R. C. Rose, alias Carter, taken back to Missouri.

"Goodbye, be at Put your trust in God and keep your powder dry."
 These were the parting words of R. C. Rose, alias Carter, to his fellow prisoners in the Marion county jail as he stepped into the corridor from the murderer's cell last night. The requisition papers arrived from Missouri yesterday, and in the afternoon the Lawrence county sheriff presented to Penoyer and received a warrant of arrest. Carter stepped out of his cell to be ironed for the journey to Missouri. The fellow had very little to say but was rather fastidious as to the manner in which the officers were binding and cuffing him. First the handcuffs were put on him. These were riveted to a large leather belt which was to go around his waist, and when they began to put the belt on, Carter requested that it be concealed as much as possible, as he felt a delicacy in the matter. And then came the shackles to his feet. These were the common chain shackles, and they were supplied with an extra chain, to be used in fastening the prisoner to any object the sheriff might select.

Thus shackled, Carter, cool and collected, hobbled in front of the sheriff from the corridor to the basement of the jail, where the prisoner stopped and addressed a few words to the officers, deputies and spectators assembled. He retained the same calm demeanor that has characterized him since his arrest, and during his detention here, and said:

"Gentlemen, I have but one request to make, and that is that the officers will not talk about my case en route home. If they don't talk about it, we will have a pleasant trip. They can't say I got drunk and told, for I don't drink under any circumstances."

STORY OF HIS CRIME.

Six years ago at Mt. Vernon, Lawrence county, Mo., Carter (who was a druggist) killed a man named Robert Crockett, who had given evidence against him before the grand jury for having sold liquor without license. Carter was tried, found guilty of murder, and sentenced to be hanged. His case was taken on appeal to the supreme court and pending the delivery of an opinion in the case he made his escape from the jail at Mt. Vernon. In escaping he shot the jailer, Chas. Warren—and the deputy who is assisting to take him back—in the neck. Carter's case was in the supreme court and shortly after his escape, nothing having been heard from Carter, the decision of the lower court was sustained. Meanwhile Carter had fled to the West, where he assumed the name of Rose. Three months ago he married a Miss Black, whose brother lives a few miles south of Salem, and it was while visiting in this city recently that he was identified by Frank Wann, a former Mt. Vernon resident and shortly afterwards was arrested at Mt. Tabor by Marshal Minto, who brought Rose to Salem, where he was held as a fugitive from justice. Rose instituted habeas corpus proceedings which was continued from day to day for more than a week when a decision was rendered adversely to the petitioner and he was detained as a fugitive until the requisition arrived.

A dispatch from St. Paul, Minn., dated Jan. 31, reads as follows: A blizzard raged all over the Northwest last night and to-day, and is still at it. There was a driving snow storm over St. Paul during the morning. The wind blew a gale. Reports received show some peculiar freaks of weather. At 8 o'clock this morning at Helena it was 48 below zero, while at Missoula, a little over 100 miles north, it was 10 degrees above. Late to-night reports from many points in the Northwest state that the blizzard is general and very severe. At Ellendale, N. D., this morning it was 16 above and to-night it is 35 below. Schools have been closed and business is at a standstill, and a terrific blizzard is raging. It is now at Huron, S. D.

Died, January 20th, 1893, at the home of his son, H. C. Rose, A. J. Rose. The deceased was born in Warren county, Ky., December 1819. Age 74 years.

THE GOOD OLD MEN ARE DYING.

The good old men are dying;
 Yes; one by one they go.
 A host of them are lying
 Beneath the drifts of snow.
 They rest beneath a frozen mound,
 Old men we loved so well,
 Out in the cemetery burying-ground
 Their mouldering bodies dwell.

We've sighed to see them treading
 Upon the grave's dark brink;
 We've watched their life-pulse ebbing,
 And wept to see them sink.
 The kind old folks we loved so dear,
 From childhood's early day;
 How could we help but shed a tear,
 To see them pass away.

But few of them still wander
 Along life's rugged way;
 But few of them bask yonder,
 In life's declining day.
 But soon death's cold and icy palm
 Will chill each aged heart;
 Yes, soon each tottering weak, old man
 Will from our midst depart.

Ah, yes, Old Times draw wrinkles
 That youth and beauty make;
 Our hopeful star scarce twinkles,
 When it begins to fade.
 Dear fathers, you are growing old.
 Your heads are flecked with gray.
 Ere many winters more are told,
 You, too, will fade away.

The young must gather vigor
 To act their part in life;
 To brave the world's rigor,
 To battle in the strife.
 And soon the day will roll around,
 When you and I must go,
 To sleep beneath a frozen mound,
 Beneath the drifted snow.

One of the most critical surgical operations ever performed in this city yesterday, says the Eugene Guard, by Dr. Maston, of Albany, assisted by Drs. Falne, Prentice and T. W. Larris, of Eugene. The patient was Mrs. C. F. Littlefield, and the operation was a severe and lengthy one, taking two hours to complete it and left the patient in a very critical condition from the loss of blood and the shock sustained. Two large fibro-cystic tumors of the broad ligaments which sustain the womb, were removed, but they adhered so tenaciously to the abdominal viscera that the operation was rendered an especially painful and difficult one.

The Portland Dispatch says: The barbers of this city have sent to Senator Woodward for introducing in the legislature a bill providing for the closing of barber shops in the state on Sundays. They say that other places are closed by law so that Sunday can be enjoyed as a day of rest, and they would like the same privilege forced on them. They claim that people can be shaved as well on Saturday as any other day, and seven days in the week are too many to work. It is understood that the cheap barbers are opposed to this measure.
