Your real name must accompany every communication or it will certainly go to the "waste basket." We do not want your name for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. EDITOR.

WATERLOO.

EDITOR EXPRESS.—Perhaps some of your correspondents will fall you during this cold spell, so I thought that you might be pleased to look with some favor upon a new one.

There is just now a superabundance of snow, and many people feel it pinch, as fuel is scarce and stock poor.

The snow has covered the mud and made the roads almost impassable for vehicles, and there is very little travel on the roads about here. Wagons can't very well get along and sleds are nearly as bad.

Several parties of hunters have gone out since the snow fell. They think they will find game plenty and rather anxious to be killed. Should their hopes be founded upon good knowledge of facts they will no doubt return heavily loaded.

There has been some sickness in the last few days occasioned mainly by the change in the weather. Colds are prevalent. We hear of one or two cases of diphtheria, and some grippe. Otherwise the health of the people is generally good.

Our town is very quiet just now. A combination of circumstances has tended to nearly stop building and other improvements for a short time, and items of any interest are not stirring. There is too much weather for them to get about much.

The coyote and fox hunters are out nearly every day now, but how successful they are is not known, as they do not come to town very often.

There is a petition out for a change in a portion of the road leading into town, which has been numerously signed, and as the change is for the better it will no doubt be granted by the court.

We hope to be able to tell you of some valuable additions to our town when it becomes a city, which will be of interest, and also hope to record a deal of news and tell of many improvements when the weather of spring comes and the work of that season shall begin. Our faith is strong and we feel assured that another season will see a large increase in its business. It has many natural advantages which are bound to attract attention and be developed, which will bring it into the front rank as a place of business. As a pleasant summer resort it is second to none so near the valley, and will become of more note from year to year as it is constantly improved and made more comfortable for visitors. The better accommodations which are furnished visitors the larger will be the demand for them, and the greater the reward that will be gained. With the protection which will, no doubt, be thrown around the public by the city government those who come here a pleasant time free from the fear of any hoodlum element disturbing them either by day or by night.

More hereafter if acceptable.

Academy Notes.

Despite the snow and bad weather the students are most all in regular attendance.

The next meeting of the E. L. S. is the time for election of officers again.

The mid-year examinations will begin on next Tuesday, Feb. 7th. This will close the work of the second term. The third term at the Academy begins on Monday, Feb. 15, when new classes will be formed, among which, we learn, will be one in beginning Latin. This will be a good opportunity for new students to enter and get the advantage of a good start.

Quite a number of the students (would-be teachers) contemplate attending the teachers' examination soon to be held.

During the first half of the present school year there has been an enrollment of sixty-one students, most of whom are now in school, pursuing the various courses of study. This is not large, but considering the circumstances under which the school commenced this year we think this very encouraging.

Prof. Bandle deserves much credit for his untiring efforts in behalf of the school.

State vs Allen.

Last Saturday a dispute arose between Ellis Allen and a Scotchman named Holmes, at Mr. Thew's hop yard, in which Holmes called Allen a liar at which Allen struck him with an ax, and then got a gun and went after the Scotchman, but was unable to find him. Holmes swore out a warrant, in Justice Elson's court, for Allen, charging him with assault with a deadly weapon. Allen was arrested on Monday, and the trial was set for Tuesday, when Deputy Dist. Atty. Wyatt withdrew the charge of assault with a deadly weapon, and entered a charge for simple assault, to which charge Allen plead guilty, and was fined the low sum of $5 and costs.

There seems to be considerable dissatisfaction about Atty. Wyatt withdrawing the first charge, and still more when Justice of the Peace Elson fined him the lowest fine that could be fined.

Mr. Allen should consider himself getting off extremely fortunate.

A young farmer named Montgomery from near Brownsville, in this county, on his way to Sprague, Wash., stopped in Portland on the way to see the sights. His first visit was to a variety theater where he gave the waiters a $20 gold piece for a bottle of beer, but no change was given him. On his complaining to Police headquarters warrants were issued for the waiter Chas. Haggings and Rita Hastings. Judge Carey imposed a fine of $50 on the man and $20 on the woman.

Rev. Wallace met with another accident last Sunday week while on his way to fill an appointment at Lebanon. His horse commenced kicking and kicked himself out shafts and out of the harness. Rev. Wallace went ahead and found that he had been kicked on the leg quite severely. He had the wound dressed and while it is rather painful he is able to be about. Rev. Wallace is rather unfortunate with his horse and buggy although he furnishes us with a good many items. —Junction City Times.

The Oregon legislature will probably vote down Senate bill No. 157, for an act to amend the general laws of Oregon permitting negroes and white persons to marry. The bill is said to have been framed for the accommodation of an African minister of Salem, who wishes to wed a white woman. The senate will show its wisdom by voting down the measure. The colored divine and his sweetheart will probably have to go over to Vancouver where there is no law prohibiting the mixture of the races.

From three o'clock until nine on Wednesday morning the wind did blow, and oh! how it did snow. Then the sun began to shine out occasionally between snow storms, but it was genuine winter all the same. The tail end of a full-sized Eastern snow storm has swooped down upon Oregon. Not in many years has the state experienced such a snow storm. It will be a little tough on stockowners, but will be highly beneficial to farming lands and may kill off some of the obnoxious fruit pests of the state.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather the Albany Military Band has postponed the concert billed for tonight, and will give notice as soon as possible when they can fill their engagement.

Death of Frank Propat.

Mr. Propat, on Monday morning, Jan. 30th, 1893, died at the home of his brother Quincy Propat, in Albany of typhoid fever, after a short illness, at the age of 29 years. The death of this bright and popular young man will be universally regretted. His life has been particularly an honorable one. Raised on a farm near Albany he had that ambition so creditable to the young American to obtain the best education to be secured. Graduating from the Albany Institute he entered Princeton College, completing a very creditable four years course last year, graduating with honor. Then he began the study of law in this city with Weatherford & Chamberlain being well fitted for the profession by his scholarly attainments. He was not strong, and when the fever took hold of his system it mastered him. The deceased was a member of the Christian church, and was and always had been a young man of great nobility and purity of character, a true young man, obtaining the confidence of those around him. He was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Propat, who with other relatives, have the sympathy of all in their great loss.

The funeral services occurred Tuesday at 10 o'clock at the Christian church, and was conducted by Rev. Weimer. The burial took place in the cemetery near the farm of the parents of the deceased. —Albany Democrat.

Last Sunday night Mr. A. R. McDonald, residing near Scio, went to his barn to tend to his stock, and was smoking at the time. A while after returning to his house fire was discovered in the barn, probably caught from the pipe. Little could be done, and the barn was burned, together with seven head of horses, 1000 bushels of grain, 15 tons of hay and considerable machinery. A few things were saved. There was no insurance, and the loss is a very heavy one. —Democrat.

This thing of some boys about town snow-balling everybody that passes along the streets is getting to be a nuisance and should be stopped. It is all right for boys, and even girls to get out and snow-ball, but to be pelting everybody that happens along Main street is too much. Besides there has been several large window lights broken which have not been replaced. We think that it is time that our city marshal should take this matter in hand and see that a stop is put to it.

A correspondent of the Ochoee Review tells of a dance at Faulknerville in the following interesting manner: The "Ochoever" attended a dance at Faulknerville. It was a grand success both financially and physically, for I went through on main strength and awkwardness. A fine supper of raw oysters and crackers was served at sundown, and another of the choicest viands was served at midnight. Some of the boys got too hilarious and were locked up in the henhouse and fined $2 50 each. All had a good time especially those who were in the henhouse.

The editor of an exchange says to his delinquent subscribers: The wind bloweth, the water floweth, the farmer soweth, the subscriber oweth and the Lord knoweth that we are in need of our dues; so "come a runnin'," "ere we go a "gunnin',"—"we're not a fannin'"; this thing of dunnin' would give us the everlasting blues.

We see that Albany has shut off her electric lights, as she is not able to stand the expense. Would it not be well for our city to correspond with Sodaville, Monroe and Albany, with a view to selling our street oil lamps as we have no use for them.

Counting up his salary and all his allowances for expenses, President Harrison will have received from the government exactly $378,500 when he shall have retired from the White house on March next.

The farmers who have winter wheat out say this snow now on the ground is a good thing. It protects the wheat from the cold and prevents it from freezing out. The cold weather of the past several weeks, before this snow, did some damage to winter wheat in low, wet places.

Representative Ford has introduced a bill to divide the office of district attorney in the third judicial district, providing for one in each court. This is a good move which will do away with the necessity of deputies appointed by the officer, in other than the county in which he resides.

Governor Penoyer received a letter Monday from his adjutant-general asking permission to use the two brass cannons belonging to the state for the purpose of firing a salute on inauguration day. The governor sent the following reply: "No permission will be given to use the state cannon for firing a salute over the inauguration of a Wall street plutocrat as president of the United States."

Mr. R. Dix, who lives in Wason's addition, had the misfortune to get his wood house burned up last week. He had gathered about $25 worth of grape root which he was drying in the wood house and by some means the fire got started from this and soon consumed building and all of its contents. Had it not been for the timely arrival of his neighbors his dwelling would have also been consumed.

A. W. Marks returned home Tuesday from Oakland where he went to help build a barn for J. V. Keobler. He says that he only worked two days on account of the snow. He reports having had a fine time deer hunting. He said that "Sullivan" caught the first deer that he jumped. E. B. Crouch is still there, but will return in a few days if the weather don't moderate.

It looks a little suspicious to see a young man renting a dwelling and such like. We have had two such cases happen in Lebanon this year. One of the parties bought a certain man's household goods who was going back east while the other young gentleman was heard to ask a newly married man if it cost any more to keep house than it did to board. We are not going to give the parties away, but think we are safe in saying there is something in the air.
