the family to take their last look at the remains, Monday afternoon, and many tears of sympathy were shed by friends as the mother took her little ones, one by one, and lifted them up that they might kiss the cold and pallid cheek of their once loving and indulgent father.

The funeral sermon was preached in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church by the pastor.

Later we understand that the citizens of Lebanon have contributed $60 to help pay the expense of burial and assist the mother and her babes.
