"German" Syrup

A Cough Medicine for children and Croup and Whooping Cough. It must be plain and simple to administer, easy and pleasant to take. The child must like it. It must be prompt in action, giving immediate relief as children's troubles come quick, grow fast, and end fatally or otherwise in a very short time. It must not only relieve quick but bring them around quick, as children chafe, and fret, and spoil their constitutions under long confinement. It must do its work in moderate doses. A large quantity of medicine in a child is not desirable. It must not interfere with the child's spirits, appetite, or general health. These things suit cod as well as young folks, and make Roschee's German Syrup the favorite family medicine.

Secrets of the Dressmaker.

"Assure you" of one learns dressmaking for fun. Sometimes learn in order to understand better the fitting of their own gowns, but one usually learns because she expects to make a living by the trade."

The speaker was a fashionable uptown modiste, and she was telling a reporter some of the secrets of her profession. About the room were seated a number of quiet, neat looking girls, all sewing.

"Are there any schools where dressmaking is taught?" was asked.

"I never heard of any. When a girl desires to learn the business, she usually goes as an apprentice, as at any other trade."

"How long does it take to learn the trade?"

"That greatly depends upon the student. Usually a girl should master the trade in one season. A good dressmaker should have a quick eye for form and color. She should be something of an artist in addition to having mere mechanical skill. Most women know something about sewing and have little difficulty, but when it comes to fitting, trimming and finishing dresses, where real taste and judgment are required, the novice is almost helpless."

"What makes a dressmaker earn after she has learned the trade?"

"It all depends upon her skill and ability. If she is smart she can get $2.50 a day, she may not get more than $1.00 that is after she has taken lessons for one season. Forewomen who understand the work earn about $25 a week. They are women of long experience in the trade. So far as dressmaking at home is concerned, the paper patterns have simplified matters a great deal. Male dressmakers earn from $3 to $6 a week more than women at the same business. Men are better than women at making waists, which are in some particulars like the coat you wear, but I never yet saw a man who could drape a skirt properly."—New York Mail and Express.

Balloons for Military Purposes.

Balloons for military purposes have been constructed at an experimental station constructed at a military station. They are made of a light fabric and are inflated with hydrogen gas. Each balloon is attached to a basket containing a telephone, a lamp, and other necessary apparatus. The balloons are used for reconnaissance and for communication with the ground.

Water being scarce in Abyssinia, the gas will be prepared in Naples and transported in tubes of about eight feet in length and five inches in circumference, in which it will be compressed by a force of 135 atmospheres. Each wagon will carry forty tubes, to be discharged into the balloon at the place where it shall ascend. The cable holding the balloon captive is supplied with two telephone threads by which the aeronaut can communicate his observations to the men on the ground. Several trial ascents made proved entirely satisfactory.—Foreign Letter.

Drinking Russian Tea.

A fine looking gentleman holding a whispered conference with a restaurant waiter attracted the attention of a neighbor at the same table the other day. With the gentleman's dinner the waiter brought to him a cup of tea and half a lemon. The gentleman squeezed the lemon juice into his tea and followed it with three lumps of sugar. "Do you drink that because you like it," asked the neighbor, "or because you have to?" "It is Russian tea," was the answer. "I began drinking it because my doctor, who is a Russian, recommended it, and now I have become as much a slave to it as a drunkard is to liquor." "I wish I had drunk it," the neighbor would not let me have champagne when I was getting well and I would not drink water. I take the Russian tea three times a day with my meals, and after supper I have it brought to my room. I think from six to twelve cups of it during the evening. I have gained fifty pounds since I began drinking it, but it is a dangerous drink," he said, buttoning his overcoat up close. "It opens all the pores, and I am tingling from finger to toe. I should catch cold now very easily, but it is the best thing with which to throw off a cold if you take it at night."—New York Sun.

Craze Among Chicago Boys.

The latest craze among the boys in some parts of the city, particularly in Hyde park, is to make collections of the names of sleeping cars. The weather is rather unpleasant for standing out watching trains go by, but all of the boys who are in the contest in earnest have no difficulty in finding places to sit in comfort, where passing trains may be seen. If necessary a boy in pursuit of an object as instructive and valuable to him as this would build a house on purpose and put an old stove in it and agree not to burn down more than $10,000 worth of property at one time. Sleeping cars, by the way, are fearfully and wonderfully named. There is an impression abroad that these cars were named by the various men who have risen from the sleeping car employ to a residence in the Illinois penitentiary, and that they selected such wonderful names out of a feeling of sentiment toward society. For horrible examples, Otorara, Ocheysal, Kelmisteta, Tschobish, Pon-tyuy, Petteolde, Sponat, Tsnob, Wakarusa, Wegree, Winconlico, Apooka, Escatwapa, Estobicoke, Guadenhullen, Rudagoniah and Tladaghton.—Chicago Herald.

A MYSTERY.

How the British system of dressmaking is conducted in the United States is a mystery. The dressmaker who has mastered the art of making a dress is a mystery. The dressmaker who has mastered the art of making a dress is a mystery.
