At about 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, the fire department was called out. The department was prompt and was soon in working order, but it proved to be a false alarm as it was only a flue burning out in Dr. Hope's residence. But it was in a dangerous condition and the fire committee ordered it fixed up.

To encourage cash trade, W. C. Davis, of Albany, has adopted a new system of cash discount coupons, and is giving his customers, in connection therewith, some really elegant sets of triple-plated silver. It will be to your interest to call on Mr. Davis before making your spring purchases.

There is a giant tree in Chehalis county on the south-east quarter of section 10, township 18 north, range 8 west. The strongest recommendation that any article can have is the endorsement of the mothers of the town. When the mothers recommend it you may know that the article has more than ordinary merit. Here is what the Centerville, South Dakota Citizen says editorially of an article sold in their town: "From personal experience we can say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has broken up bad colds for our children. We are acquainted with many mothers in Centerville who would not be without it in the house for a good many times its cost, and are recommending it every day." 50 cent bottles for sale by M. A. Miller.

There will be services in the First Presbyterian church every Sunday, morning and evening. The evening sermon is especially intended for the young people. Young People's prayer meeting at 7 P. EDWARD ECCLESTON.

The Eugene Guard is responsible for the following: Harry Wyatt, a fifth rate bilk, left here on this morning's overland, accompanied by his wife. He is likely to turn up at Albany, Corvallis or Vancouver. These towns are hereby given warning to allow him a wide berth. While he lived here about 18 months he managed to live here without work by borrowing small sums of money, from everyone who would loan him any, and never repaying it. His wife is an estimable woman who knows little of his rognery.

J. R. Templeton, an Oregon pioneer, called in Thursday says the Brownsville Times, and told us of a discovery he had made, which at present, bids fair to be a valuable find. He and his son dug a well on his farm about 25 years ago, and when several feet below the surface of the earth, they discovered something which resembled coal oil. They thought nothing more about it until a few days ago when Mr. Templeton happened to notice an oily substance upon the water in the well, and upon investigation it proved to be coal oil in a large quantity. We hope his find will prove a valuable one.

A well-known Salem banker offers a suggestion that might be well considered by the world's fair commission of the state. There is no firmer wheat in the world than that grown in this state, and he would buy 5000 bushels of selected quality and exhibit it in glass bins in the agricultural building. He would also have a great number of small sacks with the words "Oregon Wheat" printed on them and a day advertised by placards on the wheat bins for distribution of these sacks full of wheat to visiting farmers. He would do the same thing with the fruit, being very careful in its selection and sending it forward on passenger trains. This he would have advertised for distribution on a certain day. He thinks by his method Oregon would get so thoroughly advertised that it would in the next five years more than double the otherwise immigration to the state in general and to the Willamette valley in particular.

Last Monday the cry of fire was given, and our fire department quickly responded. The fire was found to be in J. Hook's house on Main street. By the time the fire department reached it, the fire was under good headway and as there was no cistern near the property the boys were powerless and soon the building was consumed. Mr. Wallace who was occupying the house succeeded in getting out all of his house-hold goods that were down stairs, but all that was up stairs was consumed. Mr. Hook's loss was $400. Mr. Wallace's loss was about $100. There was no insurance. It is supposed that the fire originated from a defective flue. Before the fire was out the A. O. U. W., of which Mr. Wallace was a member, had rented one of F. M. Miller's houses for him, and had his goods moved in.

On Thursday last some box cars for the Northwest foundry were backed inside the brick wall of the state penitentiary. The next morning a tramp who had been stealing a ride crawled out of one of the cars. To say he was surprised on rubbing his eyes open and looking about him is drawing it extremely mild. He was dumfounded, and his eyes stuck out with astonishment until they might have served well as pegs to hang hats on. But there was no getting out of his predicament. He was in the penitentiary without a commitment. Mr. Tramp attempted to scale the walls, but failed, and he was soon found by the guards. He was given his breakfast and turned loose the happiest hobo out of jail. The next time he kindly hides himself from the view of the public he will select a box car going the other direction from the penitentiary.

Academy Notes.

The Literary Society was not largely attended last Thursday evening, nevertheless we decided that Hawaii should be annexed to the U. S.

Prof. Randle is contemplating making extensive improvement around the Academy grounds this spring.

The fire on Monday afternoon attracted the attention of the students for an hour or two.

C. C. HACKLEMAN.

He Preferred Arrest.

A thief broke into a large mansion early the other morning, and found himself into a large music room. Hearing footsteps approaching, he hid behind a screen.

From seven to eight o'clock the eldest daughter had a lesson on the piano.

From eight to nine o'clock the second daughter took a singing lesson.

From nine to ten o'clock the eldest son had a violin lesson.

From ten to eleven o'clock the other son had a lesson on the flute. At eleven all the brothers and sisters assembled and studied an ear-splitting piece for piano, violin, flute and voice.

The thief staggered out from behind the screen at half past eleven, and, falling at their feet, cried, "For mercy's sake, have me arrested—but stop!"

Although Oregon may be considered a little late in the world's fair race at Chicago, yet the Webfoot state will be heard from just the same. Many beautiful displays will be seen at the great show which will redound to the credit of Oregon. A beautiful sample of taxidermist's art, representing a familiar scene in Oregon, has been prepared to be shipped to the world's fair with Oregon's educational exhibit. In a deep frame covered with glass are a male Chinese pheasant, a female grouse, and 15 diminutive Chinese pheasant chicks, all mounted in a lifelike and remarkable natural manner. In the background is a painting showing some of Oregon's characteristically beautiful scenery, with tall, graceful firs and pines, quiet and luxuriant meadows, watered by lovely mountain brooks that glide away and lose themselves at the base of the distant snow peaks, whose shimmering tips turn to red and gold in the rays of the setting sun. If this does not give Eastern sportsmen a conception of the beauties of Oregon, nothing save a trip to the Willamette valley will.—EX.

A San Francisco dispatch of March 12th says that the Oregon Development Company has announced that its steamer, Willamette Valley, running between San Francisco and Yaquina bay, and connecting at the latter place with the trains of the Oregon Pacific railway has been turned over to the railway company which would hereafter run the steamer on its ocean division. W. B. Webster, the representative of the Oregon Development Company who has been general freight and passenger agent of the steamship service for several years, has turned over his office to the new manager of the steamer, but will still remain agent for the Development Company. The new officers of the ocean division of the Oregon Pacific railway are: R. E. Mulcahy, general superintendent; E. W. Hadley, receiver; D. R. Vaughn, general agent; P. W. Johnson, freight and passenger agent, and A. J. Storrs, captain of the steamer Willamette Valley. Captain Charles H. Watson, the purchasing agent of the steamship line, will still remain chief of the commissary department. Messrs. Mulcahy and Hadley have been in San Francisco for several days, and will remain until Tuesday, when the steamer will return north. They say that the ocean service is to be increased by the addition of a 2000-ton steamer, and that instead of trips every 10 days the two steamers will be able to run on schedule every 5 days. The time between San Francisco and Yaquina bay is 40 hours.
