A Woman's Curiosity.

A Sedalia (Mo.) Dispatch says: The secret Order of the Woodmen of the World held a meeting last night, and while they were engaged in going through a number of interesting evolutions a noise was heard at one of the windows. A Woodman quickly raised the sash and threw the blinds open, when he was astonished to see a woman standing on the roof of the adjoining building. She had climbed up through a scuttle-hole and had been playing the "Paul Pry" act by looking through the shutters, which gave her an excellent view of what was going on within the hall. The alarm was given at once, but the lady had fled before the stumble Woodmen could arrest her. An investigation was at once instituted and the lady's name was ascertained, but the Woodmen decline to make it public for the present. She had witnessed more than one initiation in the lodge of the Knights of Pythias, as that order meets in the same hall with the Woodmen. Last night's discovery is the talk of the town to-day.

M. A. Miller, the druggist, takes especial pleasure in supplying his customers with the best medicines obtainable. Among the many excellent preparations on his shelves may be mentioned Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a favorite during the winter months on account of its great success in the cure of colds. There is nothing that will loosen a severe cold so quickly, or so promptly relieve the lungs. Then it counteracts any tendency towards pneumonia. It is pleasant and safe to take, and fully worthy of its popularity.
